NEW-ORLEANS BEE

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE STATE AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT.

[illegible]

FOR GOVERNOR

HENRY JOHNSON.

WHIG NOMINATION.

For Representative,

RANDELL HUNT.

NEW-ORLEANS:

THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 23, 1841.

[illegible] Columbus.

CANDIDATE FOR THE LEGISLATURE

At the whig meeting on Tuesday evening, Randell Hunt [illegible] nominated for the office of representative [illegible] vice A. W. Pichot, [illegible] After full and fair deliberation, this [illegible] as the most suitable whig [illegible] The nomination challenges our approbation in every respect. He is a true whig to match, [illegible] character, respectability [illegible] What now remains to be done? [illegible] other city than New-Orleans, the reply would be simple and satisfactory. The whigs [illegible] an admitted majority of several hundreds. They have therefore only to go to [illegible] the day of election, to deposit their suffrages in favor of the regular candidate and ensure his [illegible] This would be looked upon as a matter of course elsewhere, and the labors of the press and [illegible] exertions of the friends of the nominee [illegible] But here there are so many [illegible] elements to reconcile, so many aspirants waiting to bear the weight of legislative honors, so much personal and local feeling, that it is extremely difficult to nominate a candidate, especially in the absence of high party excitement, who will be sustained with ardor and concert of action by the whigs.

We hear already of discontent and murmurs, and why should they exist? What can be alleged against Mr. Hunt? For the first time in many years the whigs have fixed upon a candidate who would do honor to any party. In his political principles he is known to be a steady and unflinching whig. In [illegible] respectable and esteemed of our [illegible] In talent he is pre-eminent. His [illegible] information and political principles [illegible] a conspicuous [illegible] in the legislature. [illegible] At the [illegible] We hope and trust that all this petty and [illegible] will be discarded. Personal [illegible] to interfere with a political [illegible] The whigs need nothing but union [illegible] Should they falter, they will again subject themselves to the signal reproach of [illegible] defeat in a city where, by the acknowledgment of their antagonists, they number [illegible] majority.

The weather has within twenty-four hours, under[illegible] change. The wind, as the sailors say, has [illegible] round to the north, and we have a regular [illegible] day. Though this unexpected variation [illegible] operate unfavorably upon [illegible] suffering under the prevailing epidemic, [illegible] continuance of such weather for a few days, [illegible] arrest its desolating influence. [illegible] such a state of things [illegible] will doubtless re[illegible]

[illegible] The number of interments reported to the Board of Health for the 24 hours ending yesterday at noon, was 59; of which 43 were of yellow fever.

The above report comprises the burials in the following Cemeteries:

| | | YELLOW FEVER. |
|---|---|---|
| [illegible] | [illegible] | 38 |
| [illegible] | 3 | 1 |
| Protestant | 2 | 1 |
| Cypress Grove | 2 | 1 |
| [illegible] | 2 | 2 |
| | 59 | 43 |

Having heard many doubts expressed as to the correctness of the daily reports furnished by the Board of [illegible] we take this occasion once more to observe, [illegible] reliance may be placed on the [illegible] emanating from that quarter. We have [illegible] the opportunity of looking over the returns [illegible] and can testify to their accuracy. [illegible] Mr. W[illegible] the obliging [illegible] has convinced us that no [illegible]

[illegible] LAFAYETTE CEMETERY [illegible]

| | |
|---|---|
| [illegible] | 6 |
| [illegible] | 3 |
| [illegible] | 1 |
| [illegible] | 9 |

REPORT OF THE CHARITY HOSPITAL.—During the 24 hours ending yesterday evening at 6 o'clock:

Admissions 24 of which [illegible] yellow fever.
Discharges [illegible]
Deaths [illegible] of yellow fever.
Number of patients remaining in the hospital, 395

[illegible] a good deal of sickness in Vicksburg, and several highly respectable residents of that city have been recently carried off, among them are Col. Irwin, John H. Martin, Esq., and Sober.

[illegible]—Antonio Vidal was brought, yesterday, before Recorder [illegible] charged with having stolen jewellery to the value of $[illegible], from Juan Ramirez, some time about the latter end of June. The prisoner [illegible] for further examination.

[illegible] of Exchange Place, for [illegible] the Knickerbocker. It is rich [illegible] The "Quod [illegible] by Washington Irving, is continued [illegible]

[illegible] by Miss SEDGWICK.—Harper and Brothers publishers. We have received this work from the publishers through Messrs. [illegible] Few American writers have attained so widely spread celebrity as Miss SEDGWICK, and in her case, renown is based upon real merit. [illegible] They are [illegible] parts of England, [illegible] written in a style of mingled ease and elegance, and replete with the traits of an observing and discriminating intellect. We are introduced [illegible] into the household of some of the greatest characters in the British Empire, and the features of the domestic life of such men as CARLYLE, [illegible] and others are brought before the reader in a manner the most familiar and agreeable. What we most like about the book is the hearty, homeloving [illegible] spirit that predominates throughout. Miss Sedgwick is a patriot, though in petticoats, and [illegible] who go abroad only to abuse America [illegible] with her social or political institutions [illegible] our charming and patriotic [illegible]

[From the Pennsylvanian.]

[illegible] The sheriff and his [illegible] without loss of [illegible] without difficulty, what [illegible] to their proceedings. At the [illegible] there were assembled upwards [illegible] and a number, variously [illegible] disguised as Indians, and armed [illegible] The "Indians" retired to the woods [illegible] and kept out of reach during the [illegible] The sheriff found but little [illegible] and no bidder for what he did offer. [illegible] to sell off the rye and oats, which he found in the barns, but all to no purpose. [illegible] the sheriff announced his intention of removing a portion of the grain, and then for the first time there were symptoms of a disturbance. The sheriff, however, directed a waggon to be driven into the barn and commenced loading on the [illegible] While so engaged an attempt was made to interrupt the proceedings, but the posse promptly put it down, driving the disturbers of the peace from the barn.—The waggon was loaded and brought with its contents to the city.

In this fracas, which lasted but a minute, two [illegible] "holler on," and the other the occupier of the premises where the sale was made, were pretty severely hurt. With these exceptions, we heard of no casualties of any kind during the day.

To MESSRS. RANDELL HUNT AND ALFRED J. LEWIS

Gentlemen:—

As you are the prominent candidates before the people for a seat in the House of Representatives, vacated by the resignation of A. W. Pichot, Esq. one of you having been nominated at a whig meeting, and the other as the [illegible] whig, we, in the pursuance of the inherent right of voters, respectfully ask a reply to a few interrogatories.

1st. Do you or do you not believe in the constitutionality and expediency of a National Bank?

2d. Are you or are you not in favor of President Tyler's last veto?

3d. Will you, if elected, vote for a whig senator to Congress, in the event of the resignation of Alexander Mouton?

4th. Will you support whig measures in general which may come before the Legislature of Louisiana at the ensuing session?

An early answer will oblige

MANY WHIG VOTERS.

VIEWS OF THE VETO.

We subjoin the opinions of some of the most prominent northern journals in relation to this document.

The N. Y. Evening Post, (L. F.) amid general praise, cannot refrain from the following hit:

"The looked for Message of Mr. Tyler, returning the second bank bill to the House of Representatives with his objections, was sent in yesterday, and received here this morning. When we first took it in hand we were pleased to see that it possessed the commendable quality of being short; but when we had read it, we wished it had been a little shorter.

That a bank ought always to sell bills of exchange at a certain price, without regard to the real value of exchange in the market, is an absurdity which we regret to see in the message, and which shews a want of clear and just ideas on the question.

We said at the outset of our remarks that we wished the message had been shorter. The closing passages deprecating the hostility of the whig party, and requesting a suspension of their opinion, we have read with pain and wished that they had been retrenched in the manuscript. They are not worthy of the Chief Magistrate of a republic like ours, an officer responsible not to Congress, nor to a party, but to the people: they are not worthy of a man who could collect firmness to send back to Congress the two bills which they tried to force upon him."

The Globe gives the veto and its author such qualified praise as the following:

"That Mr. Tyler has been the instrument of this great deliverance of the people, must be looked upon as his greatest good fortune, and he has always been fortunate."

From the Courier and Enquirer.

Our views have heretofore been so fully expressed in relation to Mr. Tyler and his great breach of faith to the country, that we need not now reiterate our opinion of the man and his conduct. That he has been guilty of unparalleled duplicity to his party, no man, in his senses, can pretend to deny; and this being admitted, the public should not be surprised at any inconsistency or bold prevarication which he may commit.

From the Express.

The Message, take it all in all, is calculated to disappoint the hopes and wishes of the opposition, and the disorganizers in our own ranks. Let the conciliatory spirit which the President manifests, be met with a corresponding spirit from the whigs all over the country, and all will be well. Let us wait patiently until the regular session of Congress, and see what the President will have then to perform. If we do otherwise, and suffer discord and angry feeling to grow up among us, when the time comes for action on important measures, we may be without the strength to carry them through.

From the Commercial Advertiser.

Well, Veto No. 2 has come, and suspense is at an end. The constitution, too, is suspended, so far as it confers powers upon Congress for the regulation of the currency of the country. We do not know that we understand this document. Who is there, north of Mason and Dixon's line, that can fathom the depths of a Virginia abstraction?

From the American.

He submits to Congress "the entire questions," reserving the right to veto in case of absolute necessity; and then, as if in explanation of what he thought might be done in the premises, without any "conflict with the constitution," he permits his Secretary of the Treasury to frame and submit a bill to Congress which did, in fact, embrace all the powers comprehended in the bill now vetoed—which did in fact, constitute a bank to operate per se over the United States. Moreover, it is susceptible of proof irrefragable, that to members of Congress, merchants, and other casual visitors, Mr. Tyler again and again declared his willingness, aye, his anxiety to sign Mr. Ewing's bill. And yet Mr. Ewing's bill contemplated a bank of exchange and circulation, and of agencies independently of the consent of the States wherein they might be established.

The Baltimore [illegible] condemn the doctrines of the veto—the American in moderate, the Patriot in unqualified terms. The former advises Mr. TYLER to consult with HENRY CLAY and other true whigs and not to listen to the counsels of a cabal—suggestions which are well meant, but which are little apt to be relished by his Accidency.

The Philadelphia whig journals condemn the veto—the National Gazette being the most temperate in its censure.

[From the Philadelphia North American.]

UNITED STATES BANK BUILDING.—The extinction of the U. S. Bank, leaves that magnificent edifice in the hands of the assignees, as a part of its available property. To what use it will now revert, is matter of conjecture. This splendid pile was commenced in 1819. It was five years building. The original expense was $500,000 but when the old bank charter expired, it was sold to the present institution for $300,000. The building is purely of white marble, and both inside and out, scarcely any wood is to be seen. From Chesnut street, the bank is reached by a lofty flight of marble steps. It presents a splendid front of [illegible] feet in width, with eight doric columns four feet six inches in diameter, and 27 feet high. The building is [illegible] feet long, and the porticus at each end correspond. Both internally and externally, the style and finish are equally massive and beautiful. The principal banking rooms is 48 feet wide and 81 feet long, with an arched ceiling, supported by two rows of marble columns. Aside from this, there are a multitude of departments, for the use of the different officers and directors, as well as for engravers and copper plate printers. It is admired for its beautiful proportions, as well as for its imposing size and classic architecture.

[From the Baltimore Sun.]

A DUEL AVERTED.—A farcical affair in the way of a duel occurred on Monday afternoon, which has afforded [illegible] to those acquainted with the circumstances. The parties do business on Light street wharf. A gentleman, whom we shall call Mr. A., keeps a counting room on the wharf, from which he was observed coming with a lady. His neighbor, Mr. B., after the lady had gone out of hearing, made a jocular remark to him, which at the time passed off all in good humor, as was supposed. Not so, however. Mr. A. after revolving the circumstances in his mind, conceived that the lady, if not himself, had been insulted, and he must take measures to vindicate his honor. He accordingly despatched a messenger to Mr. B. carrying a hostile note, demanding an explanation or satisfaction. Mr. B's surprise at the reception of this note may be imagined, and he could ill conceal his feelings. He, however, wrote at the bottom of the note, something to this effect:—"No insult intended, and no one but a fool would think so;" and returned it by the bearer, at the same time intimating that if he heard anything more of the matter he should take the writer and give him a ducking in the basin. Thus the matter stands at present, and it is not apprehended that anything very serious will grow out of it. The whole matter, as related to us, was an extremely ridiculous and ludicrous one.

From the N. Y. Sunday Morning News.

"Henry Clay.—Mr. Clay is now in the 63d year of his age. He is six feet high, not stout, and has a very careless appearance. His limbs are long; he has a slow precise walk, and takes lengthy strides. His complexion is light—high retreating forehead and very thin hair, slightly grey. His mouth and eyes—the former being very large, and the latter small, and grey,—give every indication of that genius which he is known to possess. The fire of his eyes cannot be described; but it can be felt with tremendous power. No one can resist its potency. He has a great deal of suavity in his manners, and he has a most rare faculty of making every one to whom he is introduced feel easy and free. There can be no restraint in his company. He makes himself agreeable to all—the greatest or the smallest; he has been a public man nearly forty years. He entered Congress—first the Senate, I believe, where he did not long remain—at a very early age, and ever since he has filled a large space in the public mind. As Speaker of the House of Representatives, one of the most difficult, arduous and important stations in the government, he presided with an ability which has never been approached. It was in this station that his powerful genius was universally acknowledged. All paid homage to it. As an orator he holds the highest rank in the country. The tones of his full, rich, exquisite voice, and his inimitable and original manner, are fascinating beyond parallel. He is eloquent, argumentative, playful and persuasive. He has command over both the feelings and judgments of his hearers. As a legislator—a leader in a legislative body—a ready debater and practical statesman, he has never been equalled in this or I believe any other country. Napoleon was not greater as a captain than is Henry Clay as a legislator. He is always ready at his post, and no matter what may be sprung upon him he is prepared for it. His dexterity is astonishing. If his opponents toss him ever so high, he invariably lights on his feet, and let the blows dealt at him be ever so well directed, or ever so powerful, he is sure to ward them off, either by his superior skill or strength. In defence or attack he is equally an adept—unapproachable. His mind is as elastic as the trunk of an elephant; it can grasp with equal facility the mightiest or minutest object as occasion requires. He unites genius and talents with an INEXHAUSTIBLE STORE OF COMMON SENSE. All his faculties are available. No man ever originated so many great public measures as he has. He has the genius to conceive great things, and the power to consummate them;—differing in this respect from all his contemporaries. He is a very bold man, and never waits for others to move, or watches the current to determine his own course; he takes the responsibility. As the leader of a great party he ranks the mightiest; he was born to command. He is not a learned man, but sufficiently so for all practical purposes, and his knowledge of man and the world is consummate. His sympathies and feelings are all with the people, and he has a stronger hold upon their affections, I firmly believe, than any man living. Of course, he has violent opponents, necessarily arising out of his public course in advocating and opposing measures which divide party lines. His temper is quick; he has a great deal of system both in private and public affairs, and has one of the best conducted plantations in the whole west; he is proverbial for skill in raising good stock. This results that plain good sense, for which he is so preeminent, and which enables him to adapt himself to all the purposes of life. All his great abilities are of an available character. He never soars up in the air after intangible objects or [illegible] abstractions; he is brilliant, but his brilliancy guides and instructs, it does not dazzle or mislead. He is a native of Hanover county, Virginia, early in life distinguished himself at the bar. He was an associate counsel in the great Burr trial for the defendant, was minister at the treaty of Ghent, and Secretary of State under President Adams. His residence is Ashland, near Lexington, Kentucky, and he is idolized by his faithful and intelligent constituents.

Messrs. Editors:

Please announce in your paper, Mr. ALFRED J. LEWIS as the most suitable candidate to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of A. W. Pichot, in our Legislature.

MANY OF THE VOTERS OF THE THIRD MUNICIPALITY.

N. O. Sept. 23, 1841.

☞ We are requested to call the attention of wine merchants, and the public generally, to the sale, without reserve, of MARSEILLES WINES, which takes place this morning at 10 o'clock, at No. 77 St. Louis street, between Royal and Bourbon streets, by [illegible] auctioneer.

The attention of our readers is directed to the sale of Real Estate, Rail Road and Bank stock, to be made this day at 12 o'clock, at the St. Louis Exchange Rotunda, by J. A. Beard & Co. The particulars and terms of sale will be found in another column, and offer inducements most advantageous to [illegible] good investments.

BY AUTHORITY.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE GOVERNOR.

[illegible]

Mark Boatner [illegible] Parish of East Feliciana in place of [illegible]
Pierre P. Briant, to be Notary Public for the Parish of St. Martin in place of [illegible] deceased.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES,

PASSED AT THE FIRST SESSION OF THE TWENTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

[PUBLIC—No. [illegible]]

AN ACT making appropriations for [illegible] fortifications [illegible]

[illegible]

For fortifications at the outlet of Lake Champlain, and purchase of site, seventy-five thousand dollars.

For defensive works, barracks, and other necessary buildings, and purchase of site for a depot [illegible] junction of the Matawamkeag [illegible] twenty-five thousand dollars.

[illegible]

JOHN WHITE,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
SAML. L. SOUTHARD,
President of the Senate pro tempore.

Approved, September [illegible], 1841.

[PUBLIC—No. [illegible]]

AN ACT [illegible]

[illegible]

Approved, September [illegible], 1841.

[PUBLIC—No. [illegible]]

AN ACT authorizing [illegible]

[illegible]

Approved, September [illegible], 1841.

[PUBLIC—No. [illegible]]

AN ACT to make appropriations [illegible] Post Office Department.

[illegible]

Approved, September [illegible], 1841.

CLERK WANTED—A young man speaking English and French, acclimated, and perfectly conversant with book-keeping, having a knowledge of dry goods, and disposed to make himself generally useful, may obtain a situation by addressing box No. 351, Post-office.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

THE co-partnership heretofore existing under the firm of VARILLAT & BRYAN, will be dissolved by mutual consent on the 1st of October next. No collection up to that date will be valid unless effected by a person regularly appointed by H. Varillat and W. J. Bryan. Any previous advertisement will be null and void.

New Orleans, 23d September, 1841.

H. VARILLAT, 83 New Levee

FOR SALE, by the undersigned, [illegible]

DUBUCH, BROTHERS, 31 Conde street

NEW PUBLICATIONS

BUCKINGHAM'S Historical, Statistic, and Descriptive Travels in America [illegible]

[illegible] For sale by [illegible]

[illegible] NORMAN, STEEL & Co. [illegible]

[illegible] LYMEN, BRITTON & SWIFT [illegible]

[illegible] BLASCO & SUNDEL [illegible]

[illegible] WM H FULLER [illegible]

[illegible] FROST & Co. [illegible]

[illegible] CHAS DOANE [illegible]

[illegible] O H MIESEGAES [illegible]

[illegible] LATEY & AMELUNG [illegible]

HAVANA COFFEE—Prime green, for sale by BLASCO & SUNDEL, 23 Common st

BOOK & JOB PRINTING,

No. 94, Chartres street, Bee Office.

[illegible]

Ship Bills, Steamboat Bills, Auction Bills, Handbills, Poster, Notarial Blanks, Dray Receipts, Bills of Lading, Cards, Labels,

And every description of BOOK & JOB PRINTING.

New-Orleans, June 18, 1841.

THE BANKRUPT BILL.

Passed at the Twenty-seventh Congress, and approved by the President, [illegible] For sale [illegible] at this Office.

THE FISCAL

BANK BILL

[illegible]

[illegible] T. J. RICARDO, Secretary

[illegible] J. LAUTHIER [illegible]

[illegible] McKEAN & CASEY [illegible]

[illegible] BOGERT & HAWTHORN, 33 Gravier st [illegible]

[illegible] N D HAMBERLIN, 75 Magazine st [illegible]

[illegible] B VALLS, 33 Gravier st [illegible]

[illegible] CONVERSE & Co, 33 New Levee [illegible]

LAMP OIL—For sale by CONVERSE & Co, 33 New Levee

STEAMER [illegible] CHAS LOANE [illegible]

[illegible] ROBERT & Co. [illegible]

FOR BOSTON [illegible] CHARLES CARROLL [illegible]

FOR LIVERPOOL—[illegible] QUEEN VICTORIA [illegible]

FOR VERA CRUZ—[illegible] ANTOINETTE [illegible]

FOR HAVANA [illegible]

FOR PHILADELPHIA [illegible]

FOR MOBILE AND PENSACOLA [illegible] HARRIET [illegible]

FOR NORFOLK, CITY POINT AND RICHMOND [illegible]

FOR BALTIMORE [illegible]

FOR TAMPICO [illegible]

PROCLAMATION.

A. B. ROMAN,

Governor of the State of Louisiana.

[illegible]

Given under my hand and the seal of the state, at New-Orleans, this sixteenth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the sixty-sixth.

(Signed,) A. B. ROMAN.

By the Governor:

LEVI PEIRCE, Secretary of State.

YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

[illegible] THE MISSES HAVENS [illegible]

[illegible] PARISIAN BAZAAR—[illegible] BROTHERS [illegible]

[illegible] J. DUVALMONT [illegible]

LEECHES.

RECEIVED, a new assortment of [illegible] Leeches [illegible]

LEECHES.

RECEIVED by the [illegible]

NOTICE TO SUGAR PLANTERS [illegible]

CHARLES [illegible]

LEECHES.

RECEIVED by late arrivals a fine assortment of [illegible]

[illegible] GLOBE HOTEL [illegible] F BLANCARD [illegible]

[illegible] COFFEE HOUSE AND BILLIARD ROOM [illegible]

FOR SALE—[illegible] EDWARD [illegible]

[illegible] WM FROST & Co. [illegible]

GUERNSEY SHIRTS—[illegible] L A LEVY, Jr. [illegible]

SALES AT AUCTION.

WILL be sold [illegible]

[illegible] BY ANTHONY FERNANDEZ.

ON Tuesday, October [illegible]

[illegible] BY J. A. BEARD & Co.

[illegible]

LATELY received [illegible]

HARDWARE AT COST [illegible] ALEXANDER [illegible]

TO RENT [illegible]

[illegible] L A LEVY, Jr. [illegible]

YORK DENIMS [illegible] L A LEVY, Jr. [illegible]

SHIRT BUTTONS [illegible] L A LEVY, Jr. [illegible]

[illegible] STETSON & AVERY, 66 Gravier st

[illegible]

RAPPORT [illegible]

[illegible]

NOMINATION [illegible]

[illegible]