BOARDING SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES.—MADAME GRANET, considers it incumbent upon her to give to the parents of her pupils, the following explanation, on account of some rumours that have been spread, and which have already but too materially injured the establishment which she has just opened.

Miss GRANET's recent marriage has led some persons to suppose that the School could no longer be maintained, and has prevented several from sending their children to it.—This fear, however, is so much the more groundless, as Miss Granet has never been entrusted but with the teaching of Piano, Singing and Drawing, which she has promised to continue to attend to, as before.

It is moreover generally said that Monsieur Granet is about to quit the town, and will soon cease to attend Made. Granet's establishment. It is very true that the Board of Directors of the Jefferson College have done Mr. Granet the honor of appointing him President of that College; but that appointment, dependent on particular circumstances, and consequently conditional, may not be realized. In the second place, admitting even that Mr. Granet's appointment should become permanent, the organization of the Jefferson College is not so forward as not to allow him to stay still several months more at New-Orleans before he repairs to his post. Lastly, when Mr. and Mrs. Granet opened their establishment, they had foreseen the event of Mr. Granet's obtaining the situation to which he has just been appointed, and for which he was then a candidate, and they had taken such measures as would prevent their school from being injured by Mr. Granet's retirement. Some persons, deserving in every respect, Made. Granet's confidence, and that of the parents of her pupils, have been written to and called over from Europe, so that if the establishment does not gain by the change, it will at least not lose by it.

Madame Granet again engages not to neglect the least thing to ensure to her establishment the confidence of the parents, and has every reason to believe that her pupils will continue to make the rapid progress which have already been observed, whether Mons. Granet leaves or not. [feb 7
