NEW-ORI FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1828.

Tomorrow, Good-Friday, the Ber will not be published.

We are authorized to announce that Mr. A. PEYORAUD is a candidate to the office of Mayor of the city of New-Orleans, at the ensuing election.

We are authorised to state, tha MA MANUEL FLEYTAS, will be a candidate at the mext election for the place of Recor-

From the N. Y. American. The Congress of the United States is still in session. We think it nedessary to state the fact thus emphatically, lest our readers, looking in vain for some evidence thereof in any public acts of discussions of general utility and interest, might suppose it had ad journed. This would be an error. I is still in session, and has now been sit ting upwards of three amonths, during which time some two or three approriation bills have been passed, and the administration, in all its acts and members, has been constantly, intemnérately, and undiscriminatingly assailed by the wouldbe's. The subject actually before the House of Represen thetives relates to the continuation of certain surveys ordered at previous sessions to be made in reference to canals and roads. Nothing else apparentely offering, upon which time might be wasted, and the government be upbraided, this topic has been seized upon, and the constitutional question lugged in by the cars, has furnished forth many period, by tedious orators to listless ears. Nothing in short is presented to the consideration of this enlightened body, that does not appear to be seized upon, as a medium of deingion from the merits of the adminis tration; and the rule of action seems so be, attack, vilify, abuse, with some show of reason if possible; but at, any rate, attack, vility, and abuse. On this head we find the following observations in a recent number of the National Journal:

· Were any new evidence required to show the disposition of the Jackson party in relation to internal improvements, it is to be found in the tone and tendency of the discussions of the last week, on the appropriation to continue the preparatory surveys, under the act of 1824. There appears to be a settled determination, in that party, to cut up, or cut down-we will not be fastidious es to the precise expression—every which has benefitted, pleased or honor. so the country. The attacks on the navy, on the army, through the milita ry academy, and now on the system of internal improvement, through the surveys, and the clearly indicated design to strike a blow at the manufactures Pourta avoir grand espoir de gugner us of the country, either by the refusal to grant protection, or by the enactment of Les hillets entiers sont à 6 piastres et a bill which will injure what it professes to protect, all show the existance of this anti-American and anti-Administration party. "Perish the institutions and interests of the country, so the present Administration may be made odious!" that is the motto and the policy of the party. It is admitted by ninerésidence doing le vante facal connu sons le nage tenths of the House, that the question de PRASCATA situé à un quart de mille que of constitutional power is not necessariche de fieuve. therefore, who have wested more than a week in discussing the clause, cannot find any justification in their conscientious scruples. More money has been taken out of the publishing the stury to pay for the time thus usersally expended, would have met the expenditures asked for on those surveys; and this uxcité populeure et floripante, sans être exposé à penditure of time and money has been micros des nombreux inconvéniens qu'elle pré- for no other purpose than so exince the

"I am aware [said Mr. C.] that our Hall should be preserved, with the utmost diligence and care. I am conscious that the massy heaps of documents upon our tables are sometimes, perhaps, throwminto confusion during worship; but, sir, this would be the least, pay, the last reason, which would influence me to vote for the proposition to exclude religious service from this House. Instead of having our documents (with a few exceptions) thrown into confusion, I would gladly see them thrown out of the House, as an evidence of my utter hostility to a systematic plan of predigality, which has obtained among us, in the printing of almost any and every thing: It is not my design to detain the House. I hope the motion to re-consider will prevail. I will cheerfully vote for the resolution in its original-shape, as I am not inclined to grant privileges in this House beyond the transaction of legislative business, and religious worship on the Sabbath. Without the latter provision, for it I never can, I never will vote.

Mr. Kremer argued thusthis Hall must be used for any other nient to sit in the Churches than in is it not a fact, that, when we come here ed for three days only. der ------ all occupied? He did not know of a single member athis own seat on the Sabbath. Large numbers of people were in the habit of attending; whether it was because there was better preaching here than elsewhere, he could not say; what their dotives were, he did not know. But this he knew, for the health of the members, the House ought to have been cleansed long since, and it was a well known fact, that more filth was brought into it on the Sabbath, that during the whole week. He had spoken for two weeks past of making a motion to adjourn over for a day, that the carpet might be taken up, and the dirt removed. He should vote against the reconsideration. He believed that all purposes of Religion could be as well Rended to in the Churches, as in this place. Did he believe it to be at all essential to the present or future hapnot oppose it."

[From a Paris Puper of the 31st Dec.] A singular occurrence took place on Friday, before the court of Assizes. M. Richerand, one of the principal surgeons of the capital, being absent when corrdor common to the lots Nos. 2 and 3. his name was called as a witness upon a case in which he attended the prosecutor for a wound he had received, the further hearing of the affair was postponed to the afternoon, and Mr. Richerand was fined 30fr. At the hour fixed ia the afternoon, Mr. Richerand aptendance, alleging that he had been de-trained at home by two important and urgent surgical operations. The court after a short deliberation, decided to press the fine, upon which Mr. Richerand exclaimed in a passionate tone: "This aborainable. The public shall judge of it." The President immedittely drew up a proces verbel, and the court retired into the council chamber. Upon its return to the bench, Advocate General Bayeux, after stating the facts of the case, called upon the court to apply the 222d article of the penul code, "What, are we now to be told that which pronounces imprisonment for the term of from two to five years surpose than that of Legislation?
