CITY PAPER, PUBLISHED DAILY, per annum, in advance, $12
COUNTRY PAPER, PUBLISHED TRI-WEEKLY. $10

"Truth is omnipotent, and Public Justice certain."

FOR GOVERNOR
HENRY JOHNSON,
Subject to the decision of the Whig State Convention.

NEW-ORLEANS:
TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 22 1840.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

We yesterday laid before our readers the last annual message of president VAN BUREN, which may be regarded as the expiring effort of locofocoism. As a state paper this document has no pretensions. It is an impotent attempt to justify the policy of the JACKSON-VAN BUREN administration, possessing neither statesmanship nor common candor—not to use a harsher expression. It is merely a party paper, and gives about as correct an idea of the real condition of this nation, its finances and diplomatic relations, as did the celebrated declaration of Gen'l JACKSON upon retiring from the Presidency, "I leave this great nation prosperous and happy." Scarcely had the ex-president reached the Hermitage before the speculative superstructure erected upon the policy of his administration toppled to the ground, and whelmed the whole country beneath its ruins.

The recent message of president VAN BUREN, we have said, gives a fallacious picture of the country in its most critical relations. The larger portion of it is consumed in discussing the fiscal affairs of government, in which the president takes occasion to extoll the sub-treasury and decry a national bank. Mr. VAN BUREN might have been excused in adhering to this bantling, deformed and rejected as it has been,—for a parent generally cleaves to a child the more it is ungainly to the rest of the world—had he not travelled into the regions of fable to find apparel to adorn its body.

That portion of the message which presents the fiscal condition of the United States to be in a healthy condition, is altogether seductive as time will show.—As to the beneficial operation of the sub-treasury, the president himself modestly intimates that it is premature to form a decided opinion upon so partial a trial of its merits, and informs congress that some amendments are necessary to be made in its organization. The people, however, have had enough of it. It is a singular fact, that upon the very day the sub treasury bill passed congress, a draft upon the collector of this port for 10,000 dollars was protested, stamping its birth with dishonor, and showing conclusively that however advantageous for office holders, the public at large could expect but little from it.

A considerable portion of the Message is devoted to the matter of a national debt, which is disposed of in an electioneering manner, with due observance of the prejudices of one class of citizens, which are sought to be excited against others. The matter of Treasury Notes is slurred over as though they were not evidences of debt as formidable to public liberty as the borrowing of money upon other securities—and more so, for the pill is gilded though the poison is equally deadly.

The president felicitates the National Legislature upon the punctuality with which the government has met all its obligations. Punctuality! Let the claimants upon the public treasury answer how punctual the administration has been! Let the holders of protested treasury drafts speak to this point! It has been estimated that the administration will go out of power leaving a balance of outstanding debts due and unpaid of over (30,000,000,) thirty million of dollars. There are persons in this city who have claims on government to nearly half a million. In every direction, and in almost every branch of the service there are complaints of the bad faith of government towards its agents. The office holders may be punctually paid, but the people are not.

In speaking of our diplomatic relations with Great Britain, the President confines his remarks to the Boundary Question, as if that was the only point in dispute between the two governments. The Message omits all mention of the seizure and liberation of slaves by British authorities in the West Indies, the property of citizens of the United States, forced into British ports by stress of weather, whilst navigating the high seas on lawful voyages. The settlement of this matter has become a serious concern to the Southern States, especially as an outrage of the same nature has recently been perpetrated upon American property, in the case of the Hermion—wrecked last fall near the Island of Abaco. The last advices left this subject in a most critical position;—the British government contending that no indemnity for slaves so seized and liberated subsequent to the act of Parliament abolishing slavery in the British West India Islands, could be granted. This decision assumes for Parliament the power to repeal the laws of nations, in relation to vessels and property navigating the ocean. An arrogant assumption which no State can submit to without a virtual abandonment of one of the highest duties of a sovereign power.

The remarks of the message upon the probable revenue and expenditures of the coming year, are so encumbered with ifs and buts, that they signify nothing. His Excellency, in effect, says: "that if the revenues come up to the estimates, and the expenditures do not exceed them, the Treasury will be able to discharge its duties without further aid from Congress." Of course it will be necessary to wait until the Secretary's report is received, before the estimate can be known, or the probable expenditure ascertained. His message has just enough light in it "to make darkness visible."

The general candor and fairness of this precious document, may be gathered from the following passages upon the all absorbing topic of a national bank:

If a national bank was, as is undeniable, repudiated by the framers of the constitution as incompatible with the rights of the states and the liberties of the people; if, from the beginning, it has been regarded by large portions of our citizens as coming in direct collision with the great and vital amendment of the constitution, which declares that all powers not conferred by that instrument on the general government are reserved to the states and to the people; if it has been viewed by them as the first great step in the march of latitudinous construction, which, unchecked, would render that sacred instrument of as little value as an unwritten constitution, dependent, as it would alone be for its meaning, on the interested interpretation of a dominant party, and affording no security to the rights of the minority;—if such is undeniably the case, what rational grounds could have been conceived for anticipating aught but determined opposition to such an institution at the present day?

Could a different result have been expected, when the consequences which have flowed from its creation and particularly from its struggles to perpetuate its existence, had confirmed, in so striking a manner, the apprehensions of its earliest opponents; when it had been so clearly demonstrated that a concentrated money-power, wielding so vast a capital, and combining such incalculable means of influence, may, in those peculiar conjunctures to which this Government is unavoidably exposed, prove an overmatch for the political power of the people themselves; when the true character of its capacity to regulate, according to its will and its interests, and the interests of its favorites the value of the labour and property of every man in this extended country, had been so fully and fearfully developed; when it was notorious that all classes of this great community had, by means of the power and influence it thus possesses, been infected to madness with a spirit of heedless speculation; when it had been seen that, secure in the support of the combination of influences by which it was surrounded, it could violate its charter, and set the laws at defiance with impunity; and when, too, it had become most apparent that to believe that such an accumulation of powers can ever be granted without the certainty of being abused, was to indulge in a fatal delusion?

The first sentence in this extract is positively untrue. Congress chartered a Bank of the United States during the first Presidency after the adoption of the Constitution; at a time too when many of the framers of that instrument were members of one or other branch of the National Legislature. Genl. WASHINGTON, signed the charter. Does it become Mr. VAN BUREN to say that the unconstitutionality of a law passed by such a congress, and approved by the Father of his country is "undeniably unconstitutional"? It seems to be a cherished object with the party of which Mr. VAN BUREN is the head to detract from the hallowed deeds of the revolution. It was not long since we were told that a number of the patriots of the revolution were stimulated by selfish unworthy passions to assert and maintain the liberties of America, and now a law passed by a congress containing a number of those patriots and signed by WASHINGTON himself is stigmatised as "undeniably unconstitutional."—What will posterity think of a party that would put Mr. VAN BUREN'S patriotism, public services and judgment in the scales with GENL. WASHINGTON? Mr. MADISON too, the Father of the Constitution, approved the charter of the last U. S. Bank. Cannot his name rescue the measure from such unqualified condemnation? One would suppose that the unconstitutionality of a law approved by both WASHINGTON and MADISON was at least deniable.

But the remainder of the extract is known to be [illegible] to every man of observation. Passing over the declamation and the two paragraphs—which has become stale in the [illegible]—when the U. S. Bank existed [illegible] charter, [illegible] not every man know that during its existence under the law of Congress [illegible] suspended specie payments. Then congress had no control over it. It was the creature of Pennsylvania and is indebted to her for its life and its existence now. As a State Bank congress could do nothing with it. Had its charter been renewed by congress, an argument drawn from its suspension might have some weight. As it is, such reasonings are fallacious—worse than fallacious—they are deceptions practiced upon the people which no president should stoop to use.

We have given a hasty sketch of the message. There are parts of it which require special consideration. It is locofoco out and out, shallow in reasoning, false in part, and deprecating in tone of the verdict of the great inquest of the nation which will consign the writer on the 4th March next to the shades of private life, whence it would have been well for the people had he never emerged.

MRS. FARREN.

This lady takes her benefit this evening at the American theatre. Her play-bill is excellent, and of itself merits a crowded audience. But Mrs. FARREN has strong claims upon the generous sympathies of the New-Orleans public. She has been in a manner reared and educated among us. She made her début before the people of this city, and from them first received that judicious encouragement and liberal applause which have stimulated her to persevere in an arduous career, in which her sterling merit has at length elicited the encomiums which were at first the tribute rather of her exertions than her success.

Mrs. FARREN deserves recompense from another and a rarer merit. She is ever willing to assume any character which may be assigned to her. In all she strives equally to please. She knows nothing of the petty heartburnings and jealousies that so commonly exist in her profession. In a dutchess or a dairy-maid; in a queen or a peasant; in the deepest tragedy and the broadest farce, she toils equally to win our approbation. "Her hearts 's in her vocation."

Private character has perhaps little to do with histrionic excellence; but it is something in a profession where it is generally supposed that female delicacy cannot live unharmed, to preserve purity of character and to maintain a claim to our respect. This has been eminently the case with Mrs. FARREN: "As a wife—a mother—in every relation of life, she wins our esteem and challenges our admiration."

STEAMBOAT ACCIDENT AND LOSS OF LIFE.

We regret to learn another steamboat accident accompanied with loss of life. The mail steam-packet Walker, bound to Mobile, burst her boiler on Sunday when within nine miles of that place. By this accident four persons were hurled overboard and killed, and nine others wounded. Among the latter is our estimable fellow-citizen JAMES H. CALDWELL, who was scalded severely, but not dangerously. The Courier of last evening reports seven persons killed.

SUPPOSED APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT.

John C. Calhoun, receiver of public moneys for the district of Somerset.

John H. Prentiss, receiver of public moneys for the district of Federalism.

Dr. Alexander Duncan, expounder of southern, principles in northern men.

F. W. Pickens, inspector general of "galvanised corpses."

David Hanegan, dictator to the legislature of South Carolina.

Rob't C. Wickliffe, agent for the use of private lands in the town of Auburn.

James K. Polk, chief keeper of the "roaring Lion."

John Forsyth, receiver of public moneys for the district of retirement.

Thomas Ritchie, collector of the port of consistency—(see Richmond Enquirer, in 1813 and 1840).

John A. Stewart, surgeon at Kinderhook, (this gentleman has discovered a method of making MERCURY work BOTH ways.)

LONGEVITY.—There is a man living in Greenfield township, Galia county, Ohio, by the name of JAMES RICE, who was 116 years old on the 24th day of April last. He is said to be vigorous and in good health, and has every appearance of living many years to come.

The county of Rockingham, Va., contains 1,394 persons who can neither read nor write. This county gave 1,150 loco-foco majority at the presidential election. We don't wonder at it now.

NOT BAD.—The Log Cabin says—The town of Eden, Vermont, gave 66 votes for Harrison and none for Van Buren. The serpent of locofocoism has not wormed his way into it.

TENNESSEE is represented in the senate of the U. States by two locofocos who profess to believe in and follow the doctrine of instruction. Their state has given 12,000 whig majority. Will they resign.

There are no less than fifteen names of prominent individuals mentioned in the papers, as candidates for the whig nomination of Governor of Pennsylvania.

General HARRISON was born on the 9th February, 1774. He will therefore be 67 years of age in February next.

The trial of Wm. M. Price, late District Attorney, of New York, has been deferred till the Spring term.

The mercury in the thermometer was 11 degrees below Zero at Augusta, Maine, about two weeks ago.

SPIRIT OF THE LOCOFOCO PRESS.

BLARNEY BEFORE ELECTION.—Dear people! nobody but we can imagine how pure, patriotic, shrewd and sagacious you are! You can't be humbugged! You can't be misled! You always see right straight through a millstone, whether there's a hole in it or not. You are always as right as a book, and nobody can gum you. In short, you are O. K.

RAVING AFTER ELECTION.—You miserable, despicable, know-nothing, good-for-nothing rascals!—Bought up by British gold! Led away by Log Cabin fooleries! Gummed by coon-skins! Blinded by skunk-skins! Dead drunk on Hard Cider! Senseless, beastly, contemptible wretches! Go to the devil!

THE ALBION.—The enterprising proprietor of this admirable periodical has announced among the plates to be issued in the course of the forthcoming year the portrait of WASHINGTON. This is an American subject, and is offered as a tribute to the memory of American subscribers of the work. The editor makes the following very liberal and just observations in connexion with this matter.

The events of the Revolution have now become matter of history, and are too far removed from the present time to allow of the continuance of hostile feelings on either side. The one great nation has become two—the independence of the offspring has been acknowledged by the parent, and they meet upon the great theatre of the world on terms of equality and friendship. Situated as they are, they have a mutual interest in promoting each other's prosperity—by peace they gain every thing, by war they lose all. The interests of no two nations upon the globe are so intimately blended, and it is impossible to injure one without inflicting a blow upon the other. In blood, in language, in laws and institutions, the two people are still one, and the only difference that the philosophic philanthropist can discover between them is, that the government of one is at London and the other at Washington.

Such being the relative position of the two countries it behoves every virtuous citizen of both to promote and inculcate to the best of his abilities, peace, harmony, and reciprocal good will.

In our humble labors, which have now continued upwards of eighteen years, it has ever been our aim to cherish and promote these sentiments, and we think that the engraving we now design to present to our American friends will be conducive to the same end. The plate will be produced as soon as practicable, and will be superior to occasion to any that we have yet offered to our readers.

THE GOOD CLOTHES OF THE WHIGS.—Almost every day, we see some Whig acquaintance dressed out in a bran new suit of clothes, from the boots on his feet, of the very best quality, to a fine beaver hat on his head. We began to reprove our acquaintances for becoming dandies, but the only answer we could get, is, that it is the work of the loco-focos, and that as they thus dress them up, they don't know how they can help appearing thus fine.

The State of Pennsylvania, we suspect, has been the means of giving a hat, or a coat, or a pair of boots, at least to about two thirds of the Whigs of the city, for almost every one of our acquaintances seems to be sporting some article of dress he has won upon that State. The delusion of our loco-foco fellow citizens upon that State, was complete and general, for those of them who put no faith upon the New Era or Evening Post, trusted to the Journal of Commerce, which, in its efforts to save New York for Van Buren, was quite particular to give that Pennsylvania, till after the New York and New England elections.—New York Express

[COMMUNICATED.]

At a period when every exertion seems necessary to bring within our control the resources we have from a natural creation, without paying a tribute to northern cities, it behoves every well wisher of New Orleans to set his part up to his knowledge and capacity. With such feelings I beg leave to lay before the public one branch of industry entirely neglected, and yet very easily within our reach. It is that of manufacturing our corn into meal—that same corn we now receive from the Western States, ready to Northern cities, pay freights, commission, heavy charges, and often suffer from damages. The question may be, where is the market? The West Indies in general, but most particularly the Danish West India Islands, of which St. Croix alone consumes 9,000 puncheons each of 800 lbs. nett. The next question is, can it be manufactured in New Orleans as cheap and as good as in Philadelphia? This must be left to more experience. My opinion is, it can. 15 bushels of corn will make 800 lbs. meal; the average cost of corn, we will say, is [illegible] 90 cents. $7 50 which, as the proportion corn at Philadelphia bears to our market, would cost $16. What the cost of kiln-drying and grinding would be, must be left to those who reflect upon this enterprise.

The last and most serious obstacle would appear—the freight on it, which in all cases must be higher from here than from Northern cities. I wish to remove it by apprising the community that the Danish ships which now lay idle for six months in the year, at the Island, will be very glad to come for it themselves, take it to their own account, or for the shipper, at a low price; and finally, that a capital is particularly raised in the Island of St. Croix in aid of the undertaking.

It would, perhaps, also appear that the enterprise could be accomplished better and cheaper in Western cities. This is unlikely. The freight down, the damage done to puncheons, etc., must be outright and perfectly clean shipped, forbidding it.

Editors of other papers will please notice this subject, and further information can be had from the writer through the editors of the Bee.
