Edward of four hundred dollars is offered by the Executive of Georgia for the apprehension of James May, George May, and Solomon Jackson, charged with the murder of James Y. Young, of Carroll county.

A letter from Augusta to a gentleman in Savannah, speaking of the duel between Col. Henry G. Nixon, and Maj. Thomas Hopkins, near Camden in the State of Georgia, says: "Col. N. was the challenged party. At the word fire," Col. N. advanced rapidly about two paces and fired without effect; and then received the fire of his antagonist, who retained his first stand. It was not at all evident that he was struck for two or three seconds, when in raising the reserve pistol into his left hand and endeavoring to present it, he suddenly fell on or two paces from the spot, dropped upon his back, and expired instantly without a struggle or a groan. Six armfuls of powder were the first evidence of his death, and his death, which was fully heard before the nearest persons could reach him. Mr. Hopkins immediately crossed the river, and the body of the deceased was carried to the city, to be taken from thence to his residence for interment.

Thus unfortunately, perishes, under a total loss of honor, a man of mind and talent, young, and who had been ready to sacrifice himself for the good of his country. He was a resident of Camden, S. C. had received a finished education: was an eloquent orator, a polished scholar, a highly promising statesman, and a man of entire integrity and heart. He was a gentleman, and as you will recollect, the subject of that beautiful and beautiful address by Lafayette, delivered on the 15th of March, 1829, on the occasion of his visit to this country, and which was so highly and so justly commended by the French Emperor.

of suspension, Count Heiden, the Russian Admiral, a few days since, asked permission of the Governor to land 4000 troops to assist, but the latter refused it. An idea was entertained that his object was to take possession of the fort, which would not have been difficult with such a force. So unexpected were the orders to the Russian Admiral to land his troops, and so suspicious of that measure being opposed by the French and English Admirals, particularly as it was announced at the moment that the forts were undergoing the annual inspection, and the guns and carriages were put in order, added to the sudden arrival of the Spartiate and Windsor Castle, that he considered his squadron would be attacked; or prevented from proceeding to sea; and so strong was this impression on his mind, that he officially applied to the Governor of Malta to be informed if he had received any orders to obstruct the sailing of his ships. He was much surprised at learning that the Windsor Castle and Spartiate were coming out, and asking and learning what was their weight of metal on the main deck, he observed that we should then have as great a force as he had. The aspect of affairs here is gloomy, every one regarding the blockade as a proceeding likely to embroil us with the Russian squadron.

From the Suiens Gazette.
From Antwerp.—We are indebted to Capt. Dean, of the ship Catharine, arrived at this port on Saturday last for a file of the Journal D'Anvers to Nov. 21.

Much excitement seems to prevail in the Netherlands on the subject of the liberty of the press, which was to be discussed in one of the legislative bodies of that State. The Antwerp Journal, of Nov 21, says: "The attacks directed against the liberty of the press, which occupy all minds and rise to a crowd of conjectures." The Ministers of State are said to be divided in opinion, some being disposed to lay every restriction possible upon the press, while others are willing to grant it a reasonable degree of liberty.

A Brussels article, dated Nov. 19, says, "In a few days the discussion of the proposition of Mr. de Brouckere will take place in the Second Chamber, and in all probability the liberty of the press will be saved there from the attempts of power, and extricated from the worse than precarious state to which recent persecutions have reduced it."

TANGIERS.—The disagreement which led to the seizure of Mr. Douglas the consul, arose, it is said, out of a personal squabble, and was not in the least connected with any public grounds. The consul is represented as having for some time been at variance with the local authorities, and it is added, that his recall has long been solicited. The Emperor was at Morocco, and shortly expected at Mogadore. He has not been at Tangiers for some time, nor was it thought that his annual tour would extend so far this season. The arrest was considered as the act of the Pacha, and not authorized by a superior order.

From a London Paper.
 One of the most interesting trotting matches ever known in the sporting world has been made at the One Tun, Jersey street, St. James's London, between parties of great respectability, the one a merchant, and the other well known on the turf. The following is extracted from the articles: "One Tub, Jersey street, St. James's November 24. That Mr. A. bets Mr. B. 1500/ to 500/ that he (Mr. B.) does not find a horse to trot four miles in twelve minutes in harness. Second, Mr. A. bets Mr. B. 1500/ to 500/ he does not find a horse to trot four miles in twelve minutes and a half in harness. Third, Mr. A. bets Mr. B. 500/ to 500/ he does not find a horse to trot four miles in thirteen minutes in harness. Mr. B. to give Mr. A. one week's notice of the day and place, and the watches to come off within 100 miles of London." Should Mr. B.'s horse succeed in winning these bets, the feat will be unparalleled in the history of horse flesh. If he win the first, he will, of course, win the second, and the chance of the third.

Another match was made last week against time. One gentleman betted a another 200/ to 100/ that he did not find a horse to trot 100 miles in 1 hour and a half. Four months ago he was to trot 100 miles in 1 hour and a half.
