NEW-ORLEANS:
WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 26, 1844.

CLAY CLUB.
The members of the CLAY CLUB will meet at their room, 25 Exchange Place, every evening this week—Whigs generally are invited to attend.

C. C. WILLIAMS, } Secretaries.
J. DAVID, }
J. R. VIENNE, }

GRAND WHIG RALLY IN THE THIRD MUNICIPALITY.
The Whigs will assemble in Mass Meeting at the RAILROAD DEPOT, on Friday evening, 28th inst., at half-past 7 o'clock.

Several of the Candidates will address their fellow citizens.

TAX RECEIPTS.
Those Whigs who have not received their Tax Receipts can obtain them by applying at the Clay Club Room any day this week, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 3 P. M.

☞ In the course of the remarks made by RASHELL HUNT, Esq., before the whig meeting at Banks' Arcade, he took occasion to allude upon the whigs in forcible and eloquent language, the necessity of unanimity, zeal and concert of action. He adverted to the Congressional election and called upon the whigs of the Second Municipality to rally manfully to the support of BARON G. THEBODAUX, of whose talents, capacity, information and sterling whig principles he spoke in terms of high encomium. The observations of Mr Hunt were doubly creditable to his genuine whig spirit, and magnanimity of character. Mr H. was one of Mr Theobodaux's competitors for the Congressional honors, but the success of their gentlemanly rivalry renders Mr Hunt the more serious for a whig triumph. Those who know Rashell Hunt's mind and heart, are well aware that they are no abiding places for other than generous emotions and chivalrous principles.

THE RIVER.—Accounts from Memphis and Vicksburg are alarming enough. The Memphis Enquirer of the 20th says:—The river opposite this city has risen about 14 inches since 6 o'clock last evening, and is still rising fast; it has again reached the pavement on Front street, above Myrtle, and six inches more would lead it into a number of houses between Myrtle and Spruce street.

The Vicksburg Whig of Saturday, states that the river is about as high as in 1828, and is only a few inches below the level of the lower floor of the brick stores at the landing, and is still rising. The levee in the bend above Vicksburg is expected to break every moment. Most of the plantations between that town and the mouth of the Arkansas are overflowed. The damage will be incalculable. The loss on the cotton crop, says the Whig, cannot be less than 40,000 bales.

The Natchez Free Trader, of the 22d, says the river now sets fairly before the present, and speaking plainly the German tongue, as proved by Mrs. Schuber. Upon this point, I will remark, that I am guided by the numerous and respectable witnesses of the defendant, and that I put out of view the evidence of ——— and Wood, witnesses of plaintiff as being entitled to no credit, from the contradictions and absurdities which their deposition contain; as also, from irreconcilable variance from the evidence of all the witnesses of the defendant.

In further consideration of the view that I have taken of this question of identity, I may add—

1st. The circumstance that the plaintiff is proved to have been brought to bed of a child in 1825, which is inconsistent with the supposition of her only having been three years of age in 1818.

In conclusion, I must say, that plaintiff has failed to prove any of the averments of her petition.

As to the averment that John F. Miller purchased the family of Redemptionists mentioned in the petition, that indeed, is distinctly and positively disproved. At the same time, I must admit, that the relatives of said family of Redemptionists seem to be very firmly convinced of the identity which the plaintiff claims. Their conviction, however sincere, are no reasons for declaring the plaintiff free, in the face of so many cogent presumptions to the contrary. It has come to my knowledge out of Court, that subscriptions have been made among the German population, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of this suit.

There is no impropriety in my alluding to this matter, since the counsel of plaintiff has dwelt very strenuously upon the argument of public opinion, belief and sympathy; as however, it is quite out of the question to take away a man's property upon grounds of this sort, I would suggest that the friends of the plaintiff, if he really convinced of the justice of her pretensions, should make an effort to settle a Lampsiple with the defendant, who has honestly and fairly paid his money for them. They would doubtless, find him well disposed to part on reasonable terms, with a slave, from whom he can scarcely expect any service, after what has passed.

Judgment—Reversing the suit with costs.

☞ Peter Miller, Patrick McMahon and Andrew Vaughan, were arrested yesterday, by the officers of the Second Municipality, on charges of larceny. They will be examined this morning before Recorder Baldwin.

☞ Denis Hennigan and Michael Finney, were yesterday sentenced by Recorder Baldwin to thirty days confinement in the Workhouse under the vagrant law.

☞ Constantine McBarron, was yesterday sent before the Criminal Court for trial, by Recorder Genois. He is charged with stealing a pair of cushions from a carriage, on the previous evening, in St. Louis street.

CRIMINAL COURT.—Henry Hagan was yesterday tried on a charge of assault and battery and acquitted.

Henry Burns, charged with assault and battery, was yesterday tried and found guilty.

Simon Edwards, convicted of robbery under the same indictment with John Nisbett, and to whom a new trial was granted, was discharged from custody, it being impossible to procure the attendance of the principal witness against him, on the part of the State.

The trial of Horace St. John, for uttering false accountable receipts, was postponed until Saturday next.

Amy Jones, f. w. c., for insulting a white person, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

R. J. Josephs, indicted for larceny, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

The trial of D. J. Adams has been indefinitely postponed.

☞ The NORTHERN MAIL failed yesterday from beyond Charleston.

☞ The river here, was last evening 14 feet 10 inches above low water mark, and is as high as it was in the year 1840. The water is running over the Levee opposite the head of Race street, in the Second Municipality, but not to an extent to create any serious alarm.

The only danger to be apprehended and that is serious, is the breaking of the Levee between the city and Carrollton.

☞ Our thanks are due the clerk of the steamer Lodi for very late Attakapas papers.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.—Some time since our planters were complaining of the drought, but it is now passed over for the well being of the crops. Showers have been of late too frequent and heavy, and have prevented the tilling of the earth, which is now covered with grass.

This state of things is really deplorable, but should the weather soon become favorable, the season may be saved, for, during the above drought, the cotton stalk grew rapidly, and if the season should prove favorable to the ripening, we shall not yet despair of making a equal out of the crops, provided they will. Cotton, we believe, suffers less, and is better for it.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

DISTRICT COURT.—His Honor Judge Buchanan presiding.

In the case of Sally Miller alias Müller, vs. Louis Belmonte and John J Miller in warranties, for her freedom and 10,000 damages, the Court yesterday delivered its opinion, decreeing judgment in favor of the defendants. The following are the REASONS FOR JUDGMENT.

The plaintiff alledges that she is wrongfully held in slavery by defendant; that she is free and white; that she was born of Bavarian parents, who emigrated to this place about the year 1817, the plaintiff being then about three years of age; that she, with the rest of her family, consisting of her father, a brother and a sister, were sold or bound to service as Redemptioners, to one John F. Miller, who took them to Attakapas; that her father having died, Mr. Miller kept petitioner as his slave, and sold her as such to defendant. The plaintiff further expressly charges that the defendant well knew at the time he purchased her of John F. Miller, that she was free, as the fact was a matter of common notoriety that the plaintiff had been illegally reduced to slavery.

The evidence shows that plaintiff always passed for a slave until about a year ago; at which time one Madame Karl, since deceased, discovered, or imagined, an identity between the plaintiff and a female child that arrived at this place as passenger on board of a Dutch vessel, in March, 1818.

This supposed discovery of Madame Karl is the origin of the present suit. The relations of the female emigrant in question, several of whom are still living in and about New Orleans, immediately recognized the resemblance, and claimed the plaintiff as their kinswoman. It is this point of identity which I have to determine.

The evidence satisfies me that on the 6th of March 1818, there arrived at the Balize a vessel under the Dutch flag, with a number of passengers on board, among whom was one Daniel Miller or Muller, with his three children, two daughters and one son. The youngest of these children was named Sally or Solome, and was aged at the time of her arrival, about three years. Upon this point of the age of the child, the witnesses do not entirely agree. It may, however, be safely assumed, from all the testimony, that she was not more than three years of age, at the time of her arrival in New Orleans. She was born in the neighborhood of Strasburgh, in the Department of the Lower Rhine, in France.

The witnesses who accompanied Daniel Miller and his family across the Atlantic, lost sight of them immediately after their arrival. It appears that these emigrants were what was called Redemptioners, that is to say, their services for a limited time were sold, in order to pay for their passage. The evidence goes to show that Daniel Miller and his family went to Attakapas or Opelousas, within a few weeks after their arrival, in the service of some person; but who that person was, it did not show. One very important fact is however shown to my entire satisfaction by the evidence, which is, that it could not have been John F. Miller, the owner, who bought the services of the German family in question.

At this point my lose sight of the little German girl who came over from Amsterdam, as above related. It appears certain that she left town with her father, bound for Attakapas, in the Spring of 1818. She is supposed to have been re discovered, some 25 years afterwards in the person of a slave of the defendant, living below New Orleans, the present plaintiff. The supposed identity is based upon two circumstances:

1st, A striking resemblance of the plaintiff to the child above mentioned, and to the family of that child.

2d, Two certain marks, or moles, on the inside of the thighs, (one on each thigh) which marks are similar in the child and in the woman.

This resemblance and these marks are proved by several witnesses; are they sufficient to justify me in declaring the plaintiff to be identical with the German child in question?

I answer this question in the negative. My reasons are:

First—That there is no showing whatever to my understanding, but that the child of Daniel Miller, is still existing in Attakapas, whither she was carried by her father.

Second—That the age of the two individuals does not correspond. The plaintiff is traced back in Miller's possession as a slave, to the year 1822, at which time she was about the age that is inconsistent with the supposition of the identity contended for.

Third—That the plaintiff gave in various persons, at that remote period, an account of herself which is totally at variance with the origin claimed for her.

Fourth—That so far back as the years 1822, 1823 and 1824, when defendant's witnesses spoke of plaintiff as having known her for the first time in John F. Miller's service, there was no trace, in plaintiff, of her origin, as there would have been, if she had arrived here in 1818, of an acquaintance, at least, with the language, and she thought in her sleep, as proved by Mrs. Schuber. Upon this point, I will remark, that I am guided by the numerous and respectable witnesses of the defendant, and that I put out of view the evidence of ——— and Wood, witnesses of plaintiff as being entitled to no credit, from the contradictions and absurdities which their deposition contain; as also, from irreconcilable variance from the evidence of all the witnesses of the defendant.

In further consideration of the view that I have taken of this question of identity, I may add—

1st. The circumstance that the plaintiff is proved to have been brought to bed of a child in 1825, which is inconsistent with the supposition of her only having been three years of age in 1818.

In conclusion, I must say, that plaintiff has failed to prove any of the averments of her petition.

As to the averment that John F. Miller purchased the family of Redemptionists mentioned in the petition, that indeed, is distinctly and positively disproved. At the same time, I must admit, that the relatives of said family of Redemptionists seem to be very firmly convinced of the identity which the plaintiff claims. Their conviction, however sincere, are no reasons for declaring the plaintiff free, in the face of so many cogent presumptions to the contrary. It has come to my knowledge out of Court, that subscriptions have been made among the German population, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of this suit.

There is no impropriety in my alluding to this matter, since the counsel of plaintiff has dwelt very strenuously upon the argument of public opinion, belief and sympathy; as however, it is quite out of the question to take away a man's property upon grounds of this sort, I would suggest that the friends of the plaintiff, if he really convinced of the justice of her pretensions, should make an effort to settle a Lampsiple with the defendant, who has honestly and fairly paid his money for them. They would doubtless, find him well disposed to part on reasonable terms, with a slave, from whom he can scarcely expect any service, after what has passed.
