

NEW YORK JOURNAL
PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY JEROME BAYON, DELAUP & CO.

NEW-ORLEANS,
MONDAY (CONTINUED.) NOVEMBER 1, 1839.

— To-day being All-Saints' Day, the BEST will not be published to-morrow.

The Editor so long expected, at New-Orleans on Friday, — who left Havre on the 6th Sept., and brings news from that place and Paris of the 7th. We received by this arrival evidence to that date, and we hasten to place before our readers several extracts.

The new French government has been officially recognized by England. A Prussian messenger arrived at Paris, charged probably with the same mission. It seems that Russia will be contrary to this, the ambassador of that nation has made known to all the subjects of his master Nicholas, the origin of leaving France, for incurring the displeasure of his master.

On the 1st September, Prince Orange had returned from Brussels, where order had not been restored since the last events. The Prince has been received with distinction by the ministers, who had demanded that they should leave the flag of the Republic before England; but the chief of the people having refused this, he did not interrupt it, and the same day, at 5 o'clock, he published in the city a pretty favorable proclamation. The Prince instantly established a commission composed of Duke d'Ussel, Vender Fosse, governor of the province of Brussels, E. Vandervelde, d'Hoogvorst, Gen. d'Amblaine, Knockert, duke of Arenberg, and Stevens, a member of the regency.

This committee charged with proposing the most advantageous measures for the re-establishment of order, assembled on the 2d of Sept., at 9 o'clock in the morning, under the presidency of the duke d'Ussel. The King is in the best disposition; when the deputation from the city of Liege was presented to him, it is affirmed that he answered him who first spoke, as follows: "I would rather change 20 minutes than see a single drop of blood flow from my people." This answer will not be lost for history.

Tranquillity has been disturbed at Nimes, and blood was shed. At Toulon a conspiracy was stoped by the authorities. It is probable that the troops that left Lyons will suffice to restore order at Nimes, and make the bloody fanatics of that city tremble.

A great number of workers, trades, and fatal results were apprehended; those men wish to destroy all such machines that shorten labor in certain professions, under the pretense that this prevents their getting a livelihood. Some writers in France delight in discord, and by their writings contribute to excite that movements among the people; much evil is to be apprehended from them, if they do not cease their un-justizia. But the majority of the people has a confident confidence in the government which is plainly justified.

The National gives news from Algiers of the 23d August. M. de Boarmont on the notice of the Committee to give a private house built by one of the ancients Deyas. The Duke of Ussel on hearing the news of the French revolution taketh his flight to Cardenas. The army is in the most critical situation; the troops that form

the expedition of Bonaparte, retreat to Algiers, and most all of them act in the same manner.

The insolence of the Arabs is at its height.

The Day of Tenty has threatened Bourmont to arm and attack him with 200,000 men. But this is altogether bragging.

The National of the 6th contains the following: "It is announced that 2,000 inhabitants of Liege arrived on the 3d at Brussels, carrying with them a great quantity of arms for the defenders of that city. The Prince of Orange had left town."

By the arrival of the steamboat Atlantic, we informed that on Sunday morning, 17th inst., the steamer Leopoldine on her passage from St. Louis to this place, struck a snag on her larboard quarter and sank instantly. She was loaded with lead and produce and had thirty two passenger, to whom no accidents happened; boat and cargo entirely lost. Here follows the name of the passengers:

Mrs. W. E. Mug, J. Gilligan, A. Mad,

C. Chapman, D. Murphy, J. C. Barry, S. B.

Tyne, W. H. Baker, U. S. army, N. Sharp,

T. J. Brown, E. H. Coulkin, A. McCullum,

L. Nelson, T. Cleaven, H. Marks, F. Morrow,

R. P. Blair, J. C. Carey, A. Albert, G. Cross,

U. S. army, James Heppell, S. Cross, N.

M. Wiley, A. Scott, J. Dougherty, J. Mull,

H. James, J. Fletcher, B. Owsine, W. Kirsh,

T. Whiting and C. Green Stephen.

The New-York Standard states, that on the 15th instant, when the adjournment in the duty on Molesworth took effect, six vessels entered Portobello, whose joint cargoes amounted to $1222 cords of Molesworth. The difference in the amount of duty in $1,000.

Appointments by the President.

J. M. MAXWELL, to be Collector of the Revenue for the District, and Inspector of the Revenue for the Port of Harwick, in the State of Connecticut, vice Alexander Netherclift, deceased.

John M. PAINTER, to be Naval Officer for the District of Boston and Charleston, in the State of Massachusetts, vice John P. Boyd, deceased.

From the Advertiser Journal.

The Richmond Whig publishes the following communication, and expresses a belief that it is well placed:

"A New-York paper has suggested that Gen. Jackson will not be a candidate at the next election. All a mistake, and the writer of this has given nothing in declination to it—so—and he has no right for saying forever that Mr. Van Buren will be a candidate for the Vice-Presidency—and this arrangement has been concluded between him and Gen. Jackson. This is the end of their election. General Jackson is shortly thereafter to receive his share of the nomination, and then Mr. Van Buren, or Vice-President, is to receive the nomination of the general."

The position in which this statement is placed, gives it a certain air of probability.

But it is to be noted by Whig, the communication proceeds on a sense of responsibility, the manner in which the matter is variously represented.

A short time ago, in the Advertiser Journal, it was reported that which he intended, will be considered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he intended to go to the election, will be con-

sidered as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency."

He has however, in his statement, in which he inten-