NEW-ORLEANS. THURSDAY (MORNING,) DECRMBER 16, 1830.

To-day commences a new organization of this comblishment. One of the late proprietors having sold his interest in THE BEE. is exceeded therein by the purchaser, -an American gendeman, herstofore imconnected with the stablishmeni.

The form has been enlarged, and the paper appears in a new dress. It will henceforth be printed with an English and French side, and, is is hoped, will afford a desirable medium to merchants, and others, who may wish to publish their advertisements in those languages.

It is designed especially to be a commercial paper; and as such, will be devoted to the best I and what we all wish is, that the public peace interests of this community.

Arrangements have been already made for the purpose of extending our correspondence, and to enable us to obtain the earliest informacities of the Union. Our exchange is ample,comprehending all the most valuable newspapers printed in the various sections of the United States. No pains or diligence will be spared, but the utmost vigilance and industry shall be valuable to its patrons, and in all respects what a commercial paper should be.

But although our attention will be mainly directed to commercial objects, domestic and foreign news, and miscellany, it is not to be understood that the discussion of political topics will be excluded from ourcolumns. In regard to the concerns of government, whether municipal, local or general, we hold that every intelligent man, in this country, has an opinion: and we believe that every honest Editor will freely express his own, be the consequences what they may. If he neglects to do so, he fails to and duties; for in the free publication of his opinions and sentiments consists the very essence of his vecation.

It is well known to those who have heretofore been renders of THE BEE, that the conductors of a were opposed to the election of the present Chief Mag state of the United States. They have - - mily opposed his measures as additional, and in this respect, no change Line will take place, but with a charge of the pode with has given rise to their apposition. V. Lavo ev r regarded - perul Jackson sa unfo for may it, por ant civil office. We have he dour reasons for thinking so; which we shall continue the which from time to time. We believe them to be sufficient. Who shall be his successor in office. (for we hope he will have one at no disthe whole people of the United States to decide. We have, however, an opinion on that subject, which shall be submitted in due time.

While we shall thus give utterance to our own respect for the opinions of others, who may happen to think differently from us. We will publish nothing for mere party purposes; nor shall deration and decency.

We are all Americans.

*We use the term American, in order to distinguish between citizens of different origin, who, as it is well known, compose the popula-tion of this city, and of the state of Louisians.

FRANCE.

From the Messager des Chambres Oct. 21. Yesterday evening crowds again assembled in the courts of the Palais Royal, uttering the same offended all good citizens. The courts were Palace, and the same cries were contined. In universal indignation.

In the meanwhile the National Guards dispercurried fire arms, and others sticks. On their arrival at Vincennes they required that the ex-Ministers should be given up to them. His Mujesty was desirous of testifying his saisfaction at the firm, vigilant, and devoted conduct which they manifested during the afternoon of yesterday, and the whole of the night.

Scarcely had his Majesty appeared in the court when the crowd collected round him. Cries of "Vive le Roil" were heard on all sides; and such were the acclamations, that his Majorty had some difficulty in procuring silence.

The King delivered the following address to the National Guard on foot: "My Dear Comrades,-I come to thank you for the seal you displayed last night in maintaining the public tranquility, and in preserving the Palais Royal from a band of senseless, agitators, whose ridiculous attemps will fall upon themsel ves by means of the good spirit and the promptitude with which you have repressed them. What may cease to be troubled by the enemics of that real liberty and of those institutions which France has conquered, and which can alone preserve us from anarchy and all its concomitant evils. It is time to put a stop to this deplorable tion, from the best sources, in all the principal agitation; it is time that the maintenance of all kinds of oil: Greenland is £42 to 44. The public order should restore confidence; that that confidence should bring back its activity to commerce, and secure to every one the free exercise of all the rights which it is the duty of the Government to protect and to guarantee. With your concurrence, with your patriotism, exerted by us, to make the paper interesting and and with the assistance of the respectable General and the brave Marshal, whom I rejoice at all times to see beside me, we shall accomplish this noble task. The result of the Davis' Straits Fisheries has been most unfortunate, eighteen ships totally lost, and the remaining seventy-two had taken only ninety-seven fish, or about 3,000 tons oil. The usual quantity has been 12,000 tons; the consequence has been an advance of £6 to 7 per ton on stocks are very low, and a further advance is looked for. The German ports have usually taken 3 to 4009 tons of oil from this country. Tallow has advanced to 38s. 6d.
