"The people were sincere, if their leaders vere not. General Jackson was sincere, if some of his supporters were not."

The application of the above paragraphs is not to be mistaken. Mr. McDuffie, the acknowledged leader of the Calhoun party, is the gentleman, who, "previous to the late presidential election," brought forward a bill, to take the election from the House of Representatives; and he and Cathoun are here charged with having had no other object in view than to defeat Mr. Adams. They are accused by Van Buren's organ, of keeping their old amendment back, in order, that, it there should be no choice in the electoral coilieges, Mr. Calhoun may avail Limself of that 'contingency," to secure his own election, over Mr. Van Buren, in the House of Representa-

It is not anti-republican-

"We regret that room should be given for suspicion. But what can the people think? Were they not told before the last presidential election, that their constitution ought to be so amended as to give them the election of their two highest magistrates, and take it in any cvent from Congress? Has not General Jack-son twice recommended it! Has any member of Congress deigned to say one word in his place, or make any proposition in its favor sines the defeat of Mr. Adams? Do they not now see another recommendation seized upon—an ODIOUS, UNJUST and PROSCRIPTIVE retrospective feature attached to it. having the clivet, if adopted, to exclude General Jackson from the Presidency at the end of four years! What can they believe, but that principles and measures are advanced and abandoned advocated and opposed, SOLELY WITH A VIEW TO THEIR EFFECT ON THE NEXT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION!"

That this severe language is merited, so far as .emebunk, and the schooner Betsey, which the motives of the Calhoun party are concerned, iled from New-York about two months since, is extremely probable; but still, the supporters of iled from New-York about two months show. Gen. Jackson, among whom the rather of the laving touched at the Havana on her way hat Gen. Jackson, among whom the rather of the is ranked, have no right to complain of the NicDuffie, and, through him, of Mr. Callar, in proposing an amendment, which the resident himself has recommended to Conress in two successive messages. The Globe," as the organ of Van Buren, who is unquestionably the President's messagehaker and conscience-keeper, is said to express the sentiments of the Administration pore correctly than any other print, the "Teleaph" itself not excepted; and hence we may consider the above extract as indicating a resolve in the part of the Administration, to make an open and strenuous opposition to the constitutional amendment before the House. They are manifestly in trouble. They call the amendment "odious," "unjust," and "proscriptive," but if it be so, why was it recommended in the Executive message? Did the author and the nes of that document expect congress to intro-
