WESTERN REVIEW FOR APRIL.—We have had the pleasure in acknowledging the kind hearty favors from Leonard Scott & Co., of New York, 38 Walter street, the American republishers of the London, Edinburgh, Quarterly, Westminster, and Westminster Quarterly Reviews, in ready participation and relief to them from heavy portfolios, the pretentious diffuse, and the rapid sensationalism, which fill the bulk of the reading matter of the generality of newspapers and magazines, to the rich and solid intellectual feast stored within the leaves of these publications just enumerated, and which we add the ever welcome and ever-varying Blackwood. In the present issue we are favored with the April number of the Western Review the contents of which comprise eight elaborate articles on political, philosophy, political economy, and modern literature, together with a brief review and literary notices.

ALARM BELLS FROM 1st TO 2nd DIVISION—Bells according to notice given by the Mayor Hoyt, immediately after an alarm of fire shall have been struck by the Fire Alarm Telegraph, the following bells will be rung—Bell found for the first 10 minutes, an additional 10 occasionally tapping the number of the Fire District, viz:

No. 1—Bell Palmer Council, Lafayette Square.

No. 2—Bell Second District Police Station, Clark near Union.

No. 3—Bell Police Jail, Parish Prison.

No. 4—Bell Third District Police Station, Elysian Fields street.

No. 5—Bell Jefferson Company No. 22, Rousseau near Royal.

Constitutional Convention.

TUESDAY, May 31, 1864.

A motion was moved and seconded to take up the ordinance for immediately after the reading of the journal every day except Saturday, and to set aside for miscellaneous business, the afternoon, and discussion of the 3rd Article of the report of the Judiciary Committee and Mr. Wells's substitute, the Convention refused to consider the original report or the substitute, and the Convention adjourned.

Description of Important Military Localities.

LITTLE ROCK—At the request of the Editor of the Gazette we received from Washington, and are now in waiting to hand over to any one who may call, a map of hills stretching away to the south in precipitous angles, with deep ravines between, through which roads have been carried, along which the business of Little Rock will difficult access, often overhung by sometimes breaking down utterly against the rugged side of hill; and the Bee, in our hurry, when the slippery rocks, thickets—mostly of pines—and the pieces to appropriate the Bee and yet it was sure we found a man, two and sick and wounded in a cabin in a hill, with no shelter. He had been in the fighting from Big Piney to the Arkansas River, and had been wounded in the thigh. He had been in the fight at Little Rock, and had been wounded in the thigh. He had been in the fight at Little Rock, and had been wounded in the thigh. He had been in the fight at Little Rock
