New York papers, received by last Saturday's mail, say of the 3d inst. Baltimore of the 5th, and Charleston of the 9th instant. By the packet Belvidia, at the latter port, New York papers of the 3d instant had been received; anticipating the regular mail by three days. They furnish no intelligence of any importance.

By the British brig Bolivar at Charleston, from Greenock, Loo last papers of the 23d January have been received; exchanges to see the most interesting we have had for some time to our columns. The Bolivar furnishes no commercial intelligence.

Captain ALLEN, of the Sentiel Wright, at New York, reports that the ship Robert, which arrived at Havre, at the time of his departure, had spoken the ship James Perkins, bound to the colony of Liberia, with many passengers, who had twice attempted to take possession of the vessel, but as often prevented from composing their design. We learn from the Senapet that the Perkinsquitted some five months since, from Norfolk, with one hundred colored emigrants on board.

NEW YORK, March 2.

WRECKERS.—The severe weather on our coast, during the past winter, has driven several vessels on shore; and probably consigned many to the deep which we shall never hear of. Among the valuable ships stranded upon the narrow tongues of land, and which make out from our coast, shallow and shoaly, we may reckon the Canning and the Putnam most valuable—both freighted with rich cargoes. But it is impossible to learn how much of this property has been stolen. We have heard of the wreckers on the coast of Cornwall and other parts of the world; but we question whether they are a more daring or more hardy band of freebooters, than those who inhabit our coast; the sight of a ship ashore—a noble victim of the elements—a sight calculated to create the deepest sympathy—is a source of immense joy to these Dirk Hatteracks, who consider her a tawful prey, and pounce upon her for plunder as they would on a spermaceti whale, thrown on shore in a storm. We are daily hearing of depredations committed on property saved from the two latterly mentioned ships. Places of concealment for goods thus obtained, are carefully arranged near the beach, and the amount of property stolen from the Canning and Putnam, cannot be less than $20,000 in value.

Two passengers in the Putnam, who crawled from the bowsprit to the shore on a cable, hauled taught and secured in the beach, had like Peregrine in John Bully slung a box of jewelry on their back worth not less than £500 sterling; when returning thanks to Providence for divine interposition, they were robbed on the beach of their valuables and of the rings on their fingers by respectable citizens of this land of freedom, who had taught themselves to believe that a wreck or the wrecked were common spoils. In several houses in the town of Hempstead goods from the Canning were found concealed, and several wagon loads were transported to this city undetected and unclaimed. Even the owner of the surf and rocks on which the Canning was stranded, had the modesty, we learn, to send in a bill for 80 dollars for beaching the ship on his property.

WASHINGTON, March 3.

CONGRESSIONAL ABSTRACT.

In the senate, Friday, the bill to liquidate the revolutionary claims of the state of Virginia, passed. The bill to adjust and pay the claims of the state of South Carolina, for advances made to the United States during the late war, was passed. The consideration of Mr. Clay's resolution, proposing a modification of the tariff, was resumed, and Mr. Robbins spoke two hours in its support. Mr. Moore has the floor for Monday. The senate, after spending some time in Executive business, adjourned over to Monday.

In the house of representatives, after the reports from the standing committees, Mr. Clayton's resolution directing the appointment of a select committee to examine into the affairs of the bank of the U. States, was taken up. Mr. Clayton addressed the house in support of his resolution, until the expiration of the hour allotted to morning business. Mr. Root submitted a resolution, recommending to the several states an amendment to the constitution of the U. States, in substance that the citizens of each state shall vote directly for President and Vice President, and that the person obtaining the largest number of votes in a state, shall be entitled to a vote corresponding with the number of all the members of congress to which the said state may be entitled; if there shall be a tie when all the votes of the United States are canvassed by the supreme court, then the President to be chosen, from those having an equal number of votes by joint ballot of both houses of congress, and upon a like contingency, the senate to select the Vice President: also that the President shall be ineligible after serving one term. The bill for the benefit of Mrs. Deantur was further discussed in committee, by Messrs. Davis of Massachusetts and Carson. The committee rose, reported progress and the House adjourned.—Globe.

LONDON, Jan. 23.

Money market and city intelligence—Saturday evening. A Mexican mail has arrived this morning, with letters from the capital, of the middle of November. The packet has brought but small remittances in specie, not amounting to much more than 800,000 dollars, of which there is about 120,000 for the dividends, and the like sum for one of the mining companies, which shows clearly enough that England is not at this moment carrying on a very successful trade with Mexico. Commerce is represented, indeed, in the private letters, as in a state of almost total stagnation, and the expressive remark of one of them is, that if "things do not soon mend, they shortly expect goods to be given away for duties and charges."

LONDON, Jan. 19.

State of Trade.—We learn with sincere satisfaction during a short visit to Lancashire in the present week, that the cotton market has undergone revival during the last three weeks. The spinning branch in particular has felt the advantage of this beneficial change, and the prospects for the spring are thought to be very cheering, if the manufacturing districts should providentially be preserved from the malady which has produced so much alarm all over Europe, and from political cholera—the successive intrigues of the boroughmongers—which have so severely afflicted the interests of the country during the present winter.

LONDON, Jan. 19.

An evening contemporary (the GLOBE) attaches but with a tone and manner alike gentlemanly and candid, to disparage the statement of our Paris correspondent relative to the continued delay of ratification by Austria and Russia, by saying, that no official information has been received of a refusal to ratify. We are willing to give our contemporary the full benefit of the guarded way in which he has expressed himself, and to allow that no positive refusal has been officially communicated; but for his better information we can assure him that dispatches have arrived from St. Petersburgh, Vienna and Berlin, which, although they had reference chiefly to the demand for ratification by the 15th, leave the question just where it was as to the probability of ratification by the 21st inst. In fact, some of the difficulties which caused the delay have been either removed or diminished, and unless the King of Holland should very unexpectedly give way, the hopes which the conference are said to entertain of an unconditional ratification by Russia, Austria and Prussia, before the 21st, may be disappointed, notwithstanding the confidence with which reports of the satisfactory state of the negotiations are propagated.

THE USE OF A TEA KETTLE.—A scholar who was residing last night, heard a thief breaking through the wall of his house. Happening to have a tea kettle of boiling water before the fire, he took it up, and placing himself inside the wall, waited for the thief. The hole being made, a hand thrust her foot through; when the scholar had ascertained them, and began to bathe them with boiling water. The thief screamed for mercy; but the scholar replied very gravely, "Stop till I have emptied my tea kettle."

CURIOUS TURKISH CUSTOM.—We have just landed at Tunis (says Dr. Walsh in his account of a visit to Nismes, published in the Annales,) remarkable for the size and excellence of its cherries. Cherries were originally brought by Lucullus, I think, to Rome from this coast, where, after an interval of many ages, have recovered years, as unchanged in nature, they still retain their primitive excellence. It is one of the odd customs of the Turks, which their contact with Europeans has not yet changed, that any stranger may enter a man's garden, and eat as much as he pleases, provided he takes none away with him; so, availing ourselves of this right, we walked into the first romantic garden we met, as we each cherries as really sur-

FAUBOURG WASHINGTON, INCORPORATED.

HEWLETT & RASPEILLER will sell shortly at auction, the property belonging to Mr. Jos. Leseap, divided into lots, of which the situation is already known too advantageously as to require any particular recommendation. Persons who were prevented from purchasing at the remarkable sale, held on Friday last, and on which in many instances a handsome profit has been realized already, will find this an excellent opportunity for securing such lots, as are in every respect qualified for useful purposes as pleasant residences, and that too in a quarter, which is rapidly approaching that degree of prosperity, which has been assigned to it by nature. The owner of the above property, makes known to the public that conformably to an arrangement with his neighbour of Mr. Balthal, English consul, this gentleman has consented to the immediate opening of some of the streets which pass through his property, and will at a later period open the others. Persons who are inclined to buy, are invited to inspect the grounds and to convince themselves personally of the advantages which they combine. Further particulars will be given in the newspapers and by hand bills announcing the terms, and the day of the sale.

FOR SALE, that fine property in the suburb St. Mary, known heretofore under the name of RILLEAUX COTTON PRESS, fronting on Tchopitoulas, Polydras and Magazine streets. There are on the premises, capacious warehouses substantially built of bricks; and should the purchaser prefer a new distribution of said property, a vast quantity of good lumber from the present buildings could be employed in new buildings. The yards, entrances, and passages, are all payed with round stone.

The situation of this property, in the centre of the most flourishing part of the city, deserves the attention of persons making a study of localities. Placed by the steamboat landing at the point of rendezvous of all the States, whose interest it is to be our tributaries; it affords in that respect advantages of position rendered scarce by the increase of business, and the immense inland connections of this city. The proximity of the river, the improved state of the pavement to Polydras st. affording to it in all seasons an activity denied to others by insurmountable difficulties in our municipal improvements, render this property a most eligible situation for the receiving or expedition of the vast quantity of produce coming to this city—and if entering the same branch of business does not benefit all concerned, a new destination of the premises would contribute to the improvement of this part of the city, already adorned by the splendid buildings of the Canal and Banking Company, in its immediate vicinity.

This property will be sold according to a plan made by L. Bringier, which will be exposed at the Exchange on Monday the 2d of April, if not sold previously at private sale.

For further information respecting terms and delivery, apply on the premises or at Hewlett & Raspiller's auction office, St. Louis st. march 15
