When Achmot once attempted a remodelling of his government, the lanizaries set up a howl of blasphemy; Achmet insisted on the change, and Achmet's head was offered in expiation of his sacrifegious schemes. Mamhoud has for some time back contemplated a reorganization, and it is not improbable that the Aga of the Inaizzaries, the King-maker of Turkey, has roused popular feeling against the daring innovator, who has attempted to abolish the good, old despotic customs, handed down by the Kaliph Omar.
