LOUISIANA LEGISLATURE.

ELEVENTH LEGISLATURE—FIRST SESSION

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, March 22d, 1833.

The house met agreeably to adjournment.

Mr. Garland presented the petition of the trustees of the college of Franklin, praying for certain relief.

On motion, ordered that said petition be referred to the committee on public education.

Mr. Morgan, chairman of the committee to whom was referred certain resolutions, adopted by the legislatures of the states of Ohio, New Jersey and Alabama, presented the following report:

The committee to whom was referred the reports and resolutions of the states of New Jersey, Ohio and Alabama, relative to the tariff and the ordinances of South Carolina, respectfully

REPORT:

That this house having adopted a report and resolutions upon most of the subjects referred to this committee, it is not now necessary to act upon them. There is, however, one of the resolutions adopted by the legislature of Alabama, which demands our serious consideration. It is that which recommends the calling of a Federal Convention, to meet in the city of Washington, on the 1st of March, 1834. This measure your committee believe to be impolitic and unnecessary. Impolitic, because there is not the least prospect of those states which now so loudly complain of the defects of the present constitution, and of the action of the general government obtaining such an ascendency in the convention as to remedy the evils, or supposed evils of which they now complain; while on the other hand it is certain that they might be deprived of great and important advantages which they now possess. Unnecessary, because there is a mode pointed out in the constitution itself, by which any evils that really exist, may be remedied. If it be objected that this mode is tedious, the reply is apparent; it will give more time for reflection, and cool and dispassionate investigation, and that all sudden changes in the fundamental laws of our country, should be cautiously avoided. Again, what good result would be likely to flow from a convention, that cannot be brought about by the mode prescribed in the constitution, or by the action of Congress? What rule would be adopted to apportion the representation? If the several states would be entitled to a number of members equal to their whole representation in congress is it not apparent that the southern states would be in the same minority that they are now in congress? And if each state would be entitled to but one vote should we not be in the same predicament? The answer must be in the affirmative. The result then would be, that (if a constitution was adopted at all) the evils of which those states now complain would be the more firmly rivited upon them, and it may in addition to this be assumed as incontrovertible, that the ratio of representation in congress from the slave holding states would be reduced—for when the contest, as would necessarily to a greater or less extent be the case, is for power, the majority will strengthen itself, and weaken its adversaries as much as possible.

In conclusion, your committee cannot but express the confident hope, that the law which has lately passed in congress and received the sanction of the executive, providing for a gradual reduction of duties, will tranquilize the public mind, restore harmony, and satisfy the most clamorous, that it is totally unnecessary at the present time to call a federal convention. In conformity with these views, the committee present the following resolution:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That it is inexpedient and unnecessary at the present time to call a federal convention.

THOMAS GIBBS MORGAN, Chairman.
