W. T. BARRY, Postmaster General. Connections, have been in favour of the administration of instances, from the mail-Andrew Jackson. The democratic ticket, in both bradch of the legislature, has succeeded by a decided majority. This information, drawn from the Connecticut Courant, a apposition journal, cannot be doubted. No choice of gov ernor or lieutenant could be effected, owing to an almost equal division of the votes. The congressional representation stonds as formerly. This news-though the war of politics be over for the present-is the more grateful on the score of its being unexpected. It certainly shows a revulsion of public opinion in Counceticut. Arguing from the changer since November last, it would be no matter of sur price if at the ensuing election, the friends of the adminis tration should find themselves sufficiently strong to carry through their candidates for every office in the gift of the people. In this instance, the people having failed to choose their chief magistrates, the election will, consequently, devolve on the legislature, and it cannot be doubted, that Mesara Edwards and Stoddard, friends of the present adaunistration, will be selected.

The long talked of monument, which is to be built in honor of the remains of Washington's mather, is about to be erected mar Fredericksburg. The 7th of the month is appointed for the laying of the corner stone. The president of the United States will be present to perform the principal deromany: it is but right that the greatest man living in our country, should be called to the honor of paying homage to the memory of her who hore forth the noblest creating, and declared his determination to pursue me, with horor and declared his determination to pursue me, with horor and determination to p 6th, and proceed in the coremonial, which he has been invited to attend.

"We arrived here on 27th ult. all well. Since we assisted in making the treaty with Napler, we have visited Measins. Syracuse, Malta, Tripoli and Tunis. We appeared off Tunis with two frigates and a sloop, and settled an anpleasant difficulty between the Consul and the Bashaw.—We met with great attenuou and kindness wherever we have been particularly at Malta from the governor-adminal and other officers, we received the most hospitable attentions. We have experienced a great deal of very beavy weather, and kept at sea more and later by two months than our ships have generally done. We are just released from quarantine, and bury in preparing our ships for further winter service, the acting commodore intending to go the first the relief of the assessors of the Parish of the control of the control of the parish of the principal of the control of the parish of the Parish of the control of the control of the parish of the principal of the control of the parish of the principal of the principal of the parish of the principal of the parish of the principal of the parish down to Tangiers, where a misunderstanding exists with our Consul. From this you see we can't be accused of idliness, or making early winter quarters. We found the Constellation here, all well."

In addition to the above, we have seen a letter from an fiver on loand the United States, dated on the 12 h Jan., which state that not a single man had been lost since the frigate sailed from New York on the H of July last. Nora rous letters were preparing by the officers of the squad-ron for the fricate Brandywine, about to return to the Uni-ted States, which will probably arrive early in May.

FOOR SHERIFF PARKINS.

Never since the days of the Caliph Harou Almschid, of blessed memory, when the fisherman drew the accurred boots from the lake, did mortal man go from suffering to suffering, as has ex-Sheriff Parkins, of London. The M Sheriff may well think that a cross attaches to his name. From the New York Commercial Advertiser.

She kept a boa ding-house in Park Place, in which the defendant was for sometime an innuale, and professed to take great interest in her welfure. Disapproving, however, of his management, she intrusted to others some business that she had previously confided to him. Taking effecte, he left house, and uttered expressions at various times, descent se, and ustered expressions at various times, derogato ry to her moral character and injurous to the reputation of her home. To vindicate her fame from these aspersons the plaintiff appealed to a Court of Justice, with the result

In the course of the trial the ex-Sheriff was so restiv that his Courset, Mr. Staples, informed the Court that his Courset, Mr. Staples, informed the Court that his must abandon the cause, unless his client was ordered by the court to conduct himself with more propriety. The defension promised not to just riche agains but a ter the testimony was concluded by expressed an anxious desire to me gar has own cause to the jury. This was granted by the Judge on the ground that he was a foreigner, unacquainte with our institutions — and lest an impression might get a broad, un'avourable to the liberality of our courts of justice this theory was peini ted to him which would have been denied to one of our citizens. He accordingly summed a thesease by a speech of two hours and an half, in which is range of remark was often very wide of the issue.
