Frankfort our Mela, April 19—It is as yet impossible to rectain the precise number of individuols who have then rested as implicated in the affi of the *3; but the numnrested as implicated in the affirm of the *3; but the number must be considerable, as not an ince grimman prisons are filled, but the tower and debtor's jail also. Most of the prisoners came from Darmstadt, few from Nassau, but more as yet have arrived from these, from which it is presumed that the fragitives went towards the Rhine. It is netunishing that they did not take the road to Oppenham, by Gransgeran, which was the safest. The troop of country people who came to the gates of the city, after the affray were chiefly the inhabitants of Bonames, which belongs to Frankfort. An anacdote is related, which, if true, throws light upon the motives of the people. An individual-of creut, about 3 france, and must do something in return!

Last night a strong division of the line repeated at Bonames, for the purpose of escenting the priseners. We anderstand that however, their aim was not attained, for out of 21 prisoners, 11 made their secans. Nothing of last examination has yet transpired; it is anderstood that the insungent's intention was to regenerate Germany, and to re-establish the National Union. It is also stated that the examination will be confined at Mayence, where the prisoners will be conducted, and that it will be presided by a commission appointed by the general diet. However as nission appointed by the general diet. that place cannot be deprived of the right of examin ing the affair, and much less so, as those authorities feel
