But this is not the case with the friends of Dawson gene-But this is not the case with the friends of Dawson generally. Except in the city of New Orleans, the custom flouse officers are almost entirely unknown to them, either personals, or by character. The friends of Dawson are identified with no party, they acknowledge no chief, no leader, they are governed, not by prejudices to White, but by preferences for Dawson, and, in giving their votes, they will be influenced by no motives of fear, of favor, affection, or alliance to any party, or any chief. I speak the universal voice of the section of the country, and of the friends of Dawson in ranghout the state of Louisiana, when I say that they are not dentified or albed with any "Custom House coteins," or any party whatsoever.
