1st question. Have you not been stunned by the blow for several minutes?

Answer. Yes, I was.

1st question on the part of the accused. Did you, after the affair was over, examine the clock in the hall of the House of Representatives, or any other time since, with a view to ascertain the precise hour at which it happened.

Answer. No; did not think of it.

2d question. Does not this House meet often nearer 11 than 10 o'clock?

Answer. The House adjourns to ten o'clock, but the members are never called to order before half past ten o'clock.

3d question. Is it not a fact that this House seldom or ever meets at ten o'clock?

Answer. There is never, or scarcely ever, a quorum at ten o'clock, although there are always some members present at that hour.

4th question. How many members were present in the hall?

Answer. Cannot say what number of members were present at the time; some 13 or 14, perhaps, more or less.

The speaker pro tempore having been sworn by the chairman of the committee of investigation, deposes as follows:

1st question. Please to relate what you know about the present affair, and at what time it occurred.

Answer. On the morning of the encounter, about half way between Bourbon and Dauphine streets, I drew my watch, and having looked at it, found that it was about three minutes before ten o'clock. Arrived at the corner of the enclosure, I heard some noise, which I took for the filling of a bench. When I got to the gate, I met a member, who told me there was a shooting in the house. At the head of the stairs I met Mr. Grymes, with a cocked pistol in his hand; I observed to him that he might endanger the life of some person about the house, and on my observation, he or his friend uncocked it. Mr. Grymes showed a hole made in his coat by the ball of Mr. Labranche's pistol, and told me, 'If I can find him, I will shoot him,' or 'I will give him what he deserves.' I do not recollect the exact words he spoke.

John J. Lewis, sworn on the part of the accused, deposes as follows:

1st question. Are you not clerk of the district court of the first district, sitting in this city?

Answer. Yes, I am.

2d question. Do you remember having seen the accused on the morning of the 3d inst. Relate the time and place, and all the circumstances within your knowledge.

Answer. On the morning of the 3d February, Mr. Grymes came into the office of witness three or four minutes after the hour of ten by the town clock, and recounted to witness the difficulty that had just taken place between him and Mr. Labranche.

3d question. What were your means of knowing the hour exactly?

Answer. The court opens at ten o'clock. The judge is very exact about the hour of opening the court, and that morning took his seat as the clock was striking the hour of ten; and Mr. Grymes came in about four or five minutes after the judge had taken his seat. The first case on the docket that morning was one of Mr. Grymes', and he came to attend to it. The building in which the court is held is adjoining the one which contains the clock, and may be heard distinctly in the court room as it strikes the hour of the day.

4th question. Is not the distance from the hall of the house of representatives to the court house, nearly the whole length of the city, and does it not require some minutes to walk it, and how many about?

Answer. The distance from the hall of representatives to the place where the district court is held is considerable, and witness thinks it would take Mr. Grymes, in consequence of his business, about 18 or 20 minutes to walk it.

Thomas Curry, a witness on the part of the accused, deposes as follows:

1st question. Did you see the accused on the morning of the 3d inst.; if so, state the hour, and all the circumstances within your knowledge.

Answer. I met Mr. Grymes on the morning of the 3d inst., at his office, which is near the branch bank of the United States. About a quarter before ten o'clock, Mr. Grymes was coming down Royal street, towards the district court, which is about two minutes after witness had left the office. Witness came directly to the court-house, and entered the court room, and took his seat before the judge entered. Mr. Grymes came in about four or five minutes after the judge had taken his seat. The first case on the docket that morning was one of Mr. Grymes'. Witness looked at his watch when the judge entered the court room, and it was ten minutes after ten o'clock. Witness had left Mr. Grymes' office about five minutes before the judge entered the court room. Witness is perfectly confident that it was ten minutes after ten o'clock when the judge entered the court room.

2d question. Did you see Mr. Grymes after he left your office, and if so, state the hour, and all the circumstances within your knowledge.

Answer. I met Mr. Grymes on the morning of the 3d inst., at the corner of Bourbon and Dauphine streets, about half past ten o'clock, or a little after. Mr. Grymes was walking very fast, and I observed to him, 'Grymes, you are walking very fast.' He replied, 'Yes, I am going to the house to see Labranche.' I asked him what was the matter. He replied, 'Labranche has insulted me, and I am going to the house to see him.' I observed to him, 'Grymes, you had better not go to the house, you will get into a difficulty.' He replied, 'I am determined to see him.' I then left him, and went to the house myself.

3d question. Did you see Mr. Grymes after you left him, and if so, state the hour, and all the circumstances within your knowledge.

Answer. I saw Mr. Grymes after I left him, in the hall of the House of Representatives, about half past ten o'clock, or a little after.
