In noticing the governor's proclamation, ordering an election of representative to supply Mr. White's vacancy, we ommitted angerier, which we hasten to rectify. Waite's term executive does not expire before the 4th of Murch, 1835, the close of the second session of the twentythird congress. The time of service, therefore, of the candidate to be elected will be from the opening to the end of the

It may be within the recollection of our readers that sona tor Benion had intimated an intention of laying a resolt tion befere the seaste, going to expunge, from the journals of that body, the eve imputing impeachable matter to the president. In accordance with his previous declaration, on the last day of the session, he offered a recolution to that effect, stating that he did not ask a decision at that time, but merely intro duced it as a notice of his purpose at the next session.

It is to be supped that he will not tire in the nuble task which he has assumed; and that he will follow up his object until the shaineful attainder of the patriot whom the people have called to the executive power, will have been obliterated, and record of mainty torn from the annals of the senate.

[The London Court Journal contains a long article, from which the above is an extract. Its spirit and tenor may begind ged by the very complimentary introduction? For good, confortable efficantery and Lughable ignorance, it challenges comparison with any of the malienous libels on this country; manufactured beyond the Atlantic. Well does it bestern the conductor of a leading British point, who should be an intelligent man, to give a 'flocal habitation to such caricultures of a whidenation. The writer of the aracle speaks of their long line of ances try, from which they claim their national character and family pride. The ancestry of the American people, properly peaking, is not very remote, and, have perhaps, a less number of scoundrels among their descendants; for a long line o predecessors, as this wicked world goes, is frequently but a long line of rascals. Besides, due allowance being made for or plebian notions, we don't perceive much to be boasted of in a national origin, imposed by conquest and degradation, and, aettle it as you will, springing from a parcel of Danish pirates and a hords of Norman lancemen.
