NOTICE to person desirous of acquiring in a short time and at a trifling expense, the indispensable art of a beautiful hand writing.

M. DUBREUIL DUVERNAY, professor of Calligraphy, lately arrived from Paris, begs leave to inform his friends, and the public, that he will engage to correct in 25 or 30 lessons, the most bad hand writing, provided the pupil will second his efforts.

The great superiority of his method, over the ancient manner of writing, consists in the continued movement of the wrist with the arm, this joint labour imparsibly managed accelerates the progress of the pupil. A mere correct idea of the easy and beauty of his system, may be formed by calling at his room.

In these days a fine hand writing is indispensable to every man, from which he often derives a living, this manner of acquiring in a short time a fine hand is not to be neglected. In this there is no surprise to be feared of a fallacious quackery, no vain promises, nothing but what is punctually executed. The professor strong by his numerous experiences, guarantees a full success.

He has two classes, one from 10 to 12 in the morning until 2 in the evening, the second from 5 till 8 in the evening, the first will be devoted for ladies and the second for gentlemen. He will attend private lessons for boarding schools.

N. B. The price of 30 lessons is $15.

His Academy is in St. Peter street, No. 126, between Dauphine and Bienville streets.
