Jackson, disposed to yield him a man ly and efficient support in his great work of popular reform Mi-si-sippi, New-Jersey, (and who known but Louisiana.) will come to the reacue, together with other democratic mmanwealths, who will, in the place of the present unfaithful sorvants who misreprent them, select others whos prisciples are more in accordance with the advanced state of civil liberty.

The political character of the Senate will be unchanged during the next nection—and the Senate of the 24th Congress, unker some neexpected changes should occur, will cohtain 25 Whiga and 23 Tories. This majority is sufficient as a clerck upon executive usurpation, and it may turn out much stronger than we expect, as it did last winter.—Poul-

In reference to this subject he Norfolk Beacon remarks that the establishment of such the Norfolk Beacon remarks that the establishment of such a fine would prove of the greatest importance to Lower Canada and Maine. There are political considerations of an interesting character connected with this enterprize; but we will only hope that the patrons of the work will look well to their ground, and not proceed, after the example of the government of the United States some years since, to build on land which will sense day be awarded to a foreign ration.

If this rail road should ultimately be established, the route between Boston and Portland will be the only interroute between Boston and Portland will be the only intervening distance, usuraveiled by rail-road ears or steamboatt between Norfolk and Quebec. What is the distance between Boston and Porland, we cannot exactly state; but with the exception of this distance, we might reach Quebec, by way of Baltimore, Philadelphia, New-York and Boston, from Norfolk, in a space of time not far from fear days,
