A NATIONAL HOSPITAL.

We have received the' Report of a committee of the Ohio medical convention on commercial hospitals,' recently held at Columbus in that state. The object is to induce the general government to establish hospitals at different cities on the western waters—New Orleans, Natchez, Menubles, Consideration, and the application, and the consideration and the consi Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Putsburg, Buffalo, Cleaveland and Detroit.

Their number and necessary expense afford the greatest objections to these commercial hospitals: but the number and expense being decreased, the objections would be diminished. A project of commercial hospitals supported by the general government is one legitimately within the jurisdiction of Cong eas; and has certainly many arguments in favor of the beneficent advantages likely to result from it if effected.

But we are not in favor of restricting the project to the valley of the Mississippi; although there hospitals may be more immediately required. Yet were they restricted to that discase and present and the proposal street of the control of the

He said it often happens that great public principles and measures are usefully enforced and vindicated by popular demonstrations of approbation and gravitude towards their distinguished advocates. In attenting this object upon the present occasion we may be permitted at the same time to manifest those ardent, sincere, and leaving sentiments of profound professional effect that, personal attachment with which the best quadries of the hom n near, where with the beightest endowments of the human order that ing, have for a long series of yells supple sed and in the use all.

We had penn d a telerably long writcle on the honorable and serusions conduct of the True American editor reletive to ourselves and others; and altho it was partly in type, we sholled in the licentiousness of the press. Our eminent and honored guest, Edward Livingston-Whose high cureer of phisanthropy, jurisprudence, scate-manship, diplomacy, and all-pervacing republicanism, has ameliorated the condition of man, exalted his native country and secured for himself universal affection and unperish the fame-health, happiness and a heartle's welcome to her cherished citizen and dauntless defender, is the approximately the second sec ing acclamation of united Anterica!

Overcome as I am by the enthusiastic testimony you have just given of approbation and applicate, if the expression of my gratitude should appear simple and unadorned I pray you to consider that it comes direct from the heart, and that I have not the faint to array it in the florid lan-

All I can say under the feelings which agitate me is, that I thouk you, my fellow-citiz-na. I thank you sincerely, from my heart I thank you. Much for myself, more, much more, for our common country; for you have but recorded its voice in the shouts you have just uttered, which proclaim, in language not to be misunderatood, that democrate republics are as teracious of their dignity, and as sensative to any imputation on their national houor, as the as ensative to any imputation on their national h proudest monarchy. The case that has Jrawn forth this noble expression of national feeling, is of novel occurrence. Here there we have contended for rights withhold for interest id the country shows by its unexample manimity, that it considers this last as of paramount impo-tance. Lost rights may be recovered; the challes of freedom, though "sometimes lost," are in the and "alway reedom, though a sometimes lost," are in the and always won," Injuries to interest may be repaired; but the reputation of a country once lost can never be regained.

The people of the United States seem to be deeply sensible of this great truth, and the cry which I first heard on my arrival of "No apology! No concession!" has been repeated by the unanimous voice of the nation from the seator it to the mountains, from the mountains to the great takes and the vall ys of the Mississippi. Not only all the prejudices of party seem lost in this national spirit. all the prejudices of party seem lost in this national spirit, but strong personal interests give way to the patriotic ching, which prompts even those who are interested in teeling, which prompts even those who are interested in the claims on France to reject with diadain the idea of purchasing their payment by an act of national d shonor renaw, therefore, ny congratulations to you and to the country on the noble spirit which pervades it.
