REMARKS.

The season for the receipt of cotton by the railroads and steamboats is in general over for the year. The receipts of the week ending this evening will be found to be very small, and the stocks in the hands of the factors and dealers in the interior towns are reduced to a very low point. The receipts of the week ending this evening will be found to be very small, and the stocks in the hands of the factors and dealers in the interior towns are reduced to a very low point. The receipts of the week ending this evening will be found to be very small, and the stocks in the hands of the factors and dealers in the interior towns are reduced to a very low point.

Most persons seem to be of the opinion that the crop will be short, and that the receipts will be small, and that the stocks in the hands of the factors and dealers in the interior towns are reduced to a very low point.

The Ohio, Tennessee, and Cumberland rivers have been declining rapidly for the last week, and the navigation is now very much impeded. The receipts of cotton at the ports on the Mississippi river are also very much reduced, and the stocks in the hands of the factors and dealers in the interior towns are reduced to a very low point.

Judging from the small number of vessels which have arrived at the ports of the United States during the last week, and the large number of vessels which have cleared from the ports of the United States during the last week, it is evident that the receipts of cotton at the ports of the United States will be very small during the next week.

The stock in first hands is not generally estimated at more than 1,000,000 bales, and the stock in second hands is not estimated at more than 500,000 bales. The stock in first hands is not generally estimated at more than 1,000,000 bales, and the stock in second hands is not estimated at more than 500,000 bales.

Sugars—Holders continue firm at present quotations for fair to prime grades, but the demand is light, and sales are limited.

Molasses—The demand is very light, and sales are limited.

Flour—We find there has been a small decrease in the receipts of flour during the week, and the stock in first hands is very light.

Provisions were mostly sold from the boats, and are generally unchanged.

The statement that was published yesterday of Genl. Gaines's ill-treatment by the Secretary of War, by the arrival of the Oaspar Schaight, from Nacatoches. It is further stated that six companies of Infantry, and three companies of Dragoons were daily expected to join him from Fort Jesup. The only necessity of keeping a land force in Texas, is the necessity of keeping in check the Indians, in the event of a war between the United States and Mexico. The Indians are from time to time committing depredations upon the settlers, and it is necessary to keep a force in the country to protect them.
