TEXAS.

The San Jacinto from Galveston, Augt. 9th, brings information that a Mexican schr. called the Matilda, arrived at Galveston as a prize to the Texian Man-of-War Terrible. She was captured at Sisal bound to Campeachy—Cargo; Linnens, Flour, Coru, Beans, &c. The Terrible had chased on shore and destroyed one other schooner (name not recollected.)

The Texian army commanded by Gen. Rusk with 3000 men had marched for Matamoras.

MEXICO.—How deeply to be regretted is the internal situation of this most beautiful part of the habitable globe. Constantly torn and destracted by her intestine commotions and civil wars, her inhabitants may be looked upon as retroceding, instead of being on the march toward the full fruition of civilization. This country, on the arrival of the Spaniards, in 1519, composed a powerful and civilized empire; but the origin of the inhabitants still remains in great obscurity. The conquest of Mexico by Fernando Cortez, is one of the most interesting portions of the history of this continent. Cortez discovered the country in 1519, when he landed on the eastern coast, and founded the city of Vera Cruz, after which he penetrated into the interior, and finally in 1521, after the death of Montezuma, the Spaniards took the city of Mexico, and the whole empire fell into their hands. Cortez continued to govern the country as captain general under the King of Spain, until 1535 when a Spanish Viceroy was appointed in his place.

For nearly three centuries that, this earthly paradise was held by the Spaniards, scenes of oppressive ruine and blood-shed, which be gear description were constantly enacted; there was ... government or justice.—the creoles and patriots felt the indignities and cruelties of the royalists bearing so strong upon them that in 1810 an insurrection broke out against the government, and Mexico after many bloody battles and engagements was declared independent by a congress, which assembled in 1813. From this declaration of independence until 1824, the whole country was but one continued scene of civil commotion. The long civil war in Mexico has exhausted the resources of the government. A republican form of Government was adopted in 1824, and in 1825 the first congress convened, and the government was for a short period administered on republican principles, at last, the priests continued to mind the things that appertained to their office, but when they stept beyond their cloysters to mingle in the polical affairs of government, then began disturbances and minor revolutions, which increased and spread wider from time to time; the former influence that the priests had enjoyed during the twelve years of civil war prior to the first session of congress, began to revive and spread thro a majority of the states, and when they conceived themselves strong enough, the ... ution of 1824 was declared not adapted to either the wishes or wants of the Mexican people ... municipality of Tlaxcala being more immediately under the power. The priests, was the first to make this declaration,—a change in the constitution was proposed and carried, to this change many of the states did not agree, —Texas among the number,—the consequence was that they called down upon their heads, the vengeance of the priests in the shape of armies to force them into subjection. Texas was the last province against which this force was directed, the result is still in the wound of time.

A duel was fought on Saturday ... ast. opposite Vicksburg between Col. Quvall ... Cunningham, the former gentleman was shot through the heart at the first fire,—the latter narrowly escaped the ball passing through his clothes.

Consolidated Association of the Planters of Louisiana.

The capital of two millions, five hundred thousand dollars of this institution was formed, as it is well known to every one, by means of the negociation of state bonds to that amount, guaranteed by the bank.

This loan was raised by a subscription of three millions of dollars, divided in six thousand shares of five hundred dollars each. These ... es secured by mortgage on immoveable property, giving annual rents and valued to the amount of six millions of dollars. The state is a stockholder to the amount of one million, and is entitled to a credit of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The dividend is consequently declared on four millions and are to be paid only on the expiration of the Charter, which takes place in June 1843.

On ... amount of bonds negociated, one fifth has been paid in, having a balance due of about two millions of dollars in favor of the negotiators, which balance will be liquidated as the terms of payment will become due. The charter of the Consolidated Association of the Planters of Louisiana is so generally known, that it is unecessary for us to enter into long details on its characteristic merits, it is sufficient to say that it was particulary calculated to give creation to an institution totally national to this state. The financial pressures experienced previous to its formation, in the several branches of trade and commerce, and which particularly threatened the total ruin of our agriculturalists in our state, was materially prevented by it, and we may boldly assert, that whatever catastrophy may happen our commerce, the planters notwithstanding their narrow connexions with the merchants; they will always receive assistance from the Consolidated Association, the Union and Citizens Banks, these latter being established much on the same principle of the first named—with a little economy and a better system of agriculture proportional to the richness of our soil and to the extent of our commercial exportations, the planters will more easily resist these shocks to which they are unfortunately too often exposed.

Another of the many advantages afforded by the creation of this Institution is that all benefits arising therefrom are derived from and flow into the state. Great and growing was the wants of real capital in the extensive commercial and agricultural pursuits of our citizens; these wants put us to the necessity of going abroad to procure gold and silver in order to form a solid basis for our Banking institutions; we were obliged to pay the capitalists of France, England and Holland enormous dividends for the millions they were willing to invest; thus alienating from the country a portion of its growing wealth. The Consolidated Association is calculated to obviate these disadvantages; the real capital of the institution being the immoveable property of the stock-holders, within the state, foreigners could not participate in the advantages o the stock and only reap a certain per centage upon the capital loaned the institution, thus the planters retain the dividends declared upon the capital stock.

The Bank is but the acting agent of the Planters, and the profits of the institution are divided among these according to the amount of their investment.—There also exists another advantageous item in the charter of this Bank, which is worthy of notice, it is the privilege possessed of extending its issue to twice the amount of capital actually paid in, thus deriving a sufficient profit, to enable them to pay the interest upon the sum borrowed from abroad. It must of course be obvious to all that an institution thus managed must necessarily offer great and real advantages to the whole body of the Planters of Louisiana. If the Bank at one period did an unprofitious business it could not be ascribed to any radical defect in the institution, but to other causes which are unnecessary to mention here. However we will observe that if the institution had always point blank in embarrassed circumstances, it did not affect her credit; but on the contrary it seems to have given the Bank an impetus in its onward progress of usefulness. The board of Directors just appointed appeared to have used the golden seal and curiously combined with financial knowledge in regaining the evil which had taken place, and we are ... that they have succeeded in re-establishing the footing of the Bank upon the most perfect ... basis.

The following statement, which we present our readers, will convey a better idea of the prosperous situation of the institution than all we can say upon the subject.

A bank which in 1834 offered no profit to its stockholders, have this day a sum of three hundred thousand dollars to its credit, and more over the reserve of forty-seven thousand one hundred and fifty eight dollars and 14 cents to meet any loss which may occur hereafter.—The deposits and circulation of the Bank which in 1834 were almost null, amount together to nine hundred and one thousand eight hundred and ninety dollars and 58 cents, at a season of the year whence a stagnation of business necessarily diminishes the amount at least 25 per cent.

The amount of its discounted paper whose average term of falling due is of forty-five days. is one million, four hundred and two thousand one hundred and twenty-six dollars and 64 cents—which alone is sufficient to meet its payments which amount to one million two hundred and fifty-three thousand, one hundred and twenty-five dollars and 16 cents, and has moreove disposable cash to the amount of six hundred and forty thousand, eight hundred and fifty dollars, 56 cents, of which two hundred and forty eight thousand, four hundred and eleven dollars and 18 cents in specie independant moreover of one million, three hundred thousand dollars, on mortgage loans of one thousand dollars each.

It appears that one of the measures which has most contributed to reinstate the affairs of this bank is the attention which the board of directors paid to the notes discounted through negociable paper, payable when due and to distribute its funds among somany holders as possible.

A measure which also merits attention and for which the Planters of Louisiana owe their sincere thanks and gratitude to the board, is the resolution adopted last winter by which the mortgagees of the bank were given an extension of the payments due at the respective expirations, in consequence of the failure of the sugar harvest last year.

The legislature acted with justice towards this institution, in authorising it to delay the payments of the bonds of the State, and by granting it a further extension of its charter for 5 years.

It is nevertheless to be regretted, on account of the State, the stockholders and the public that the law was not written and adopted in such manner and terms as to give power to the Governor to sign the new bonds, for had they been signed at the time they were presented, we are informed that they would have been sold ere this.

We entertain the hope that the next legislature, will explain itself on this important point, in such a manner, as will not oblige this institution, generally recognised for its public utility, to commence liquidating so as to enable it to pay its bonds of about one million two hundred thousand dollars on bonds of the State, which it has to meet in London in June, 1837.

A large proportion of the immense region comprised in this republic north of 28 N. latitude, is but little known, being uninhabited by whites, and not having b ... explored. The cultivated parts, which lie both in the torrid and temperate zones, are favoured by all the gifts of nature, and are rich in vegetable, animal, and mineral productions, being capable of producing most of the neccesaries and productions of life.

The face of the country of course varies much in different sections of this extensive republic. On the coasts of the two oceans the land is low and rises gradually toward the interior till it reaches the elevation of 7000 feet above the sea, when it spreads out into table lands, presenting a level country on the top of lofty mountains. These plains extend from lat 18 to 40 N. are in general very fertile, and contain the largest proportion of the population of these states. The climate varies according to the height of the land above the sea. On the low lands along the sea coast, it is hot and unhealthy; but towards the interior becomes cooler and pleasant. At the height of 4000 or 5000 feet the sea, the temperature is bland and delightful, resembling a perpetual spring In some places, lofty mountains rises above the table lands in single peaks, whose summits are covered with snow. Some of these near the city of Mexico are 15,000 feet above the sea. Thus, in this country, the traveller is presented with a succession of climates, and during a few days journey may feel all the varieties of summer, spring, and winter.

Among the numerous vegetable productions of Mexico may be mentioned maize, or Indian corn, which produces, in some places, two or three harvests in a year, wheat, barley, rye, and potatoes. Most of the fruits of other tropical and temperate climates flourish here, and cotton, coffee, sugar, tobacco, indigo, honey, wax, vanilla, cochineal, die woods, and mahogany, are also, among the productions, many of which are exported in large quantities. Cattle, horses, and sheep, are numerous in some parts of the country, and hides and tallow are among the exports. The wool is inferior. Some silk is made of superior quality, and the culture and manufacture of this article formerly flourished; but the cultivation of the mulberry tree, which was introduced at an early period, was prohibited by the Spanish government during the last century. There are extensive manufactures of cotton and woo. in the cities of Puebla, Queretara, and St. Michaelt Leather, tobacco, gunpowder, soap, soda, hats, earthenware, jewelleay, and wax candles, are also manufactured in considerable quantities.

The minerals of Mexico are principally gold and silver. The annual produce of the silver mines is former years, was generally about $23,000. From 1790 to 1810, the amount of coinage in Mexico was $342. 114,385; and from 1811 to 1825, over 153 millions of dollars. The products of these mines have always formed a large proportion of the exports of the country.

We extract the following from the New York Herarid of the 18th July. Give us New Orleans after all.

Trials and their causes are becoming serious for the character of this country. Murders, licentiousness, crime of every magnitude have disgraced this city during the last years few beyond former ages or almost; and other country. Vicksburg cannot surpass us—the Seminoles have more character—and the Mexicans more honesty and bravery. The crime of which Robinson and Jewell were accused are horrible—yet if guilty, they have both escaped the fange of stern justice. Are not some of the reasons for this remarkable state of things to be forced in the corrupt state of public opinion—in the manifest laxity of general society—in the absence of all moral restraint—in the gross darkness of the people—in the licentiousness tolerated and laughed at by every distinguished man and ever fashionable woman in the country?

In such a state of society, virtue is a disgrace—innocence is called folly—purity of character deemed a poorness of spirit—honesty put down with a "hal", and a man of integrity called "a damnable fool."

If God Almighty were to send Abraham to this second Sodom and Gomorrah; could he find ten just men to save the spires of Trinity, or the cupola of the City Hall, from being buried under the tumultuous wave that comes rolling in from Sandy Hook, its white foaming mountain tops curling with the vengeance of heaven against the sins, the atrocities, the murders, the sedutions, the iniquities of New York?

Rumors.—No further returns to-day.—We learn by a gentleman from Lowndes county, that Mr Harrison one of the members elect from that county, is a Union man and a fast friend of Mr Van Buren—we had given this county entirely to the nullifiers. From the Catawba Democrat, we learn also, that Mr Eiland of Perry, is a Union man and will doubtless act with the republican party.—So far, in spite of the abolition agitators all seems to be well. When the full returns shall hav ...
