HOMOTOR—It is a deplorable and maintanhely duty on the part of a journalist to record all the painful incidents which happen in the midst of society. The unelancholy event which now develves upon us to speak of, to more especially calculated to inspire un with the most painful regret on account of the liene of friendship which exist between us and the respectable family to which the unfertunate individual belenged: he so far forget himself, and the love be owed to his fellow men as to countit homicide. Whatever regret we may feel, we contider it indispensable on our part to render the facts such as we have learned them to be unen the most course are minutes.

ever regret we may feel, we consider it indispensable en ear part to reader the facts such as we have learned them to be upon the meet correct azamination.

Yesterday between tweive e'eleck M. and one o'clock, a homicide was committed on the body of Mr. A. R. Brux by Mr J. B. Giquel Jr. Different ancounts have been given us of the deplorable event, but we think the following most corredited.

It appears that some previous dispute had taken place between the parties. A veyage to Mexico by Mr Brux had put a mementary seld to it. But upon the return of Mr B. after an interval of some months, he called yearerd by morning upon Mr Giquel to termin at diffinitively the whole matter. The interview it is said took place before the drug store of Mr Finguet in Royal street; and that after some absence words (which

The position General Gaines has thought proper to compy, and indeed the whole of his conduct in regard hereto, is at the present moment the engrossing topic of a majority of the leading papers of the country knowledge of the Indian character, should feet more actually upon the subject of Indian depredations, and consequently be more desirous to prevent any thing of the kind, is quite natural—and that in all his more the kind, is quite natural—and that in all his mevements he has acted with the sels dears to prevent the slightest hostility on the part of the Indians, we shipk all candid and reasonable men will allow. Official Gaines' official despatch to the seat of Government, asys, "that recent acts of hostility on the part of the Indians were prompted by their having been advised of the large force (of Mexicans) approaching. Matamoras and by the expectation that the Taxians would be drives, and the country given up to them." These considerations induced him to ask for Militia from the neighbouring States, to prevent these marmsders from approaching our confines, and transferring the scenes approaching our conflues, and transferring the scenes of their murders and rebberies from the impoverished borders of Texas into our rich frontiers. In this matborders of Tegas into our right frontiers. In this mas-ter the President acted upon the information of Gen-eral Gaines and his own knowledge of the Indian character, give his order to carry the movement into effect. Upon the question at issue, the New York Times makes the just remark, that "there is an active, as well as passive neutrality, and the one is as oblig a-tory as the other. The neutral must not allow its tertory as the other. The neutral must not allow its territory to be occupied by one contending party for the purpose of assailing the other. If he be toe weak, or too deeply engaged elsewhere, to prevent it, it is purfectly lawful, perfectly consistent with national faith and neutrality, for that third party to come within his borders, and there repress hostile aggression, retiring again as soon as that be done. To do so is no invasion, is no just cause of offence. Even if one party retreat within his territory, without purpose of further hostilities, the neutral is bound to expelor deliver him up; if he do not, or cannot, the other party may follow, his enemy, so he do no violence to the neutral. These are well seitled rules, long and constantly precised.
