GUAYMA, P R May 31.

I have the pleasure to inform you that our prospects for the coming crop are brightening and nature has put on a new garb, owing to the heavy showers we have which have fallen within the last ten or twelve days.

We have, at the moment, every reason to expect an abundant crop the coming year as many of our planters have finished grinding, and have an abundance of time to condition their cane, and replant for the next year. This is probably remaining still in the quarter five to six hundred hogsheads more of sugar, which is exclusive of what has been shipped will make between 7 and 8000 hogsheads—something like 5000 hogsheads less than last year.

4TH JULY.

This is the most glorious day in the annals of time. It is the anniversary of the consummation of human wisdom which brought forth events that have changed the face of the political world and will be felt in their consequences to the remotest ages of posterity. It is one of the distinguishing features of this revolution, that it was commenced with means, which to the eye of a superficial observer, would appear utterly inadequate to the result. When the American congress dared to declare their country free and independent, they knew that they had incurred all the perils to be apprehended from the resentment of the most powerful nation then existing, whose fleets and armies had been victorious on
