TO COTTON PLANTERS.—The subscribers are offering for sale the improved cotton Press lately invented by Dr Moncrief, and patented, and manufactured by Messrs. James Wilson & Co., of Cincinnati" and are prepared to fill orders for any number wanted.

The chests are both screw and not horse chests, are made out of solid iron, fit each other with great accuracy, and hasp on equal bearings on the four sides at the same time, and not liable to split or break, but work with and with equal ease upon one another, neither being sufficient to press a bale separated.

Since the introduction of the Screw Cotton Press, alterations have been made from time to time, by which the weight and the strength of the press have been much increased, and the operation rendered as easy as possible. With the exception of shortening and modification, any experience can easily be procured to execute all orders in these lines.

Having received from the North a supply of paper and materials for manufacturing, we beg to inform merchants of Bank, Banks, they offer their services to the citizens and others, who may wish, work of the kind, and having the advantage of a printer of long standing in that line, they are confident of giving satisfaction to those who may favor them with their favors.

Bank Notes, Checks, Bills of Exchange and plans will be printed on linen, varnished and mounted in the most superior manner, and at the shortest notice.

Plain and fancy letter paper, letter files, pocket books, &c, &c, &c.
