Some of the loco-foco journals in Pennsylvania con-demp the decision of the Convention in very unmeas-ured terms. Col. JOHN TYLER, our fathers of the revolution, new warms cure—the same spirit that promoted them to threw of the foreign, Kingly yoke, now impole is to the high purpose of dethroming domestic corruption and misrate. Netwishedending the inclemency of the weather— indiana, Chio and Kontnohy, cent forth their thou-sands in hence of the man who had led their sons to vistory.

Very extensive preparations were made in the way of meat and besid. (One loaf manuscul sint for it of ment and beend, (one loaf measured eight feet in length, resisted in the French style) and hard cidera log cabin was made on the ground, with abundance of coon and other varmint skins, and such decorations as belong to these primitive dwellings,—together with the modern ornament of a high pole and a most beautiful flag. The cabin was oscupied by (L. Law-rence) one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens of the county, who welcomed his numerous guests, and handed round the hard cider in a manner to do no dizcredit to Old Tip himself. The scene was enlivened by addresses from M. V. Thompson, can didate for Lt. Gov.; W. H. Field-H. Clay, Jr.-Giv. Poindexter, and your old friend and school mate, P. H. Pope, who, you recollect formerly, as a Jack-son man, represented this district in congress. It had been known some days ago that Pope would on had been known some days ago that Fope would on this occasion recounce all allegiance to locofocoism— and when he came over the words in his speech, not so much for the mere words, but the serious and im-pressive manner, "I now bid Van Buren farewell" the effect was treatendous—the shout, the hoggas, the yells were perfectly deafening. It is useless to attempt a description of the speeches of these other gentle-man as the tree of the company to the present the company. men, as they are all personally known to you; you can better imagine than I describe the ability with which they handled the different subjects taken up by them. The day closed without the least unpleasant son, I would not sanction, by a re-election, the influences which brought Mr. Van Buren into power; no fair man, will dany that he was brought into office by the overpowering influence of Gen! Jackson. The first step in the decline of all free republics has been the nomination by the executive head of the government of his stoccessor. It is a curious fact, and will be so regarded hereafter, that a man should have attained the presidency without having associated his name with one single important period or necaure in the history of his country. If the most profit and minute historian wave to write the history of this country previous to Mr. Van Buren's election, there is no single point in that history with which he would find occasion or excuse for connecting his name. I regard as the very greatest danger of the times in which we live, greater even than the encroachments of the federal on the state governments, the alarming tendency to the accumulation in the federal executive, of all the powers of the ch-ordinate department of the federal government. We have seen Mr. Van Boren persisting in pressing upon the country his financial schemes, after reported decisions of the people against them, in defiance of their remonstrances and in disregard of their great and universal sufferings. We have seen him urging these schemes by all the vast patronage and power with which he is invested, and receiving the aid of those who have denounced these measures as does ructive of the best intervsts of the country. What difference is there between an acknowledged despotion, where the executive makes the laws through the agency of others, many of whom are themselves opposed to these laws!

There is one ground of objection to Mr. Van Baren which would forbid me to vote for him if I approve Dates from Campachy have been received to the 16th May. We fearu verbally, that the Federalists were about attacking the town by sen and by land; great construction prevailed, and most of the families had left. It was thought that although the Central General held out obtithe inclusion may the French brig Draots, had bee de from Pensacola. The French brig Draots, had bee there for several days. The United States ship LEYANI from Pensacola, had also been there for several days.

LATER FROM THE NORTH. There is one ground of objection to Mr. Van Baren which would forbid me to vote for him if I approved of his measures, which I do not; and if I had confidence in his professions, which I have not; I allude to the ferocious war which he has been waging, and which if re-elected, he will carry on with increased energy, upon the currency, commerce, and credit of the country. Never has the world known a people as prosperous and as happy as ours when he came into By the way o' Louisville and Cincinnati we have received news from New York to the 24th May and In the House of Representatives the mation . feathe joint resolution of the state of Indiana, asking or an appropriation to continue the Cumberland roa the country. Never has the world known a people as prosperous and as happy as ours when he came into power; never has any people suffered moor severe trials since. It has been one unbroken series of suffering, disaster, and misrry. I do most sincerely believe that nothing can restore prosperity to the country but taking power from his hands; nothing else will restore public confidence, and confidence is all that is now wanting. It is true that many of the causes of embarrassment existed before the last election; we should have suffered somewhat, but that the trouble and embarrassments of the country have been infinitely aggravated by his measures, I do not doubt. We have had other periods of deranged currency, but they have passed speedily away. Why has this been no protracted and severe? For no other reason than that the whole power of the government has been exerted of ways and means, with instructions to report an ag led, the motion to refer sustained, and that to report an appropriation was lost by a large majority. The senate was engaged on private was to speak on the bankrupt law, The arrival of the fast sailing ship Eben Preble brings us important news from Canton to Feb. 2d.

She brings intelligence that the English merchant captain, or supercarge, Mr. Gibble, who was taken prisoner by the mandarin boats for trying to smuggle from one ship to another, had been released.

It appears that high commissioner Linn, either out of policy or from pure generosity, or a mere freak, treated Mr. Gibble with every possible degree of kindness and attention. He took him under his energial charge, took him to Carton, showed him all the curiosities of that dother periods of deranged currency, but they have passed speedily away. Why has this been so protected and severe? For no other reason than that the whole pewer of the government has been exerted to the destruction issued of to the sustaining of credit and confidence. It is said that Mr. Van Buren in has come to our principles. He says not. But that he is carrying out his own principles, those of his illustrious predecessor, in whose footsteps, with much more of policy than of dignity, he was pledged to follow. Has he come to our principles, our States Rights principles? It is not to be denied that he makes an annual profession of some of these principles; so did his procession and force hill predecessor. I do not look to his professionis; what has been fail to the profession of some of these points. First, as to the tariff: General Hannuor regards the compromise of 1852 as of the highest obligation, and is disposed to adhere to it; and if more revenue is required, not to increase the duties on protected articles, but to impose duties on those articles which are now duty free; such articles as the poosle of the north use and do not manufacture, and as to which, the exemption from duties is more beneficial to them than to us.

Lauistile, May 3d.

For the last three weeks we have not had one day to the week of uninterrupted sunshinc—for more than a week previous to the barbacue, which took place to-day at the mouth of Harrod's Croek. It had rained increasantly. The barbacue was given by the county of Jefferson, and it was fixed at that place, more particularly with the view of not allowing the locofuce party to say it was a city affair—the city being decidedly whig, and the county pretty equally balanced between the two partiss—the whige of the county were determined to show what they could de unaided by the city.

The appearance of a few stars last evening gave promise of a successeding day, bright and glorises ear any Old Tips' prospects—that promise was not, how ever verified—the morning comments, like the first the most intered improvements, deferral Harrison bolds precisely the opinions are that opinion. universal stagnation of all the employments of life and of that suffering and distress which results from a deficient or a witated currency.

I do not doubt that a bank, not sufficiently guarded, nay become a dangerous engine in the hand.

But whatever may be the dangers, real or supposed,
of a national bank, they sink into utter insignificance in comparison with those of a government bank; and that such is the alternative contemplated by Mr. Van that such is the alternative contemplated by Mr. Van Buren, I do not think any longer dcubtful; and I think I have heretofore proven it.

But it is said that General Harrison is an abolitionist, and that it was for that reason that he has been nominated over Mr. Clay—who was so obnoxions to the abolitionists, that none of theth would vote for him. You cannot have forgotten that the very men, and the very presser, who now tell you this, up to the very moment of the Harrisburg nomination, said that Mr. Clay was an abolitionist. Now you are told that he not only is not, but is especially objectionable to the moment of the Harrisburg nomination, said that Mr. Clay was an abolitionist. Now you are told that he not only is not, but is especially objectionable to the abolitionists. Both examt be true. What is it that has so said-lendly transformed Mr. Clay from an abolitionistinto an chemy of abolition! I will tell you. He is no longer a candidate for the presidency. He is no no body a way—and has therefore a respite from calumny. He is now a marvellous properman. But let that illustrious citizen—illustrious for every great quality that elevates our nature, be once more brough before the country, and the same war of calumny and falsehood will again be waged against him. Harrison—an abolitionist—a Vigginian, and that Vigginian a Harrison—an abolitionist! Does any one Harmon as abouttonist—a varginist, and may briginian a Harrison—en sholkitonist! Does any one really believe it?

No one man living north or south, has done and suffered as much in the cause of defending this institution of the south as General Harrison; and no statesman of this country has given as many votes against that iostitution as Martin Van Buren; and he never changed or wavered in this course until, without auch change, he could not have hoped to be elected president.

Now it is had enough to challenge our especial confidence for an old understaing enemy, who never creased to oppose us until the necessity of his political position made it expedient—but it is too had at the same time to ask us to denounce an old long tried friend, who has accrificed himself to our interests. What friendships can we hereafter expect—what friendship do we deserve, if we thus act? Allow me same time to ask us to denounce an old long tried friend, who has sacrificed himself to our interests. What friendships can we hereafter expect—what friendship do we deserve, if we thus act? Allow me to submit the proofs in support of the broad proposition which I have asserted.

Mr. Van Buren voted in the New York convention to confer the highest privilege of a freeman upon negroes. It was carried mainly by his influence; and it is to him that we are indebted for the fact, that the pewerful representation of forty members from the state of New York are sent here in part by negrees.
