It is remarkable, too, that in the inaugural address of the slightest hint is afforded of that relentless war point the currency, which so soon became the disninguishing feature in Jackson's administration, and hich has been continued with such fatal consendence to the country by Mr. Van Berri. The information which were displayed and which the country by Mr. Van Berri. The information which we continue to receive, from the States of Pennsylva.

The information which we have received, and with we continue to receive, from the States of Pennsylvia, New York, Michigan, Ohio, New Jerney, Mar land, Delaware, Vinjaina, Tenna mee and Grougis, well carculated to inspire us with fresh confidence the intelligence and particistism of the pepule, and with the conviction that their slumbering vengeance ed States' Bank, was productive at first of apparently the most brilliant results. The bubble was inflated during Jackson's eccoult term, and was blown to extreme fulness long before its close. During all this time, fallaction and articlein prosperity prevailed over the lend. Men waxed wealthy, they knew not and recked not how. The warning voice of the political see, was unbecoded amid the delusions of hollow fortune. The popularity of the president and the unparallelled success that for a few brief y care followed his incourse, were sufficient to sustain him triumphantly.

With Mr. Van Euran's inaugoration came rain and desolation. The league of state lanks had proserve a rope of sand. The bubble had burst. Permit on also to call your rerious consideration to the importance of an efficient organization. Hitherto you have been theaten more by the force of the superior drill and disciplines of your opponents, than by numerical alreagth; or tabler, their perfect organization has enabled them to bring all their forces into the field against you. That organization in the northern states especially, extends to ble appointment of committees in all the school litteries in the several towns. Let us take lessons in this respect from the enemy. For the first time we now present an unbroken and undivided front, writhing under a common suffering and animated by a common hope. Let every friend of his country's welfare be at his post, and in a few short weeks we will witness the total overthrow of the suthor of her calamity.
