When a man [illegible] confesses a theft, he says he 'took it in these words: 'This is my friend, of the steals any things I am responsible for.' INFORMANT INFORMATION.—The following letter, post marked St. Francisville, Louisiana, the 23d inst., was addressed to the editor of the Natchez Free Trader, and may lead to important disclosures:

Mr. Editor,—I was informed by a gentleman on the Mississippi to give you information concerning a flat boat, supposed to have been robbed. This boat was found scuttled and floating about twelve miles below Natchez, and was taken up at the plantation owned by Mr A. C. Henderson, formerly by Mr. Peter Little. The cable of this boat had been cut, and there was considerable blood on the floor. The articles found in the boat consisted of one dry hook, containing sundry accounts and the name of W. L. D. Patterson, written in it, who it appears, had been the manager or owner. The balance consisted of a few barrels of flour, a lot of tin buckets, one barrel of flour, a small lot of potatoes, wet hay, tallow candles, and onions, a few apples, and a number of articles too numerous to mention. Further information can be had by calling at the plantation of Mr. Henderson. You will please publish this letter.

Yours with respect,
JAMES ANDERSON.

We learn with regret the death of RICHARD HAGUDORN, editor of the Boston Atlas. His demise was awfully sudden. In the Atlas of the 17th, we find the following announcement:

"Mr. HAGUDORN, the proprietor and senior editor of this journal, will sail in the Acadia this afternoon for Liverpool. During his absence, he will leave the editorial department of the Atlas under the sole charge of Dr. Thos. M. Brewster, junior editor. The business transactions of the office will also be conducted by Dr. Brewer, as his authorized agent and attorney."

Before the Acadia sailed on that afternoon, Mr. HAGUDORN was stricken with apoplexy, and immediately expired.

We copy the following details from the Cincinnati Gazette, relative to ras alties perpetrated on various Western Banks, by an individual who figured in this city somewhat extensively last winter:

LOOK OUT FOR A SWINDLER.

Within a few days of the last of March, the Cashier of the Lafayette Bank of Cincinnati received by mail, a letter purporting to be from the Commercial Bank of New Orleans, of which the following is a copy.

"Commercial Bank of New-Orleans,
March 17, 1841

"W. G. W. Gano, Esq. Cashier
Lafay tte Bank, Cincinnati.

DEAR SIR.—In conformity with the request of W. M. Parker, Esq. of London, I hand you enclosed half my certificate of deposite in his favor, No. 300 pr $13,000 specie, which please deliver to him on presentation of the first half.

Mr. Parker is unacquainted in your city, and has adopted this course for safety and identity.

I recommend him to your favor.

Yours, respectfully,
GEO. O. HALL, Cashier.

On the 30th March, Mr. Gano in a letter to Mr Hall on other business, alluded to the above letter as follows:

"Mr. Parker has not yet appeared, when he does I shall hand him the half certificate sent for his use."

On the 31 April Mr Parker made his appearance and received from the Cashier of the Lafayette Bank, the half certificate, having produced the other half, which was carefully compared and found to correspond, and sold the same to the Commercial Bank in this city, receiving the one, two and three dollar notes of that bank, which he stated he intended to use in the purchase of Boor on the Muskingum. Not the slightest suspicion was excited, until to-day, April 15, when Mr. Gano received the following letter from Mr. Hall:

"Commercial Bank of New Orleans,
New-Orleans, April 7, 1841.

W. G. W. GANO, Esq., Cashier.

DEAR SIR,—I have this moment received your letter of the 30th ult, referring to a letter from me of the 17th instant, in relation to a certificate of deposite. As I have no knowledge of any such letter, and having also received one of similar purport from Mr. Gwathmey of the Bank of Kentucky, I fear some imposition has been attempted, and hasten this letter of to put you on your guard. I am, Dear Sir, yours truly,
GEO. O. HALL, Cashier.

The body of the forged letter from Mr. Hall, is written in blue ink, of precisely the tint of that used in the Commercial Bank of New Orleans, and is in the hand writing of the clerk of that bank, who fills up letters for the signature of the Cashier, as occasion may require. I recommend him to your favor, which, together with the name of the cashier, are in black ink; and on comparing it with a number of letters from the same bank, of late date, not the slightest difference can be discovered, either in the paper, ink, or hand writing. The paper especially bears the same water mark, and seems to be the same quality.

The public are requested to be on the alert. The person who represents Mr. Parker, is a small man, with brown or auburn hair, rather broad forehead, and keen expression of countenance.

A liberal reward will doubtless be offered, and any one who shall detect this rogue will be well paid.

It is possible that he may have disposed of the notes for checks on some of the Atlantic cities; in which case it is very desirable that any broker or bank who may have made the exchange, should write at once to their correspondents, to stop the payment, and if possible arrest this dastig villain.

British Post Office Arrangement with the United States and the Continent.—We have received an important document, giving us the regulations of the British Post Office in relation to letters sent by the steamers through England to the Continent. It was in reply to an inquiry made to the British General Post Office, and addressed to the gentleman from whom we received a copy:—

LONDON, March 8th, 1841.
GENERAL POST OFFICE

ESTEEMED SIR:—

In reply to your enquiry, I beg to inform you that letters from New York or other parts of the United States of North America, passing through England, can be forwarded from thence without the previous payment of the postage, to all the Continent of Europe, except as follows:

To Austria and her Territories.
The Italian States, including Sicily.
Spain and Portugal.

Letters for Sweden and Norway can be forwarded in the manner during certain months in the year, when the packets are running from Hull direct for Gottenburgh.

I am, esteemed Sir,
Your obed't humble servant,
THS. LAWRENCE, Ass't Sec'y.

C. Y. HAGUDORN, Esq.

By this arrangement it will be seen that letters for France, the German States, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Prussia, Russia, can be transmitted by the steamers through England without previously paying postage.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

TOBACCO.—The amount of duty paid last year on this article in Great Britain, amounted to nearly £2 850,000. Of the three kingdoms the respective proportions of duty paid were England, £1,973,000—Ireland, £613,000—Scotland, £273,000.

[From one of the Editors of the Philadelphia North American.]
WASHINGTON, April 15, 1841.

Many characteristic anecdotes are related of GENERAL HARRISON, connected with his habits during his brief sojourn here as President. It was his custom to take early walks, and he frequently took the markes in his way. On one of these occasions he purchased a new milch cow from a neighboring farmer and requested him to drive it to the President's House. The General was there to attend to the animal, and invited the farmer in to take some refreshment: procured a bowl of hot coffee, ham and eggs, and continued conversation with him about farming.

The farmer having finished his breakfast, remarked to the General, you have bought my cow and given me two dollars more than I asked, and a good breakfast besides; but if it would not be too much trouble, I should like to have a look at the President before I go. I am the President, replied the General. The farmer at first looked incredulous, having taken his hospitable friend for the steward; but convinced of his mistake, with much frankness observed, well General, I voted against you at the election, but I don't know you then. That simple remark—I did't know you then—will explain thousands of votes cast against the good General at his election.

General Harrison in his last out door exercise, was engaged in assisting the gardener in adjusting some flower beds. The gardening smacked that there was but little use in trailing the vines, so the cucumber from was consulted, as the boys would come on Sunday, while the family was at church and steal all the grapes; and suggested to the General as a guard against such a foe, that he should purchase an active watch dog. Bah!, said the General, to employ a Sabbath school teacher; a dog will take care of the grapes, but a good Sabbath school teacher will take care of the gospel and the boys too.

That vine will put forth its tendrils and its green leaves, but the hand that trailed it to the sun, is cold in the grave. The eye that would have watched its expanding verdure, is closed in darkness, and the heart that would have tendered to others the hospitality of its fruit, is now pulseless and still. There is nothing sage, good sense, or hatred in the tomb, and no friend to relieve its silent solitude. But there is a realm beyond the dark confines of this, where the flowers never fade, where the interchanges of affection are never suspended. God grant, dear reader, that it may be our's to reach at last this better land.

[FROM OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT.]
Washington, April 20, 1841.

President Tyler is now thoroughly established in the Executive mansion. The last remaining members of the late President's family have departed. At present, the President and his second son, John, a young man of fine talents and character, are the sole inmates; but it is expected that Mr. and Mrs. Jones, (the President's son-in-law and daughter) Mr. Robt. Tyler, the eldest son, and his accomplished lady, (a daughter of Mr. Cooper the Tragedian,) and the beautiful Miss Tyler, the only unmarried daughter that is of age to go into society, will arrive in the course of this week.

The President and his family possess what is very important to those who are placed in their high position before the country, the savoir vivre, and the White House will be, in their possession, what it never was under the administration of General Jackson or Mr. Van Buren, distinguished by the elegance and cordiality of the receptions.

As to business, the President has adopted a system which enables him to get thro' the work of the day with the utmost convenience and despatch. He rises early; and his first business is to clear his table, which, by the aid of his private secretary, he succeeds in doing by ten o'clock. From that time to twelve he receives visits of persons on business. From twelve to two he receives visitors generally, who may desire to call on him not for purposes of business. At two o'clock the Cabinet meets, and generally remains in session till four—sometimes till half past four. Five is his usual dinner hour; and unless he has company at dinner, he is again accessible to his friends at seven o'clock in the evening.

The city is again filled with office seekers, and the President is besieged by them; but from his tact, and from the system I have mentioned, he is able to get through their applications more easily than might have been expected.

Perfect harmony continues to prevail between the President and his Cabinet, and the address of Mr. Tyler has been favorably received by the public.—They recognise in it "the true principles of the government," and see his determination to carry them out. Mr. Tyler will not be "a candidate" for the Presidency of the United States, which every friend of the government within its proper limits, as prescribed by the constitution. He will resist the best abilities to restrain the Executive branch, and diminish Executive power and patronage. He has already shown his position these matters. But he will also exert his constitutional powers to prevent usurpations by Congress, of power which do not legitimately belong to the legislative department of government, led the way to that series of Executive usurpations by which the last two administrations have been distinguished. More of this anon.

The President and Cabinet have acted nobly by the relatives of General Harrison. One of his sons-in-law offers to one of the new western states—And of has the appointment of postmaster at Cincinnati, Ohio. The two grandsons of the General will be placed at West Point.

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE BEE.]
Baltimore, April 20, 1841.

The steamers from Europe have been looked for with some interest for the last twenty-four hours—the Great Western at New York and Cunard's line at Boston. It is probable that this day's mail may furnish one or both. Their news will be the same, as the one left on the 3d, and the other on the 4th April, and there is no great probability of news occurring in the difference of time that can materially interest us.

A stirring interest manifests itself in all classes of society in the preparations for the solemn funeral procession in honor of the late president—General Harrison. From present appearances, it will exceed in number and appointments all former efforts of the kind in Baltimore.

MARKETS.

Flour.—Sales of Howard street to moderate extent at $4 56, good common brands, up to the top of the market; City Mills $4 62½. Susquehannah at $4 56 @ $4 62½ for small lots.

TO THE HON RECORDER AND ALDERMEN OF THE MUNICIPALITY NO 1.

Gentlemen—I am informed by counsel upon whom it is that a Boat Vessel cannot have a berth in Municipal No. 1 to discharge if and how it obtain a position in a given time vessel to her another. The Levee, Basin, &c. are so crowded that he had an entire cargo of fruit, and he was promised the second berth. I shall be much obliged to be informed the first day, and according to the order the Kershaw, with the berth promised to the latter was given to the latter. The Kershaw is still without a berth. I am fully sensible that the Harbor Master has full authority in the premises, and it is my pleasure, from no disposition to find fault with him, but to be informed how I am to proceed in future. I have been several days discharging, and if my presence is known to the vessels lies on both sides, and her cargo is subscribed for sale to-day, which prevents her discharging to any considerable extent, as she is without a berth.—Many persons may say that the third berth is as good as the second. To those I say that I have been offered the same cargo of fruit, while on the one having the inside berth is hidden with cabbages some in hogsheads, and they will at once perceive the difference.

I am not aware that there is any ill feeling either to the Harbor Master or his Deputies, but it will serve to remind them that they should keep their vessels moving in their berths, and offer to those that arrive first the preference of a berth.

Yours most respectfully,
B. LORING.
