Commercial.

NEW ORLEANS, MONDAY NIGHT, October 10, 1842.

Since Friday last the business in the Cotton market has been to a very moderate extent, the sales having only reached 1,700 bales. Prices are again a little easier although no decline can be quoted. The already heavy stock is daily increased by large arrivals, and prices will short of support to a severe test, when such considerable quantities are placed on the market.
