RAILROAD BONDS IN THE INTERIOR

OBITUARY.

Tue Mail Boats.—The Mobile Herald of Saturday, says, that on Thursday, the Monmouth, one of the mail steamboats, broke her shaft, and of course was unable to make her regular trip. The Caroline is also disabled, leaving but one entire boat, the Northerner, for use. The Monmouth and Caroline will resume their stations to the line, as soon as the necessary repairs are effected.

Ballard Concert.—The Sacred Music Society gave their fourth concert this evening at the Church Church. The programme was very choice and arrangements to ensure a full attendance.

Astounding Display of Memory.—Professor Gazzoli, while exhibiting Bassell's phantasmia—an astronomical instrument—in Buffalo, offered to repeat suddenly from memory, and in any order required, any figures appearing in sixty hundredth of three-inch stanzas in numerous small columns on a sheet of paper 7 feet long by 18 inches wide. This he did apparently and without the slightest error. He says he has acquired this wonderful strength of memory by the use or application of a discovery of his own, which it is his intention to make public.

Case of John C. Colt.—The New York papers state that the application of the counsel of John C. Colt to the Supreme Court for a writ of Error, to carry up the case to the Court of Errors for argument, with a view to the obtainment of a new trial, was unanimously denied by the Judges. Application was then made, by the counsel of the accused to Chancellor Walworth, who also refused to allow the writ. Colt, therefore, remains in prison subject to the penalty of the law and the judgment of the Court sentencing him to be executed on the 10th inst., from which only a reprieve or commutation of punishment by the Governor can save him.

Slavery in the South.—Yesterday morning a mulatto belonging to Mr. Harris, a distinguished merchant of our city, made his appearance suddenly after an absence of more than a year. The boy had been enticed away from his master, from Pass Christian summer before last, by one of those ignorant philanthropists who occasionally make a visit of depredation and theft to our neighborhood. After a residence of some months at the north, the slave became dissatisfied and escaped to the south, and voluntarily sought his master's service and protection.

Hassle's bone for the abolitionists to gnaw.

Locofoco Defalcation.—A postscript to the New-York Commercial Advertiser of the 3d instant, says

"We have just been informed on the part of a locofoco office-holder, of another defalcation, by which the State will, owing to the miserable and dishonesty of locofoocism in this city, experience a very heavy loss Particulars we cannot give to-day, but assure our readers that these new instances of dishonesty on the part of their late locofoco rulers, will be found more atrocious even than those which have been already divulged."

Boston Miscellany.—We have received the November number of this monthly magazine. In appearance it is one of the poorest of our periodicals, it being got up with peculiar typographical beauty.—Among the contributors we perceive the names of Ingraham, Everett, Tuckerman, &c. The literary reputation of our country ought certainly to produce an able magazine, but the Miscellany, though very fair is no rival of the Knickerbocker.

The New-York Herald has been withdrawn from sale, the editor stating that without giving up the proprietorship, he has made arrangements to establish a branch newspaper in London and Paris, in the course of the next spring and summer. Probably Bennett had no bidders maugre the $25,000 profits.

Col. Johnson was in Delaware at the last accounts. He was received by the locos with great enthusiasm, and by the whigs with much respect. The old soldier is making a regular electioneering campaign, and seems disposed to work upon his own hook, unaided either by Mr. Van Buren's wire pullers, or Mr. Calhoun's "young democracy."

Pauline, is the title of a new work issued in the Double New World, translated from the French of Alexander Dumas by a lady of Virginia, and for sale at Morgan's Literary Depot, Exchange Place.—It bears the reputation of being a work of great merit.

Mr. Claxton, of the Great Western steam-ship office, has written a letter to Richard Irvin, esq., of New-York, contradicting most positively the oft-repeated rumors that this noble vessel is to be withdrawn from the trade.

Another Duel.—Two midshipmen in Norfolk, smitten with a love of the duello, indulged themselves by shooting at each other on the 29th ult. At the first fire one of them received his antagonist's ball through the left leg, above the knee.

Mr. Webster arrived in New York on the 3d inst, and took rooms at the Astor House. The Common Council tendered him the use of the Governors' rooms, where he was to receive on the 4th inst., an address from the Chamber of Commerce, to which he would probably reply at length.

Counterfeit United States half eagles are in circulation in Charleston, S. C. We have seen one or two specimens of this spurious coin in this city.

☞ A gentleman was knocked down by two ruffians on the Levee on Saturday night, and robbed of a gold watch.

Charles Dickens' work on America was received in New York by the steamship Caledonia, and will be republished in a few days.

Mr. Gyles, of the Baton Rouge, has our thanks for late river papers.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 1.

Horrid Murder.—We are informed by a gentleman from Spartanburg, that one of the most awful scenes was enacted in that village on Tuesday night last, which we have not recorded. A drunken man of the name of John Davis stabbed six men with a knife, two of whom, T. J. Lurder, Esq. and Mr Samuel Brawley, were killed. So far as our information could ascertain, the sufferers had not interfered with Davis, in any manner, but some one had molested him, when he arose from the bed in which he was lying (it being 11 or 12 o'clock at night) and commenced an indiscriminate slaughter. We refrain from stating any more of the particulars, as Davis was secured, and the affair will undergo a judicial investigation. Davis is about 70 years of age.—Mountaineer.

The Abolitionists of Boston, says the New York Courier and Enquirer, undertook on the 29th ult. to hold an indignation meeting in Faneuil Hall, on the subject of the Norfolk negro now held a prisoner on a charge of felony. The meeting found it impolitic to vent its indignation, but resolved to call a more powerful indignation from without. The several speakers no sooner attempted to address the assembly than they were hissed and hooted down by a portion of the audience, and the meeting was obliged to adjourn.

BURGLARY EXTRAORDINARY.

On Saturday night the United States District Attorney's office in the Park was burglariously entered for the purpose of stealing or stealing away certain papers in order to defeat a pending prosecution for perjury. Some time since an importer in this city named A. L. Franch was indicted, on seven different indictments for perjuries alledged to have been committed by him, in passing goods through the Custom-House. On these indictments he was arrested and held to bail, immediately after which Mr. Barrett, a lawyer connected with the U. States department in this city, by U. S. officer Welsh that a person deeply interested in the charge against French was in Europe, with $6000 to steal away those papers for him. This information caused Mr. Barrett to take more than usual precaution for the preservation of the papers, and he accordingly locked them up in a strong iron safe. On Thursday last Mr. Barrett had occasion to examine the papers preparatory to the approaching session of the United States Court, and on going to the safe in which they had been deposited, he found that the lock of it had been tampered with, by some person endeavoring to open it, in consequence of which Mr. Barrett found it difficult to open it, and when he did so could not look it again, and therefore pissed the papers, after he had examined them, into another safe. On Saturday night the window of the District Attorney's office was forcet up, and some person or persons entered the office and began to open a safe, and carried away all the papers contained in alphabetical table F.

These papers, which were very voluminous, related however only to the civil suits pending against French, and not to the charges against him for perjury, which Mr. Barrett had fortunately placed in another safe but a few days before.

The burglars have not been discovered, but a clew is supposed to have been obtained, which may lead to it. Police officer Smith yesterday called at the United States office, and informed the clerk that he had warned the officer who is to be broken open that night, in order to send certain papers. From the information which he obtained from a person to whom $200 were offered for committing the burglary.—The offer was made in writing, but no name attached to it, and the paper which contained it also contained a description of the papers which were wanted to be stolen. The information which is supposed to be in the hand writing of a person now held bonds to the United States authorities of this city, and through it they expect to have out the authors of the burglary.

OBITUARY.

It is with sincerest of sympathies that we record the death of a most excellent and amiable man, Archibald Gowan, on the morning of his days. On Friday evening the 18th inst, at 4 before 12, Bartley T. Lippincott, jr. son of Mr. Lippincott, of New York, but resident of New Orleans, died at the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Gowan, in this city, after a long and painful illness, which he bore with Christian fortitude. He was a native of New York, but came to this city some years since, where he married, and has resided ever since. Young, of great promise, and of the most engaging manners, he has left behind him a large circle of friends, who will long remember him with affection, and deplore his untimely fate.

Le Propagateur Catholique.—This is the title of a new weekly paper, published in this city, the first number of which has been laid on our table. Its object is to explain, illustrate and defend the Catholic faith. It is printed by Messrs Raver, and edited by an association of literary gentlemen. It is conducted with much ability.

NEW-ORLEANS BEE.

BY SUMMY, MUDGE & CO.

FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,

HENRY CLAY

(Subject to the decision of the American People.)

NEW-ORLEANS:
MONDAY MORNING, NOV 14, 1842.

CLAY CLUB.

The members of the Clay Club are requested to meet in their new room, at the corner of Gothamhouse street and Exchange Place, on Thursday evening next, at 6½ o'clock.

A full attendance is expected, that the necessary arrangements may be made for the reception of Mr. Clay, and that other business of importance may be disposed of at once.

By order of the President.
GEORGE C LAWRASON, } Secretaries.
WM. K. DELAVIGNE, }

The Bankrupt Law, we think, will be repealed. It has accomplished the immediate object for which it was passed, viz—it has given opportunity to the thousands who were crushed under the direction of 1837, to escape from their thraldom—and great numbers of them have already done it. There is still time for others, if they see fit. If they do not, it is their own fault. It cannot be expected that the law will wait for them an indefinite period. But little influence, comparatively, will be exerted for the continuance of the law. They who have obtained their discharge, have no longer any personal motive to induce action in the premises, and the prevalent sentiment of the people we imagine, is in favor of repeal. The law should, however, be made available to all who apply for its benefits before it is repealed, whether they have actually obtained their discharge or not. That is, the process should be allowed to proceed in all such cases as it would if the law had continued in force."

In the above paragraph, from the Journal of Commerce, we perceive the operation of one of the besetting sins of our national and State legislation. That pay or advises all persons concerned to hasten to reap the advantages of the Bankrupt Law, upon the supposition that the law is soon to be repealed. The appeal is predicated of the pronouness of our legislators to change, modify or repeal the acts of their predecessors. And the Journal of Commerce insinuates rather than directly asserts, that the Bankrupt Act has executed its whole office in discharging from their obligations those debtors that have already availed themselves of its provisions.

Thus it is with almost every policy adopted by the national legislature. No sooner is a law passed than the cry of repeal is immediately raised, and the public mind agitated by the unsettled and vacillating character of the general law. With the new tariff the same dubiety and incertitude are rife in the country. And we perceive that in England, commercial men and manufacturers, counting upon the unstable legislation of the nation, discuss the Tariff as a temporary expedient, and conduct their operations as though its repeal in a short space of time was a matter of course.

The Bankrupt Law, so far from having fulfilled its destiny, has not begun to be felt in its most beneficial effects. It is a short sighted view of the law to regard it only as the means of escaping from debt. The great object of such a law is to regulate credit, by making those who trust others, look into the means of the debtor, his habits, morals and industry for payment, rather than to the harsh dealings of the law. It has been remarked by a sensible writer, that if it were a capital offence to be unable to discharge a pecuniary obligation, people could obtain credit with more facility than now, for the creditor would trust to the terror of the law more than to the apparent means of his debtor for payment. Under the present state of the law, when the merchant knows that any person applying for credit can be discharged from his debt by a petition in Bankruptcy, unless proved guilty of fraud, will he not more cautiously give credit? Will he not make enquiry into the habits and business of the applicant, and permit him to run up an account in proportion to the guarantee furnished by his industry, punctuality and probity?

The great design of a Bankrupt law, is to substitute good character for the rigors of the law in obtaining credit—to predicate operations upon the industry of the applicant, rather than the terrors of the jail. In it effects this far, the law has only released a vast number of meritorious persons from obligations that pressed them to the earth, that crushed their energies and deprived them of the inducements to struggle.—These are advantages of no mean sort to the country, but as a principle entering into the formation of contracts its benefits have not been felt before its repeal is demanded. All the harm the law can do has been done, (admitting the argument for its repeal to be sound) would it not be wise to let it stand upon the statute book until its beneficial tendency upon credit is fully and fairly tested?

FROM HAVANA.

The steam ship Alabama, Capt. Woodle, arrived on Saturday, bringing files of papers to the 8th inst The street of Turnbull, the late British Consul, for attempting to excite seditious movements among the colored population, had thrown the people of Cuba into great excitement. Turnbull was brought into Havana on the 31 instant, as prisoner on board the Spanish war steamer Congreso. It appears that Turnbull left Havana in August last and proceeded to Nassau, and then embarked for the South side of Cuba, and landed near Nuevitas. There he sojourned for some time, preaching insurrection among the blacks and striving in every way to stir them up to overt acts of rebellion. Upon strong evidence being brought against him, he was at length arrested and despatched to Havana. Here he was detained upon trial but through the uniting exertions of the new British Consul his life was spared, and he was ordered to quit the country for ever. If this Turnbull had been caught in any of the Southern States at his fanatical and incendiary efforts, not all the British Consuls between this and China, could have rescued his neck from the rope. But they do things different-ly in Cuba. He was placed on board the English steamer Thames on the 6th inst., and sent back to his own country.

The Havana papers contain a few items of Mexican intelligence. Gen'l. Woll's despatch to the Minister of War and Marine, dated San Antonio, Sept. 11, mentions the names of 52 prisoners then in his possession, and states that he had liberated ten others, on account of youth and sickness.

Gen'l. Bravo, acting President of Mexico, reached the capital on the 20th October, and was to enter forthwith upon the the duties of his office.

Murders and depredations have been committed in the provinces of Tamaulipas and Chihuahua by the Apache and Commanche Indians.

JAMAICA.

By the brig Huntress, Capt. King, from Jamaica, in twenty-one days, we have received files of Kingston papers to 17th ult., inclusive.

The papers are barren of news; they contain, as usual, of the business of the free blacks, who seem to be induced to work until necessity compels them.—They attribute the cause of the evil, in part, to Baptist preacher.

The mate of the Am. brig Oconto, named Bishop, was condemned to ten days imprisonment, for using violent language to the captain, and threatening to shoot him and the steward.

The Huntress brought 65 doubloons.

Suicide.—The Coroner held an inquest on Saturday over the body of James M'Mullen, a cabinet-maker, who died suddenly at his residence in Roulstreet; circumstances reshipped in the course of the inquest which proved that the deceased had committed self-destruction by swallowing arsenic. An unfortunate partner is said to have been the cause of the rash deed.
