The Rock county (Wisconsin) Democrat belongs deendedly to the latter class. In the course of an armle on the objects of party, he makes the following in cautious admission:

"Strange as the assertion may sound to Democratic ears, we are not the enemy of the Whig party. We bear it no malice, we grant it all the worth it claims we wish it no ill—but yet we oppose its access to power. Why? Because in power the natural result of insprinciples would be evil to the country—evil to miss kind. Out of power they are different—they are soluting—they possess a restauring influence, which is boll aredful and beneficial." It is curious how the truth will sometimes leak of

On the 7th resolutions were presented to Mr. McLane by Mr. Janes G. Kino, Esq., Chairman of the Committee, who made a neat address recapitulating the eminemetervices of Mr. McL., and congratulating on the success with which his efforts for the presen vation of peace had been crowned. To this Mr McLane, replied as follows: MR. McLane's REPLY.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen—it is so difficult asal-most to discourage the attempt to find adequate words in which to make you my thanks for the sense you enternant of my public services, and for the flattering terms in which you have been pleused to give it ex-traction. Such a compliant to necessity if you terms in which you have been pieces to give it ex-pression. Such a compliment, p. occording from such a body of my countrymen, would be an ample reward for greater merit than I can possibly pretend to; and I will not attempt to disgoine the sine regamication it has afforded me. I certainly could not have been induced to retur a certainty coor not nave been induced to return to political life as the representative of my country abroad, unless I had been persuaded that, in the crissis to which you have referred, the views of my own government had been entirely consistent with such a soft ment of the Oregon question as ought to have ecured an honorable peace, and desse I had entertained the hope that I might be enabled in some despect to cooperate to that end.

For myself, after our several conventions of Id18, and Is28, for the joint occupanion of the territory, the internal of the United States, I had always regarded the Oregon question as lessed-pendent upon the lorge of the than question as lessed-pendent upon the lorge of the than

It is not our side, by dividing on the 49th paradel and the Stratas of Fuca, we yielded the south on cap of Vancouver's bland. Great Britain surreneered her previous claim to the pursidiction and unoccused territory between the 49th paradel and the Cotunban river. At the same, time we have effected a maternal modification of our former off, of the surrender of the respective previous claim to the pursidiction of the Columban river to the limitsh trade and British subjects generally. Attaching from deference to the views and opinions of others, which it was no less my wish than my duty to respect, I earnestly enceatured to effect a settlement ignored the surrender of the general trade for a period of twenty years; neverticeless, when that, from causes to which I need not now particularly refer, proved to be impracticed to the fludson Bay Company. I thought I was effected an interest but the practice of actions, independent of some investors and portation that in not only the interest but the practice of cations, independent of some investors and portation that is not only the interest but the practice of cations, independent of some investors and portation that is not only the interest but the practice of cations, independent of some investors and portation that is not only the interest but the practice of cations, independent of some investors and portation that is not only the interest but the practice of cations, independent of some investors and portation that is not only the interest but the practice of cations, independent of some investors and portation the following the cation of the commence of the practice of a commercial convention, the recent of the commence of the commence of the practice of the commence of the commence of peace, the fludson's Bay Company would estate to have any occasion or movive to navigate such a river and interess of our own citizens.

Universal satisfaction at the ad

Universal satisfaction at the adjustment of a difficulty so complicated and inveterate was scarcely to be expected, and yet it is a source of satisfaction to know that its general acceptableness to the country at large affords a sure guarantee of the continuance of our future peace. The tone and temper with which the negotiation was conducted, in their several departments, by both governments have been creditable to their wisdom and moderation, and have stready served to elevate our own in the opining of aiready served to elevate our own in the opinion of other nations.

I sincerely believe that these effects cannot be too highly appreciated; and if any portion of our fellow-critiens, in any section of the country, should feel that they had not obtained all the territory or advantages they had expected to acquire, it may be hoped they will, nevertheless, be satisfied that the national honor, so far from suffering, has really been elevated by the result, and that, in preserving the blessings of peace, and keeping our country steadily in a career of glorious prosperity, they will be amply compensated for any disappointment they may have experienced, and gain for more than an equivalent for any doubtful advantage to be sought only through the instrumentality of war.

Having now effaced, upon honorable terms the last cause that threatened the peace of two people of kin-cause that threatened the peace of two people of kindred origin, and associated by commercial relations more extensive and important than exist between any other two nations of the globe, may we not now hope to begin a new career of international intercourse, and by the uninterrupted pursuit of commercel and the arts, extend and cement our relational. It ought to be considered as fortunate that these results have happened at a moment when he be wisconiced.

and by the uninterrupted pursuit of commerce and the arts, extend and cement our relational. It ought to be considered as fortunate that these results have happened at a moment when, by the wadomi and courage of British satesmen, a new and important step has been taken in the enlargement of commerce, by which the trade of different nations must be stastly extended, and the motives of harmonious relations indefinitely multiplied. As between the United States and Great British especially, the causes which ought naturally to associate the two people upon an historiable basis, and contribute to their mutual prosperity, may now have fair play, and our competitions in future be confined to a generous trivilry in all that can advance the happiness of the people of both countries and of mankind at large.

I would do injustice to the occasion, if I should omit to state it as my opinion that, in the country and among the people I have just left, these expectations begin to be generally entertained; and that the settlement of the Oregon question will soon connect to be universally regarded as the knell of those inveserate jealousies and feuds which, it may be apprehended, have so long exerted a mischievous inducence over the people, if not upon the councins of both countries. I may say with certainty, also, that whatever may be thought of the result by some respectable portions of our countrymen, the terms we have ultimately obtained, no less the vindination of our rights and the ultimate approval of an honorable concession, have added another refutation to the charge of undue ambition, and to the imputation upon our national faith and stability, not uniregatently made in some quarters of Europe.

If those advantages be properly appreciated, the time is not remote when all will be ready to acknowledge and rejoice in the result.
