Abolition of the Corn-Laws. Amongst the many mischievous errors which Lo-colocoustn seeks industriously to propagate, for the A best resemble and the second of the second purpose of Reeping we are occusive impression that the principles of Free Trade are rapidly extending throughout the world, and working corresponding benefits, is the idea that the abolition of the British Corn-Laws was a propitiatory offering on the altar of ree Trade. A gromer solecism was never committed. The abrogation of the Corn-Laws, so far from heing an approximation to the principles of Fre Trade, was designed and hasoperated as a most comprehensive and effectual scheme of protection; and the very parties that were most clame peal of these laws, and that have profitted or will pro-fit most largely by the measure, are the manufac-

As long as the Corn-Laws remained unrepealed bread stuffs were dear. Operatives, even under the stritted system of low wages prevalent in Great Britain, must be fed, and these very bread-stuffs con tituted the larger moiety of their sustenance. Al-hough the rates of compensation of British manu-acturing labor be nicely adjusted to the bare quantum necessary to support existence, they must, within those stringent limits, be regulated by the price of food. Cheap bread makes low wages and vice versa This tact was not overlooked by a party habitually No. 40 Horocan vi., 3d Tituicipality, the manufacturers. They claimed protection from the Government, and sought it in the repeal of the Corn-Laws. In other words, they perittioned Parliament and sought in the repeal of the Corn-Laws. ment to allow bread-stuffs to come in free of duty, in order that they might reduce wages in the proportion of the cost of food, and thus be better enabled maintain an ascendancy which, with a protective maintain an ascendancy wincu, with a protective tanff in this country, had been shaken by our skill, enterprize and untiring industry. It was necessury as a measure of national policy, that food should be as cheap in England as in other manufacturing countries. Hence the repeal of the Corn-Laws. which has been ostentatiously paraded as a Free Trade enactment, while it is in reality a vital measure of protection to the important manufacturing interest

The manufacturers, themselves, know the value of protection too well, and are too careful in securing their own prosperity, to have advocated any laws which would have tended to their injury. To suppose the contrary, is to do violence to reason and prohability. The truth is, that Eugland ever since he manufacturing system became an object of nationa attention, has steadily fostered it by the most compresive system of protection. Nor has she ever relaxed single duty on imposts, except when driven to it by an invincible necessity—such for instance, as the remission last year of the duty of half-a-penny pe pound on raw cotton-a measure to which she was metally forced by the manufacturers themselves, wh were threatened with the loss of markets which they had previously commanded, by the stirring compet-tion of the United States and of those manufacturing ons, in which cotton was admitted free of duty And the same principle was at work in the repeal of the Corn-Laws—or rather a double motive existed but he one hand, a starving population clamored for an act by which they foodly an act by which they foully trusted to obtain the the lords of the boon and the shuttle, who moked beneath the surface of things, were equally son nous for its consummation, well knowing that in outcomity with that dreadful guage, by which the wages of operatives are maintained precisely at that which is indispensable to support life, chesp ore ad would enable them to bring down wages, and this secure them against the competition of all rivals It is well remarked by Mr. Corron in his admira-tion work on the Rights of Labor, that one poten-tics on which prevailed with the British Government abolition of the Corn-Laws, was that it was or a ssary to equalize at home the cost of bread-stuff with the cost on the continent. It was found that British manufacturers were emigrating to the continent, setting up, and rivalling those at home with great success, by the greater cheapness of food, and that there was no way of encountering this alarming competition, except by the abolition of the Corn-Laws. This done, and the evil got over, Great Britain could apparently, bid defiance to the world. We might trace out, article by article, every apparent conces network to Companies, of Bartoni, son of Free Trade made by the British Parliament and find that, with hardly an exception, either they were made upon articles not manufactured in Eng and find that, with hardly an exception, either they hand, or originated in a nocessity like that which atlaws the people cheap bread that they may be saus W. 3.4 (Spic K. and Spic K. an

When it comes to such an estimate in a vote of probably 400,000, the result might be considered problematical. For our own part, we can be also such as the strength of the strength o hardly believe that Staas Whigher, the strongest man in the State, can be beaten by the Whige, especially when the latter are divided among themselves. With disaffection in the Whig ranks to aid him. Wriser ought to be elected by 20,000 majority, and this was the lowest figure claimed for him a few days since. Any thing much short of that will be almost a triumph of the Whigs.

In the meanwhile, as a specimen of the feeling that exists in the city of New York, we give below two extracts—the first from the New York Escaing Past, a strong Locofoco paper; and the other from the New York Correspondent of the Charleston Escaing News York Correspondent of the Charleston Evening News From the Evening Post.

Room the Evening Post.

The Noninations.—The Democratic nominating committees in this city have been making what we were about to call a farce of the work of nomination but it is something worse than a farce. David C Broderick, of whose entire want of qualifications for the post we spoke of the other day, is nominated to Congress—thurst upon the Democratic voters of his district with an inter disregard of their wisshes.

The committee appointed to nominate members of the House of Assembly have made, as a correspondent justly says, still worse work. If they were in league with the Whig party to disgrace our own, as many magine, they could not have committed sin-act of grosser treachery than to give us the names of such men as Alexander Wells and Mike Walsh.

The Broderick nomination whitens to something like respectability when placed by the side of these.—There never was a bolder experiment upon party forhearance. We cannot allow ourselves to suppose for an instant that nominations so disgracetial as these will be treated any otherwise than as a mockery and an insult by every assembly of the Democracy of the city.

Our system of party nominations for the city is up-on its ices; it begins to flow pure feculence. From the Correspondence of the Charleston News.

From the Correspondence of the Charleston Neuse.

Our election comes off next Tuesday, when we are to decide upon the new Constitution, the new City Charter and Negro Suffrage, and have also to elect tour Members of Congress. Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Members of the Legislature and County Officers. Yet the Democratic nominations are not completed, and spine which have been made are of the worst and most contemptible character. There are opposition camidiates in two of our Congressional Districts, and there is every appearance that the party so long in the majority will lose the City, by their own missinglement and corruption.

Last night, after a long and violent struggle, Mr. Nicholl, a very respectable merchant in the first Ward, was nonjunited as the Democratic candidate in the 3d District. He may be elected, should the Natives persust in mining their candidate, the present representative. The 4th District is very doubtful, the 5th is certainly lost in spite of the weakness of the Wing candidate, and in the 6th there has been so far no nomination.

It is fervently hoped by the strungest party men,

It is fervently hoped by the strongest party men, that the entire Democratic Assembly ticket may be defeated. John L. Captain Branch Tanner, and Mears. J. T. Fijnt, M. Galhoum, R. C. Hynson and the Archinards will make sugar this year, and next year many more will follow suit, as it is now a settled question that the cane does equally as well here as on the coast. We do not doubt that Rapides, from being the largest cotton growing, will in a few years become one of the largest sugar making parishes, and feel confident that the change will greatly increase her wealth and prosperity.

The flags of the shipping, as well as from all prominant places threasphort the city have been flying at half-mast, and during the time the procession was recently from the Navy Yard. There was never a greater display on any similar occasion in our eity.

A Sinoular And Sinockino Munder was recently committed in Edgefield District, S. C., upon the bodies of three negro children, the oldest about the or four. The mother of the children, the property of a Mr. Brogden, was charged with the murder, arrested, tried and acquitted. The circumstances as narrated by the Charleston Evening News, are these:

On the 1st instant, the master of the woman and his whole family, except a daughter, left their house to visit a neighbor, or to attend a merting, and did not return until the next day. During the evening, and suntil late at night, the woman Clerius was heard by Miss Brogden to be singing and making merry, as is usual with negroes after their task is done and they have received their allowance. Next morning though, Clarissa seemed not to have arisen from her bed at the proper hour for business, and her young mistress went into the kitchen to rouse her, when she discovered that the three children were murdered and the mother had disappeared. Each of the children had its throat cut, and the oldest had been knocked in the head with an size. It accused that after the murder had been committed, the children had been carefully wrapped in their beds, as if they had lain down to sleep. The only proof against the mother was, she was the last person seen with the children, and that she made her disappearance from her mater's premises about the time that the homicide was committed.

KILLED BY A MADMAN.-Captain Barton, of th canal boat James Durbin, was killed a few days ago on the canal, between Toledo and the junction, by a assenger supposed to be insane. The man had to en up the idea that some one on the boat intended a violent attack upon him, and attempted to jump off the boat. Captain Barton seized him in order to save nim, and while doing so was stabled with a knife by the insane man, and both fell into the river. They got out, and the Captain walked about seventy-five iot learn what became of the insane man.

Sympathy Wasted.—We have heard an excellent story of one of the defented candidates in this (Alleghany) country. It seems that he, in company with a friend, was riding in a buggy, when he overtook an honest countryman, seated in a wagon drawn by two spirited horses. In addition to the farmer the wagon contained the saff of life, a barrel of whiskey and a keg of brandy. While passing leisurely slong, the horses took fright at something and ran off at full speed; but, before proceeding far, the wagon upset, and barrel, keg, and countryman rolled into the Orlio. Our candidate immediately sprang from his buggy, and, without divesting himself of his clothes, plunged into the river and searued the unfortunate man, jost an Cassius "from the waves of Ther did the tired Geom:" On reaching the shore they conversed for some time, but of the subject of their conversation we are perfectly ignorant. Candidates for office, however, generally talk about the election, and use all honorable means to secure their success. In a short time our friend left the countryman and returned to his caupanion, the water dripping from him the while as from a Newfoundland dog. Scating himself in the vehicle, he grasped the reins, gave the horse a terrible blow with the heavy end of his whip, and graffly said: "That d—d this fluxs in Bouser county."—Tituburg Caronicle.

The works of Dunas, See, Soullie, Scribe and the rest might be abridged fifty per cent. with positive advantage. The evil arises, doubless, from the practice of the French publishers, of paying by the volume. Thus we are now told that Scribe's Proulled Affiaga, originally designed to be completed in three volumes, is already extended to seven, with no appearance of an approaching close—the publisher having agreed to pay eight thousand francs for volume. —Com.
