The Forthosming Message.
On Monday next, the 7th instant, Congress re-as sembles for the short semion, which closes on the 4th March. Less than three months is allowed by the Constitution for the labors of the people's representatives—a period which, though the fathers of the Republic in their simplicity considered ample for all the purposes of the Government, has been found entirely mosfilicient, as it observes. purposes of the Government, has been found entirely insufficient, as it checks the spouting propensition of members, and restrains within comparatively reasonable limits the flood of eloquence which each particular legislative luminary thinks himself bound to shed over his benighted constituents. Congress, therefore, will be reduced to the alternative of working ingrewill be reduced to the alternative, of working mor or of neglecting its allotted task for the sake of a fri-volous contest of words. The session will be one of importance, and matters of grave moment will require deliberation and action. Let us hope it may be characterized by fewer partisan aquabbles than distin uished and disgraced the last.

sity begins to be manifested in regard to the probable topics upon which the forthcoming message of the President will treat. That document is looked for with an interest enhanced by the postion of the country, the war with Mexico, the finan-cial resources of the Treasery, and the recent politi-cal struggles and their results. Information which been vainly sought from the accredited organs of the Government, may be perhaps disclosed in the an-nual communication of both Houses of Congress. Is s possible, and all events desirable, that the countr the Mexican war; what probabilities, if any, exist, o us early termination of hostilities; how SANTA ARNA ame to deceive and dupe the Government into the awful blunder of permitting that thrice attainted traand enter Mexico in safety; what have been the ex nses of the war so far and what are the estiof us probable cost for the future. These are a questions of much import, upon which the message Perhaps while Mr. Pol.k is discoursing of these mat ters, he may undertake to explain the exalting refe rence in his previous message, to the bloodless acqui o acknowledge that he jumped to a conclusion a

As its prospective effect has been, accord ug to the asseverations of the locofoco journals, ng an active demand for the products of America agriculture, and enriching our farmers, its operation then it goes into effect must certainly be still mor becomes the law of the land, what potent market may not be anticipated from it, when its beneficen may not be anticipated from it, when its beneficent provisions are in full force. While on this subject Mr. Polk may advert to the kindred one of the late elections. Doubtless an ingenuity and astatement which have so completely demonstrated that the Tariff has occasioned the increased price of bread surfails before it went into operation, may be employed with before it went into operation, may be employed with equal cogency in showing that the recent political contests in Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, Maines, Georgia, Florida, New Jersey, Sc., are "confirmation strong as Holy Writ" that the Tariff of 1846 has been completely ratified by the popular verdict. Whether the President will endeavor to enforce this permission of the subject is uncertainty albeit, such a course would be in legitimate keeping with the stuple arguments of locologo journals. One thing, however, seems positive, viz: that the message will adhere to the New Tariff as the Shibboleth of marty feature. Mr. Pour is ambitious of the feature of the following account of the severa had elapsed since a storm of a simple character, ravaged this bay; then, however, seem so the north and the result of the sate and in from the morth, while on the present occasion the wind was from the south. The Ness consequently views Gen. Kearsan's pro-clamation declaring the whole department of New

"The result of the election in Massachusetts has damped out hopes of the old Bay State. We thought there was more manilmens in her people, more love of liberty, more contempt for the tools of the cotton Lords, and a higher appreciation of what the character of her public servants ought to be."

PAYMENT OF THE LOAN.—The New York Correspondent of the Baltimore Patriot speaks of the payment of the Indian Delegation at Washington.—Finding neither Commissioners or presents has much disappointed the Indians, and fears are entertained that serious mischief may accrue to our frontier settlements, unless conteiling is done to conciliate them.—Gen. Houston has written to the Messurs. Torrey to do all in their power to prevent dissatisfaction among them, and directed them, on his own personal responsibility to distribute, from their own goods, presents among them to the value of $5,000, or $10,000 if necessary; and he will hasten to Washington, in order to induce, if possible, such action on the part of the Government as will save the frontier from the evils of Indian hostility.
