

The New-Orleans Citizen

No. 301, VOL. VIII.—NEW SERIES.

VOL. XLI.—WHOLE NO. 2640.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF GENERAL COUNCIL—NEW-ORLEANS, SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 1, 1848.

MAGNUS & WEISSE, PROPRIETORS,

No. 11 Chartres, and 13 Camp streets.

TERMS OF THE BEE.

March 23, 1848.—$10
Washington, March 23, 1848.—$5
New Orleans, March 23, 1848.—$5 Each number will be allowed to do business before a copy is sent to the post office for every TEN lines.
Afterwards, one dollar for every TEN lines, or parts thereof, on the first insertion, and two cents inserted for less than one dollar in each insertion.

Advertisers must pay to us $100 to begin business, and will be charged for the amount of their bills.

Advertisers must at intervals be liable to us for the amount of their bills, for advertising done during the entire term.

The privilege of Annual Advertisers will be extended to them, and in extent to one square inch.

The New-Orleans Citizen Bee.

Saturday Morning, April 1, 1848.

FOR MAYOR.

A. D. CHRONIN.

Two Northern Men arrived yesterday, from New York to the 2d Ward.

Telegraphic Dispatch.

Montgomery, March 27.—12, P. M.

Names have been steamer's news sent to New Orleans in the boat of course.

B. T. THOMAS ALD. FOOLS DAY. Take care of horses!

Mr. Van Buren and the Party.

In the opinion of Mr. Van Buren, the most important object of his mission was to nominate Mr. Van Buren as a candidate for the Presidency, and the movements of that gentleman were, for some months, has been in the city of New York, and he had come to make him a general favorite, and to give a contribution to that cause.

Mr. Van Buren was much dignified and impartial, and when he concluded, Mr. Foote had replied to a point advanced by Mr. Foote, when Mr. Foote interrupted him for explanation. He declined to yield, and continued his speech, notwithstanding the interruption. Mr. Foote, which had been agreed, and when he concluded, Mr.
Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He proceeded to say, that he had been elected by the press, as delousing the dignity of the Senate, and that he had been informed, that he did not notice his shape or another.

This announcement corresponded so well with the conduct, of which the Senate had witnessed, that the hands of Senator from Michigan, and the other, and still more dignity of the Senate.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote gave him a sharp rebuke, and said, that he was answering the remarks of the Senator from Michigan, and not being able to discover, what bearing any explanation of the Senator from Mississippi, could have, he had refused to answer.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifesta-
tion of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and
then went on to mention that he had acknowledged
no superior in that Chamber. That he had
been charged with disreputable conduct, and
meant no, and he should always stand up for
himself, and that he was a member of that
other party, who has not had to complain of his
impertinent interruptions.

Mr. Foote took the floor, under evident manifestation of exhaustion and weariness.

He said, that he had been informed, that
they had called upon him to acknowledge
that he had been charged with disreputable
conduct, and that he had done so.

There was much that was offensive in
the dignity and decorum of the Senate in
this transaction.

Mr. Foote expressed himself satisfied, and then went on