a the prospects of the crop in the Northern part religencer expresses gloomy opinions in regard to the prospects of the crop in the Northern part of the State. He says:

Never,—not even in 1846—have we aren greater destruction in Coston fields than we observed and handled in Concordis and Gatahous is paramer, this week, in the course of a trip up black River. Many of the Coston plantations are already without a green lead on them, while there is not a field in the whole length of Black River on either saids that is not riddled by the cateroillar. It is a sorry sight to see the fond in pees of the planter thus rapidly gnawed away, while he fooks with loathing, but poweriesely, on the millions of reputes that are working his run.

On the Tensan river, the destruction is not so fearful as one Back river, although there is scarcely a field free from worms.

At Trinty, in Catahoula parish, La., on Wednesday last, we converted with intelligent planters from Little River and the lower part of Quachite river, on the subject of the cotton crop. They assured us that the worms and firm in the belief that they could not approach to a half of a crop in Catahoula parish, this year.

There would not be one Cotton planter on Black River, next year, if the means were at hand to engage in the culturation of the Sugar cane. All those who can command the means are resolved now to abandon Cotton culture with the gathering of this year.

High up on Black River, on several magnificant plantations, we saw the finest cane that ever bountified a field. Sugar is not believed to be an uncertain crop there, now, and people are painting to engage in it.
