THE MEDICAL COLLEGE.

The annual course of lectures and demonstrations in the Medical Department of the University of Louisiana commenced this week. We are gratified to learn that the attendance of a large and intelligent class is expected. The college from its establishment some fifteen years ago, has [illegible] has been steadily increasing in [illegible] and influence. It [illegible] the pioneer of what is now a twenty-six [illegible] Two more than number will probably [illegible] this year.

The success of the Medical College of the legitimate and inevitable result of circumstances [illegible] it place New Orleans is accompanied the [illegible] to the study of medicine to be found in the South. It does not furnish [illegible] to become an army of professional talent as the [illegible] Sounds with pretentiousness and surgeons of high reputation, enlarged experience [illegible] skill. The very name of the profession [illegible] and without the expenditure [illegible] a dollar beyond the price of his passage's [illegible] Arrangements which are well known, which require no superlatives whatever, and which are wholly unconnected with any attention upon the repose of the dead, guarantee these facts.

The medical student, who expects to practice his profession in the South and South West must learn [illegible] of the [illegible] he will have to begin his [illegible] of that region are [illegible] many respects [illegible] Southern [illegible] and climate [illegible] The extensive establishments [illegible] open to the student—clerical lectures [illegible] de vered during the winter at the bed-side [illegible] the patient. Surgical operations, frequently [illegible] the most complicated and different character, [illegible] performed in the presence of the whole [illegible] class. Above all, the audience [illegible] has a reality of anatomy and the practical part of [illegible] surgery given to New Orleans advantages [illegible] not [illegible] any [illegible] in the [illegible] Few [illegible] of [illegible] have been [illegible] so very brilliant [illegible] as [illegible] the present [illegible] Professors [illegible] have been [illegible] in every branch [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the city [illegible] have been [illegible] to [illegible] Hospitals [illegible] Besides [illegible] Parish that is Louisiana, by [illegible] to come, he has time and again, [illegible] unhesitatingly recommended his opponent and [illegible] elected to the Legislature. He will probably [illegible] make a better show than any Whig candidate. He would undoubtedly poll the party vote, and in the Piney Woods Parishes would obtain a considerable Democratic support.

We will [illegible] whatsoever the Candidates may be, whether Whig or Democratic—we trust that the [illegible] of the Third District, who are, almost to a man, friends of the Compromise and Union of the Union, will take care that the [illegible] of the opponents are made [illegible] and that [illegible] themselves [illegible] [illegible] unanimously [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
