Friday Morning, July 11, 1851.

NOTICE.—In order to postpone the introduction of my bill, NO. 10, ENTELOMIE, my Doctor, under the name of Dr. THOMAS HARRISON, my Lawyer, under the name of J. W. FAIR, and myself, under the name of G. F. WELLS, will meet at the House of Representatives on Friday evening, July 11, 1851.

The NEWSPAPER has arrived through yesterday with the latest news.

PRODUCTS OF MEXICO.

The remark has often been made, that if Mexico could be won by the Anglo-Saxons, it would be the most populous and most powerful country under the sun.

We know of no such country, more abundantly endowed by nature, and, perhaps, none for which man is so accomplished a cultivator.

Just imagine what would be the condition of Mexico in half a century, if she had the same self-governing and self-reforming population we now possess of the Republic from the Sierras to the broad lands of her Capital!

It is excessive and varied, what is to come of the products of her agriculture, her mines, her manufactures, and of course, of her mineral wealth.

Every variety of soil and climate.

Tropical heat to Alpine snows, would be made subservient to industry and skill, and of piling natural resources, insurance, enabled a nation, impervious and impetuous, to a government, a truly popular, but not despotic.

It was a wise and sagacious policy of the French to annex Mexico, from the point of

Mr. FAIR, a gentleman perfectly familiar with our subject. To turn such an adequate idea of the agricultural wealth of the country, Mr. FAIR has written a speech, which he delivered at the meeting of the Mexican Congress, at the end of his speech, he said, "Mexico is now a nation, and we are anxious to make her a great nation."

He said, "Mexico is now a nation, and we are anxious to make her a great nation."
