NEW ORLEANS, FRIDAY [illegible] JUNE 17, 1853.

THE DAILY BEE.

Friday Morning, June 17, 1853.

[illegible] Republican [illegible] through [illegible] day, with the Mails.

The editor thinks all thoroughly proved has rarely been more completely illustrated than in the splendid passage of arms on article on the character and policy of the Pierce administration. Let it be remembered, and remembered well, that, it is the opposition of a Democratic press—and these that, but a Union Democratic press—one that, without professing a purely partisan [illegible] to Democracy, but [illegible] ably defended its own individual [illegible] ill means. We allude to the New York Sun. Other New York quasi independent Democratic such, for instance, as the Herald, have come to the [illegible] giving a fight and treacherous support to the Democratic party, but the Sun, during a career of many years has, we believe, never [illegible] to its fidelity. Its course [illegible] is considered as indicating something more than the unmeaning discontent of a disfigured aspirant for office. Were are dissensions of the Sun's present subject:

Those [illegible] when we enumerate [illegible] men or two good appointments made by the present President. Even [illegible] of personal evidences that he is [illegible] of right) shows the narrow [illegible] of party, or that he is a man fitted to impress upon the public mind the stamp of a resolute [illegible] irresistible energy. We have yet few, if any, indications that he is a second Jackson, or that he will ever rise to more than a respectable compromise between Old Fogyism and Young America. The three months here, so far as the people have received information, have served chiefly to reconcile [illegible] and to [illegible] final interests, in the matter of appointments. Dividing the honors and the spoils fair accepted in such a [illegible] of the minor [illegible] their division has partaken too much of a timid, pedding, [illegible] spirit to [illegible] as very favorably. We [illegible] this [illegible] as that the appointments [illegible] indicate the design and basis policy of the administration. If they do, it is the [illegible] As commentaries upon the [illegible] make it as "clear as mud." We [illegible] attempt to draw an inference as to the administration's policy from the character of the appointments we would express it in one word—conciliation.

In the distribution of office the administration has shown that it understands the [illegible] of the "Lion and Unicorn." In so far, it exhibits [illegible] independence. The President should never have [illegible] to discriminate on the principle of playing fashion [illegible] faction. He should, even in his appointments, have more distinctly marked that he was the head of a party, and not the chief of a set of factions personal. He should have shown from the very outset that he recognized the great truth, that, in a Government, [illegible] is not the Government of factions, or even of a party, but of the whole people—that the [illegible] of a free nation lowers the standard of a true democratic government [illegible] he bows low to the spirit of party [illegible] and denounces inquisitorial revenge for honest differences of opinion and a [illegible] independence of action. He should not give hypocrites the advantage over sincere men, nor [illegible] capacity and honesty to oppose the intolerant.

These of our readers who care to recollect the views put forth in the Bee, will not have forgotten that previous to the inauguration of Gen. PIERCE, we stated repeatedly our conviction that the popularity and strength of the new administration would mainly depend upon the moral incorruptibility and firmness of the President elect—that attempts to conciliate factions by an equitable partition of the spoils, would result in ignominious failure; and that Mr. PIERCE must be prepared sternly and unwaveringly to persue the straight and narrow path of duty—resisting alike the blandishments and threats of the motley parties which would surround him, and demonstrating from the start an inviolable resolve to be neither bullied nor cajoled from his purpose. We intimated that any other course, and especially a system of plausible and palliative [illegible] in the [illegible] of factions, by the [illegible] hope of filling hungry mouths, and stopping intestate demands, would engender [illegible] animosity and discord among the factions, and would [illegible] and demoralize the administration. The plan adopted by the President, as explained in the preceding extracts from the New York Sun, shows that we [illegible] what has occurred, that Mr. PIERCE's policy has been erroneous; that expedients have been substituted for duties, and that in striving to satisfy everybody, he has raised a multitude of malcontents.

We have little doubt, from evidence before us, that Mr. PIERCE entered upon the functions of his office with conscientious intentions. Could he have superadded immutable determination to unimpeachable motives, he would have crushed the importunate beggars that environed him, and his administration would have commanded both popularity and respect. But the outward pressure was prodigious, [illegible] the storm of faction found in his backed the [illegible] ing spirit that would have enabled him to stand up against the opposing elements, and with scarcely an effort to maintain the lofty purposes penciled in the Inaugural, he yielded every thing for temporary tranquility. A piebald and paltry system of shifts and conciliation has wrought him no great wisdom or power. Free Soilers are once the less opposed to slavery, because they hold office under the Government; while Union Democrats are intensely disgusted at beholding Abolition and Disunion literally rewarded for promoting treason.

One more brief passage from the Sun will corroborate what we have said, and will prove that some of the strongest Bigots of the President are preparing to abandon him:

And now we would frankly say that the Administration will err sadly if it relies upon the skill with which it appoints office to retain its hold upon the affections of the people or even to sustain a party. Recent events have shown how little hold mere party watch words have upon the people. Party at the present time is little more than a fiction. The people are coalescing into one great party to sustain the Union, and all sectional interests. Their allegiance is to principles and measures, not to party leaders. They are moving onward, and they wish the Government to lead not reluctantly to follow; and if the present Administration proves unwilling or unfit to lead and direct, they will sweep it away and make another—in the shape of a better.

There is hardly a Whig journal in the land which has spoken of the Administration in terms of such severity as this Democratic sheet employs. Has not President PIERCE reason to exclaim "save me from my friends."

WHIGS

RALLY!! RALLY!! RALLY!!!

The Whigs of the Sixth Representative District, are requested to meet on SATURDAY, July 9th, at half past seven o'clock, for the purpose of forming a [illegible] and to nominate Delegates to the State House Convention. The meeting will be held at the corner of Philip and Royal streets.

(A list of 120 signers, see the French side.)

☞ JOHN SLIDELL, U. S Senator elect, arrived at Washington, on the 93d inst., en route for Europe.

THE SONS OF TEMPERANCE.—This worthy association will celebrate the anniversary of National Independence at Mechanic's Hall, on the evening of the 4th instant. There will be music, singing, and various patriotic and appropriate addresses. We acknowledge the receipt of a polite invitation to the present.

BIADON SPRING.—We invite the attention of all who are interested on the subject, and particularly of invalids, to the clear and succinct resume of the analysis of CULLEN'S celebrated Bladon Spring's, by the distinguished chemist, MR. AVEQUIN. It will be found in our advertising columns.

SOUTHERN BANK.—The board of Directors of this institution met yesterday, and elected ROBERTSON Esq., President, and JAMES L. WILMAT, Secretary. They could have not made more judicious selections.

NEW BOOKS.

Our thanks are due to the publishers, through J. C. MORGAN, of the Literary Depot, Exchange Place, for the following new publications:

Putnam's Monthly, For July.—A capital number, by turns critical, grave, [illegible] saying and grave and speculative. The leading article on the Educational Institutions of New York is illustrated by excellent designs. "Life in Hawaii," "Dinner Time," "Mrs Peck's Friends," &c., are spanking sketches, while the editorial notes history a specialized pun and well filled and thoughtful miscellany.

John Randolph of Roanoke, and other sketches of character, including William Wirt. Together with tales from real life, by F. W. Thomas. (A. Hart publisher.) This is an amusing book. It can scarcely claim higher pretensions. The memoirs of Randolph and Wirt have no depth, and no great delicacy of discrimination, but they are cheery, and anecdotical. The tales and stories appended, possess occasional merit.

Poems, by T. B. Read. (A. Hart publisher.) We have read just enough of this volume to lay it down with the conviction that its author is a clever rhymester, with enough of the divine afflatus within to, to generate neat and classical inspirations. To the higher region of poesy he has never soared.

Silas Slick's Wise Saws and Modern Instances. (Blanchard and Lea, publishers.) As pleasant a volume as one would desire to beguile a Summer day—full of fun, shrewdness and originality.

Woolfers' Mechanical Drawing Book for self instruction, No. 6. With the help of this sterling treatise, any body, not absolutely destitute of brain, will learn to draw.

CASH-BOOK SALE OF SILK LINENS, DRY GOODS, &c.—The particular attention of dealers is called to the advertised sale of boots, shoes, hats, caps, &c., to take place at 10 o'clock this morning, at No. 61 Old Levee, between Custom House and Hospital streets.

TELEGRAPH BY THE NIAGARA.

By telegraph and mail we have dates additional three days to those brought through by the Niagara, arrived at Halifax.

The Steamer Pacific at Liverpool from Quebec, discharged 1,000 tons of wheat, and 1,000 barrels of flour. Other arrivals of the week had brought the Commissioners and party to Liverpool.

Liverpool, June 4.—Cotton has undergone a very little alteration, and the sales of the week are 30,000 bales, of which speculators took 2,000 and exporters 3,000. Fair Orleans is quoted at 5¾d.

Manchester, June 4.—Advices from this district are favorable. The demand for goods is steady and prices firm.

Hamburg, June 3.—Sugar is dull and prices have declined ½ to ¾ per cent.

Antwerp, June 3.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Havre, June 3.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Bremen, June 3.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Trieste, May 31.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Alexandria, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Smyrna, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Malta, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Gibraltar, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Athens, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Constantinople, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Malaga, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Lisbon, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Oporto, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Cadiz, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Barcelona, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Valencia, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Marseilles, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Genoa, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Leghorn, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Naples, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Rome, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Venice, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Milan, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Turin, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Vienna, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Berlin, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Frankfort, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Munich, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Stuttgart, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Carlsruhe, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Darmstadt, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Cassel, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Hanover, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Brunswick, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Dresden, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Leipsic, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Berlin, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Frankfort, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Munich, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Stuttgart, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Carlsruhe, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Darmstadt, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Cassel, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Hanover, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Brunswick, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Dresden, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

Leipsic, May 28.—Cotton is dull and prices have declined ½ per cent.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A slave [illegible] Virginia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]