The Northern Mail took yesterday from this office 1,500 papers for distribution along the line of the Mobile & Ohio railroad. This is the largest number ever issued from this office in one day, and the mail has been literally rammed with them. The Bee is now published every day in the year except Sunday, and has a regular circulation of over 10,000 copies. Its circulation is steadily increasing every day, and it is destined to be the leading paper of the South. Its circulation in the country is nearly equal to that of all the city papers combined.

A TEMPTING INSERTION.

The New York Times has published a letter from Mr. Slidell, in which he says that the statement that he had been in favor of a dynasty upon the assumption that the nation could be governed by corruption, is false. He says he was not, which party questions he was in favor of, and which he was opposed to, he would condemn any set of measures to which such motives were attributed. He says he was in favor of the two parties voting freely and independently on all questions, and that he was opposed to the use of the money that they had power to control, to corrupt the people.
