The New Orleans Bee.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY MORNING, JANUARY 18, 1855.

THE DAILY BEE.

Thursday Morning, Jan. 18th, 1855.

THE MAIL.—Yesterday's mail was large. We received all morning papers from New York of the 11th, except the Herald. From other sources the mail came through as late as dated.

EXPENSES OF THE WAR.

The European war, the effects of which are so distinctly felt in this country, appears at length to have awakened the British nation from an apparently ballet-like state which it from an apparently ballet-like state which it from an apparently ballet-like state which it
