He died young in years, but had already made his mark in the periodica serie to Democracy do no had already made his mark in the periodical literature of the day, as a writer of uncommon brilliancy and vigor, who gave promise in maturer manhood of intellectual powers of rare excellence. Our poor humanity is so constituted that the death of those who surround us, even at the full period of oustomary longevity, invariably produces a painful shock; but infinitely more appalling is the impression when the spoiler seizes upon the youthful and the grided—who in the ordinary course of nature ought to have lived a gento has exchanged his the many-hued robe reclaim that they do the superserviceable youthful and the gifted—who in the ordinary course of nature ought to have lived a generation beyond the span allotted by a mysterious Providence. Perhaps on this account we can scarcely remember to have experienced a sharper pang of sorrow, than upon hearing of the pramature decease of Jesers Bernan.

Our acquaintance with Mr. Bernan was of the slightest possible character, but we knew him well by reputation, and still better through his writings. In the latter we discovered manifest evidences of a lightly cultivated understanding, miscellaneous but extensive scholarship, an ardent, bold and scaring imagination, yet unchastened by the rever dawned, unti coaring imagination, yet unchastened by the apse of years, great earnestness of thought at that his old Con-· longer ii. posses end conviction, and that unquestioning sin erity of faith which is one of the constan certiy of faith which is one of the constant distinguishing traits of genius. As a writer, he presented a style of native eloquence and nervous strength, marked somewhat by manorism, but relieved by a vivid and original tancy. He must have written with great rapidity and ease, judging from the copious contributions of his pen to the daily press. His opinions on many subjects were at variance with these of his cotemporaries, and were semetimes unjopular, but they were always expressed with the utmost manliness, and they commanded respect, because they nd they commanded respect, because the zere known to be the uttlerances of a truth ul spirit. In his private and social relation we have reason to believe he was most am we have reason to believe he was most ami-able and exemplary.

Mr. Barnan has been anatohed from exist-ence at a line when the career of most men is hardly determined, yet he leaves a thousand grateful recollections in the minds of his sur-viving friends. ANY "DEVICENT POPULATION AND YOUR PARTY OF THE CONTROL AND YOUR PA A New "DEVELOPMENT."-A New York pa A New "Development."—A New York paper pretends to have intelligence of a new sholition wrinkle in Massachusetts. It says that an extensive organization has been discovered throughout that State, whose members are well drilled in the use of the musket and bayonet, together with the use of the walking strick, who are subdivided into schools, classes and squads, for the purpose of resisting the exercise of the Pogitive Slave act. The colored men are excluded, and the total number of members is known only to the five who form the executive directory. It is stated that it is a common comment that this organization dated back the Barna saffair in Boston, and that it now extends to every town and village in the State. Its further stated that the leaders now defy the general government to capture eident to McEny. The father, not daring to give a flat reducal, put them off by saying he believed the was engaged.

Subsequently, Heber C. Kinshall called on him, and offered a yoke of oxen and a wagen for the girl. The purchasing of young girls from their parents is not uncommon here; if the father does not give or sell the girl is come of them, he will soon be out of from the ohurch. One cause of the anxiety to get this girl is the fear of losing her; for her visits to my friend's family endanger her Mormonism. Last night, in the ward meeting, the speaker said that if she did not oense wisting the Gentlies, she should have her throat out; that if her father did not do it.

"They are after a little orphan girl who is living with iff. Dotton (an estimable Gentlie), the parents died on the way here, and the Mormone hrought her through. They literally stripped her, taking off every rag of clothes, not excepting her chamias. They itsend the self-girl stripped her, taking off every rag of clothes not excepting her chamias. They itsend the self-girl stripped her, taking off every rag of clothes not excepting her chamias. They itsend the self-girl stripped her, taking off every rag of clothes and take sole girl and clothed her; and she has been living with them about three years. Being now fifteen, the Mormone want to make a spirit uni' of her, and are making every effort in their power to do so. Mr. D. forbade them coming on his premises, threatening to shoot them if they did. But various attempts have been made to inveigle her away; so far, however, without success.

EAGRING THE UNITED STATES COURSE.

"On the night of the 29th December, the office of the clerk of the United States Supreme Court, which was also the office of the United States Circuit Court, was broken into and robbed of all the records, bocks, and papers of every kind, together with the library of T. B. Williams and Judge Stiles, containing some sine hundred volumes.—
They were thrown into a vanit of a privy in an adjoining yard, which was then filed with straw, shingles, and other combustible materials, and burni; thus destroying all—the supposed object being to break up the United States Courts.
