PROMISES AND FULFILLMENT. One of the Western papers apeaks of the xam glorious boasting of the New York bank presidents, just prior to the suspension of payments by those institutions. The charge of holding out fadiatious promises, and indiging in empty wants is well founded. The conduct of these officials argues either an absolute contempt for the intelligence of the community, or a willful determination to deceive. For weeks before the suspension the New York banks pursued a system of theorem contraction, and aithough, while calling in their resources, every periodical statement proved that their specie was dimensibling rapidly, and that their condition manishing rapidly, and that their condition was procarious in the extreme, they kept up demands upon them. A bank in New exceeds three or fourfold the amount sherie basis: but the banks of New
