SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 9.

DISUNION.

There are certain persons forming themselves Southern State rights organs, and, we presume, arrogating to themselves by far the largest proportion of Southern patriotism, and which ever and anon exercise their pens and pencils to regale their readers with elaborate disquisitions in favor of a dissolution of the Union. In the opinion of these writers the South is in a condition of perpetual and unrelieved vassalage to the North, and every hour of continued submission deepens the furrow of degradation already stamped upon her. It is true that much of this humiliating servitude, this intolerable burden of oppression would appear to consist in nothing more tangible than the rhetorical fantasies in which these writers are apt to indulge; that when good and dispassionate men look around them, and perceive no trace of the rusty and dreadful chains which the authors image haunts the imagination of our distrusting friends. It is true that every evidence in the oppressed state has doubled in value within the last ten or twelve years; that property of all kinds has largely appreciated; that capital already has, and the monitors of life far more so, perhaps, if accumulated than at the North, or, in short, the South at this time presents every one the means and appliance of prosperity. But what of all this? There are Black Republicans in the North, there are Black Republicans in the South, there are abolitionists upon shareholders, and consequently we are told that the South is in danger, and that the only feasible method of insuring safety is to break up the Union.

If we were disposed seriously to argue a question which has been dinned in the public ears—but which, thank God, has not yet engaged the reluctant and painful consideration of the Southern people, and remains confined to a handful of red hot politicians—we should demand, in the first place, a positive statement of the mode in which dismemberment is to be effected; and, in the next, a catalogue of the States which are expected to unite in the project and combine in the establishment of a grand Southern Confederacy. For herein we suspect, even in the outset, an insuperable difficulty ought to be encountered. We presume it will be conceded that unless the South "seceded" in a body a dissolution would prove incidental and abortive. Two, three, or possibly a dozen States could not expect to carry out the magnificent scheme of breaking up the republic and erecting a confederacy. With all their encouragement and co-operation of the aristocratic populous slave States, the outside world and the pale ghosts of the latter. This is evidenced by the vast amount of loose cotton now lying in Madagascar which has been unshipped in the expectation of a blockade. Nor is there any doubt that the spread of Christianity among the heathery, and all the benevolent and recently established societies of the Union, would be withdrawn from those of the Indians who took Northern views of slavery, and converted with rebel tomahawks and scalping knives.

Finance, of the San Joaquin in the south of India, China and Japan, by Wm M Wood. A very clever work, which will interest every one who is not enlightened on the subject, and very materially respecting matters, and things in Siam and China.

The American Home Garden, by Alexander Watson. This is a treatise on the principles and rules for the cultivation of vegetables, fruits, flowers and shrubbery, to which are added hints on farm crops, with a table of their average product and chemical constituents. No doubt a useful and valuable work.

Adam Bede, by George Eliot. A magnificent paper by the clever author of "Scenes of Clerical Life" at least as well judged from a glance at the opening pages.

METALLIC POCKET CUP RACE. The race to-day over the Metairie Course for a cash purse of $1,000—four mile heats. There are three entries, viz: Captain Jones, Bonnie Lassie and Sunny Washington.

GRAND BALL BY THE ORDER OF I. O. O. F. A great gala is in preparation, as will be perceived by our advertising columns. The R. W. Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. intends closing the festivities of the 26th April by a grand regalia dress, fancy and mask ball which will take place at Odd Fellows' Hall. The names of the various committees will be found in our paper.

THE AMPHITHEATRE. The March Association hold forth to-day at noon on the beautiful drama of the Lady of the Lake, and in the very interesting form of a Trip to Coney Island. Both places are got up capitally, and the habitues of the mammoth performances at the Amphitheatre may expect to be richly rewarded for their attendance on this occasion. No greater entertainment can be afforded to old and young in the day time than is offered at the Amphitheatre.

PALMER'S VARIETIES.—The benefit of the talented and popular young actor, A. H. Davenport, at the Varieties, last night, was a most brilliant success, the house being jammed to the utmost capacities from pit to dome. We were gratified to notice such substantial evidence of Mr. Davenport's success in this city, especially as we feel well assured that the month of unremittingly assisted of his appearance here. She intends to be the queen of the theatre, charm in every respect. What portion of that power which we all revere painter, and depict labor in figures daily in vain, the advocates of the Bar, clever at preaching sermons to the dead.

The Chess Monthly states that it is very probable that Mr. Morphy will be obliged to relinquish his intended journey to Berlin. The arrangements connected with the publication of the English and French editions of his games have declined him so long in Paris, that in order to reach this country in April he would even be compelled to abridge his contemplated sojourn in England on his way home. The most flattering honors are still bestowed upon him, in private as well as in public.

ARRIVAL OF THE QUAKER CITY.

The Quaker City arrived last evening from Minatitlan, bringing files of San Francisco papers to the 21st ult, and from Vera Cruz to the beginning of the present month.

The news from California is uncommonly meagre. About the usual number of murders, robberies and outrages are recorded.

The Legislature has before it a bill virtually legalizing gambling. It has passed one branch.

The Hon. Wm. M. Hawes, son of the Rev. Dr. Hawes, Bishop of the Episcopal Church of New York, died recently in San Francisco.

A new French paper, termed L'Union Franco-Americaine, has been started in San Francisco, its object is to create a better understanding and closer alliance between the French and American populations.

The San Francisco Herald has a highly commendatory article on the Louisiana Tehuantepec Company, and its enterprise.

THE WORLD CHRISTENING.—James Rennie, the California pedestrian, announces his intention, by advertisement, of leaving on the next steamer for the East, and will thence proceed to Europe, where his challenge has already been sent, to walk against time with any man in the world.

The Alta calls upon the Legislature to declare that an active interest exists in the State, near Lassen's Peak, in the source Neenda.

MEXICO.

By the Quaker City we have received Vera Cruz papers to the 1st inst. El Pensador of that date announces with great exultation that Mexico has withdrawn its forces from before Vera Cruz, and a decree has been issued allowing the people to resume the trade as if it had not been interrupted. It declares that the war on and after March 1st, and that land forces have been withdrawn. Many persons who had left Vera Cruz, fearing a siege, have returned. Mexico is now at peace with all the world, and that the Government relative to the assignment of the intruding questions growing out of the differential interpretations of the Clayton Bulwer treaty, and the Isthmian question, should no arrangement ratify at the British treaties and equal terms, that Minister Lamar will be withdrawn, and General Lares, the Nicaraguan Minister at Washington, be invested with full powers to touch on the question of the question, considering the final available information; but much depends on the character of future diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Our vessels will, it is said, be concentrated at the most important points for the protection of the persons and property of American citizens while there prevails a state of war in the interior of the country would be an act of war, which will not be committed; but there is no doubt, from what has recently transpired, that the Government will resort to the utmost extent all the powers conferred upon him by the Constitution and laws.

Minister Bonilla writes hopefully of affairs, satisfactorily, the difficulties with Paraguay.

The vote for Mayor at the Louisville municipal election, about Chairwater, opposition 2053. Jones, (Democrat) 2321 ... majority for Chairwater, 180. A fight, as usual, occurred at the election. It is thus described by the Journal:

In regard to the difficulty in the First Ward on Saturday afternoon, we have been furnished with the following particulars: About half-past 3 o'clock William Stuthers had some angry words with a Democrat named Barnes at the First Ward polls. While they were disputing, a man named Ridge came between them and struck Barnes in the face, and then ran, pursued by Clare, Griffin and others. Between Fagg and Sim, and Thomas Firman followed them, and Firman attacked Jacob Cave some two squares from the polls on Market street, saying, "I'll kill you, say now," at the same time firing at and missing him. They then exchanged three shots each. Cave firing without effect, and Firman's last shot breaking both bones of Cave's leg below the knee. Cave managed to get into a house near by, in which he was protected from further assault by the females, though the men outside wanted to get at him and kill him. About the same time Amos Griffin was shot in the arm near the elbow by another of the Firmans, and Mr. Fuell, Sr., was beaten by Lambert Figg. Stathers and Griffin are but slightly hurt. Mr. Cave is a painter and a very worthy young man, and the wound will confine him probably two months. He is quite a small man, and the man who shot him is large. Firman has made his escape from the town, it is said.

TEXAS.

By an arrival from Texas we have received papers to the 6th instant. We copy the following from our Galveston exchanges:

MAJ. BUNKER.—Major Scott, United States Mail Agent, arrived in town this morning in charge of J. K. McKissack, a mail robber, sent by him for robbing the United States mails.

The robberies occurred on the Northern route between Waco and Washington, and the prisoner was arrested in Woodville, Tyler county. He had some half dozen shooters, calling himself Jno. Moore, J. M. Morgan, Jno. Smith, J. M. P. McKenzie, J. H. Nelson, &c.

He is in jail, fully committed, and has confessed his crime.

The entire amount, $4700, has been recovered, with the exception of a few gold dollars.

We have spoken known more disgraceful weather than we have lately had. For some months past we have had reminiscences of dry cold northers, at the rate of two every week in the short intervals between, the winds have been variable, and the sky cloudy, with frequent sprinklings of rain, but never enough to lay the dust. The ground has been parched up to dryness, and gardens begin to suffer, and scarcity of provisions is reported.

Canada for many years of long level prairie, and Bosque, Falls and Limestone counties, we have had no frost here, though the wind is often nearly as cold. We hear of frost in some parts of the country, falling down the piping even, which renders replanting necessary. But thus far the many fine fields look bright. This morning (April 5th) the sky was cold and the weather seemed like the last days of winter.

Sentence of Conviction.—Colonel Bolton has given us a handful of charred cotton seed and as they were taken from a pile of the seed near by his gin house. A smoke was observed to issue from the pile, and upon examining, the night of burning, evidently was perceptible, and after digging some two feet into the pile, the heat was found to be so great that the negroes could not stand upon the pile with bare feet. On removing the burning cotton seed, and through the fire was discovered, yet the hunt had actually charred and blackened the seed, and the wood doubtless have broken out in a very short time. Considering the night of burning and the excessive heat took place where the seed had been wet by a rain and then covered by some fresh seed. The fact should be a caution to cotton planters, and though it affords a reasonable presumption that most of the frequent fiery losses by burning of cotton gins and the cotton in them are occasioned by spontaneous combustion, unless when they can otherwise be accounted for.

The London Times on the Sicilian Case.

We published yesterday (March 19th) a very strange and very sad story from Washington. With the recollection of Sir Cornewall's remark before our eyes we are not about to indulge in any paroxysms of virtuous indignation because in the United States, as elsewhere, woman is sometimes frail, and man generally vindictive—such things are of all ages and of all countries, and this Washington story about Mr. and Mrs. Sickles and Mr. Key might at any given season find its counterpart in the scandalous chronicles of any of the European capitals—London included.

It was true, indeed, that the husband's vengeance was swift, savage, and sudden. Such is not the way in which such matters are generally managed. Usually there is some previous intimation of the coming storm in the fashion of its revenge. One match is lighted, another is rendered, another an old pistol, a fourth a long knife. The accused then smote at him and cut him severely in the arm, though a fourth shot from his gun was sent before the First District Court.

A Mrs. Pope was fined $5 for beating her neighbor, Caroline Burns, on Dauphin street, and Jas. Lowe was fined $5 for assault and battery on J. H. Wooten.

Jacob Myers was held to answer, the 17th inst., also to appear for being a dangerous and suspicious character.

Constant Courbin was held for examination on complaint of his wife that he is insane.

John Pomeroville was sent to prison for further hearing on the charge of having fired to the house of Mr. Caldwick, on Bienville street.

INQUEST.—The Deputy Coroner held an inquest yesterday on the body of an unknown white man, drowned, whose body was found in the river, foot of Ursulines street. Verdict: "Found drowned." It is supposed to be the body of the sailor who was drowned from the stern of the ship Maid of Orleans, to which he vainly climbed in order to win a wager of twenty cents, while the vessel was being moved about her moorings by a strong wind.

The Coroner was called late in the evening to hold an inquest on the body of a man said to have committed suicide at the Louisiana Race Course.

RUNAWAY.—A youth named Thomas Williams was arrested yesterday morning in a room of Murphy's Hotel, on St. Charles street, on a charge of having entered the room of Mr. Murphy, (proprietor,) and robbed him of $175 in gold, a diamond ring, a gold watch chain, some broken jewelry, and silverware. Mr. Murphy says he saw some one disappear like a shadow from his room very early in the morning, and getting up, he found that the box in which he had the money and jewelry had been emptied. He had the youth's room entered by the police, when he found his pocket book in a bowl of water, covered over with some paper floating on the surface. The other articles were found outside the window. The accused was held for examination before Recorder Summers.

TWO BURGLARIES.—Officer Boulhois, of the Second District police, informed us of a very rude knock, which had been perpetrated in two burglaries—one on Thursday night, at a coffee house corner of Dauphin and Customhouse streets. Before the house was closed, a drink had been handed in the door, through which a string had been introduced and fastened to the latch which closed the door. During the night the burglars came, pulled the string of the latch which unfastened, and made their entrance. They got, however, as their booty only a few lottery tickets and four or five dollars in money.

THE SALLY SISTER.—The Coroner held an office late last evening and went down the river to hold an inquest on the body of a man reported to have been found dead some where between the Hopkins plantation and the Lamotique Race Course. The body was lying on the levee in the ground, with the head badly torn away from the contents of a pistol, which lay discharged, and still in the hand of the deceased, pointed at his head, although it had fallen back by his side to rest on the ground. The Coroner had not returned at a late hour, and we have no particulars further than that the deceased was well dressed.

LARCENY.—Thirty eight pieces of sewerage, such as table, bed and dessert spoons and forks, were found in the house of Mrs. Jane Rousseau, which will be disposed of at auction at 10 o'clock a.m. this day.

The Estate in Dan's Suit says.

The little deaf and dumb lad of Mr. Hamby, whose son in the woods we noticed week before last, was found on the eighth day of his absence in the Lafourche swamp. He was discovered sitting quite unconcernedly on a log, knitting, which he had learned at home. He sustained himself while in the woods principally on acorns.

A Good Comparison

The Rev. Wilson Bedell, a well known Methodist clergyman, residing at Napoo, draws the following comparison between the merits of Mrs Lozenge's celebrated Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburg, Pa., and a horse:

"A farmer when placed in the entrance of a cornfield enters the aperture, overlooking the passage across upon the rail, ratchmaking his residence, and gnaws the summer's harvest carcass to the light and to the consumer he is found to be a horse. A horse's appetite spreads over more than broad fat and staggering vertebrae of thirteen. The formula, like the horse, covers the species of the mouth travels down the gullet, interspersed the stomach, lays hold of the food, shakes the skin of the reptiles, sweeps from their den and carries their carcasses. Come out on the premises, and, as the horse eats the corn, so does the worm upon my children. Let others try it, and be satisfied."

Purchasers will be safe to ask for DR. MILANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE, manufactured by J. EMILE BIDE. There is a Parisian Medallion accompanies each worm cake. Dr. Milane's genuine Vermifuge, also for celebrated Liver Pills, can now be had at the sole wholesale agency. None genuine unless signed
