DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.

A characteristic saying of the famous Lord Eldon was, that a coach and horses might be driven through any act of Parliament. The remark is probably quite as true of American legislation as of that of England. Indeed the former is for the most part but the legitimate offspring of the latter. The British Chancellor's observation, applies peculiarly to the laws regulating the relations of debtor and creditor and providing for the recovery of moneys due. Half a dozen omnibuses, warranted to contain at least fourteen persons each, might be readily driven through every one of these enactments. In fact, it has always seemed to us that as respects Louisiana, the laws for the enforcement of the claims of the creditor upon the debtor have been framed on the presumption that the former was a ruthless and inexorable oppressor, while the latter was a meek and unoffending victim. The moment a man begins to appeal to our Courts in order to obtain his just dues the laws are so ingeniously devised as to throw a series of annoying obstructions in his way, to protract the debtor, and to afford him every conceivable facility for resisting and retarding payment. Hence a dishonest debtor, who may feel disposed to evade a settlement, can, by skillfully availing himself of certain legal resources well understood in the profession, contrive to secure repeated postponements, in the meanwhile quietly investing the money of his creditor at the most remunerative rate of interest he can obtain. We remember well a case of the sort which occurred in Louisiana. A certain individual owed another three thousand five hundred dollars. On various pretexts payment was refused. At last the debtor was cited whereupon he observed with the greatest complacency to his creditor, "I know I owe this the 50th time of telegraphic dispatches via Placerville to the 10th inst., has arrived at Malloy's station, the present terminus of the San Francisco telegraph line.

The mail brings five days later intelligence than was received by the steamship St. Louis from Vera Cruz, which left a week ago to-day.

KILLED AT SEA.—On the 15th instant, off Cape Mount Roof, James Miner, of Rockland, Maine, fell from the fore topsail yard of the bark Jenny Potter and was killed.

The Picayune of last evening publishes the following letter, which, if true, will bring down about MIRAMON the retribution of both the American and English Governments:

VERA CRUZ, March 21—4 P. M

An express has just arrived from the city of Mexico, with dates to the 18th inst., which brings intelligence that on the receipt of the news of the taking of Marin by the U. S. steamer Saratoga, MIRAMON sent to the capitol immediately, ordering Corona to issue a decree to confiscate the property of all Americans and order them out of the country. This act of sweeping barbarism requires no comment, and I leave it for the American public and our Government to digest.

Capt. Altham, of H. B. M. S. Valorous, has written to MIRAMON this morning, protesting very strongly against his wanton and inhuman destruction of English property and innocent life. This, I think, will quickly fix the determination of the English Government to acknowledge the Government of the Liberalists.

Another Mysterious Crime in New York.

Another terrible and mysterious tragedy became public yesterday, which, from present appearances, promises to unfold a chapter in crime of the most barbarous character. The facts of the case, so far as our reporter has been able to ascertain, are these: On Thursday, the 15th inst., the sloop D. Johnson, of Islip, L. I., Captain George Bayr, sailed from the foot of Spring street, bound to Virginia for a load of oysters. On Sunday, the 18th inst., having called at Keyport, she again set sail and went to sea, since which time she was not seen until yesterday morning, when she was picked up between the West Bank and the Romer Shoals, by the schooner Telegraph, of New London, with bowsprit gone, and abandoned

When boarded, the deck presented a most horrible spectacle, being almost literally covered with clotted blood and hair. On entering the cabin no person was visible, but large pools of blood lay on both sides of the stove and in the companion way. The starboard quarter was also stained with blood. Finger marks in blood were found on the cabin floor and table. Her main boom was gone. In the cabin were found a pair of india rubber boots, several shirts, bedding, and a number of other articles which could have been easily taken away if the vessel had been honestly abandoned.

The Telegraph made fast to her, and they were both last drifting ashore. On the steamer Cornu, Capt. Stevens, being in the neighborhood, took them in tow and brought them both up to the city. They were subsequently moored at Fulton Market slip, where they now lie.

Soon the terrible story of awful havoc and mysterious murder spread throughout the lower portion of the city, and hundreds of persons hurried to the vessel to view the tragic scene and to canvass its given details. Information was immediately communicated to Captain Weed, of the Second Precinct, who, with some of his officers, soon boarded her. The first thing which presented itself to them on going aboard was blood, and every thing which they examined in close succession was blood stained. The idea of a boarding party from pirates was first broached. The look-keeper of Messrs. Fell & Marsh closed the store and went home at half-past eight o'clock. No fire and been used upstairs, nor had the gas been lighted that evening except on the ground floor, and it is impossible to inspect the upper part of the premises without the aid of a light. Every thing appeared to be in its usual place, and the greatest order is said to have prevailed. The only evidence of violence was the absence of the safe, which is the heaviest piece of furniture in the store, and which, when full of merchandise, is said to weigh from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds. It was evidently taken away by force, and the manner in which it was done is a mystery. The police are working on the matter up most diligently, and will scour every place with a view to the discovery and arrest of the perpetrators. As may be seen by the above, the marks of the struggle in traces of blood are the only evidences of the fate of the unhappy captain and crew.—N. Y. Tribune, March 27.

TEXAS.—We have Texas papers to the 27th inst., but they are almost entirely destitute of interest. The News of that date says:

The second came out gradually from the north on Sunday, and a fine, bracing, invigorating soldier over since, and last night the wind blew a regular norther. During yesterday there was a drizzling rain, which would have been snow had the temperature been a few degrees colder. We have some fears that the change has been attended with a killing frost in the interior.

FROM WASHINGTON.—Washington, March 26.—The President was engaged with the Secretary of State for several hours to day, on business connected with Mexican affairs. The recent events in the Gulf occasion much solicitude in official quarters, as it is feared they may endanger the peaceful relations of the United States having large interests in that region Nothing materially different from the newspaper accounts has reached the Government.

The House has been officially informed that the President has signed the bill providing for the protection of female passengers.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AND LOSS OF LIFE.—Hyde Park, Pa., March 26.—A terrible accident occurred at Chittenden's shaft, four miles below here, this afternoon. The pumps broke while the workmen were being hoisted up. An explosion or fire-damp following, some fifteen or twenty were killed and many more severely burned. The engine house and boiler house were blown to pieces. These are all the particulars as yet received.

The Lockhaven (Pa.) Watchman records a very remarkable phenomenon. Some months ago Mr. John Johnson, of that place, had the middle finger of his right hand amputated close to the lower joint joining the hand. The wound soon healed over, and almost immediately a new finger commenced growing from the stump of the old one, and it has now grown to the length of the old one. Another joint of the new finger was amputated Mr. Johnson had a new and full grown one in its place, with the exception of the nail, which is just commencing to shoot out.

The following pathetic endorsement was found on a one dollar bank note received at the Commercial Bank, Burlington, Vt., a few days ago.

Charles Dickens, Jr., promises to be as great a fame in the commercial, as his father is now in the literary world. He is going out to India to manage an agency for the great firm of Baring Brothers, in which he has long held a responsible post, and Miss Burdett Coutts will back him in any individual undertakings. C. D., Senior, is said to have made £70,000 in the last ten years.

THE NEW YORK JOURNAL OF COMMERCE CHEERFUL ON A "VEXED QUESTION."—The New York Journal of Commerce is thus jocose, pleasant, poetical and philosophical about some of the arrangements for the accommodation of delegates at the Charleston Convention:

Charleston is destined to have a large floating population during the session of the Democratic Convention in April, made up chiefly of strangers forced to take to the water by the exorbitant charges for bed and board on shore, just as the dwellers in boats in China and other Asiatic countries are driven to the junks for economy's sake. There will be a fleet of steamer caravansaries moored in her spacious harbor, filled with delegations and visitors from South Carolina, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Washington and Savannah, each contemplate chartering one or more steamers to go to Charleston and remain there until the close of the Convention, and many other places will probably also send vessels.

On these floating hotels the task of living out the few days allotted to the deliberations of the Convention will be rendered more agreeable and less expensive than in the hot and crowded public houses of the city. They will afford a refreshing change for those who are wearied by the burdens of the day—where the ardor of debate may be tempered by the cool breezes that sweep on from the ocean, and the excessive heats excited by copious applications of salt water, where they may luxuriate on luscious fruits obtained from the adjacent West India ports, enjoy daily ablutions in the sea, an evening stroll upon the Battery, or occasional pleasure excursions to the forts and islands in the bay, or a sail up the Cooper and Ashley rivers, and sailing, besides saving the cost of purchases and carriage hire.

These are no trifling inducements to those who choose to adopt for a short time a "life upon the deep," and will render the condition of the floating population of Charleston at that time rather enviable than otherwise.

HORRIBLE DEATH FROM SNUFF-DIPPING.—Miss Temmessee Gibson died last week in Arkansas, from the effects of snuff dipping. She fell asleep with the "mop" in her mouth, and was found a corpse some hours after. A post-mortem examination revealed the fact that she had eaten also stained with blood. Finger marks in blood were found on the cabin floor and table. Her main boom was gone. In the cabin were found a pair of india rubber boots, several shirts, bedding, and a number of other articles which could have been easily taken away if the vessel had been honestly abandoned.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Page's Venus.—On Saturday, the 31st inst., Mr. Keane, who has Page's celebrated painting of Venus rising from the sea, will open to the public for exhibition at Odd Fellows' Hall, intends to hold a free art entertainment every afternoon from 12 M. to 2 P. M. This is intended for ladies, to gentlemen accompanying them, and to children. The paintings were formed of the flite of the citizens, and the expressions and opinions, and general conversation on art and the selection of painting, created a most interesting entertainment. The subject of ancient and modern painting and the true mission of this noble art. We doubt not but Mr. Evans, from his well known taste in these matters, will have a treat of the most agreeable patronage in the number of his admissions.

New Orleans School of Medicine.—The annual commencement of the College yesterday, in Odd Fellows' Hall, was an occasion of great interest, and we may regret that we were limited upon the bustling pressure from giving the extended report we had intended. The commencement consisted of a prayer by Dr. Palmer, the conferring of degrees by Dr. Feuner, the address by Dr. L. Gross, and valedictory by Lud. Voorhies, and Scott, of Mississippi. The following gentlemen received the degrees of M. D.:

Dreadful Affair on Granier Street.—In yesterday morning's issue we briefly announced the destruction of Messrs P. R Fell & Marsh's establishment, having no time to give further particulars, of a conflagration which has caused a destruction of property to the amount of nearly $150,000. The fire broke out in the second story of No. 62 Granier street, and was discovered by the watchman about half-past one o'clock, A. THE CLOSING YEARS OF LIFE are often rendered wretched by ailments which are trifling in themselves, and easily cured if taken in time. Abortions or miscarriages, and other organs concerned in digestion are the most frequent. They naturally cause the sufferer nervous, irritable and complaining, and relatives and friends are forced to bear the brunt of their ill-humor. To all who are thus circumstanced Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will prove an efficient remedy for this evil. It will not only strengthen the whole physical organization, but entirely cure the most obstinate cases of indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, and liver complaint. The first physicians in the country are loud in their praise of this preparation. Another recommendation of the Bitters is that it is so palatable to the taste that it may be used even as a beverage.
