proofs to what they want at places of less note, from Cape May to the White Mountains. Such places as Mancresteriand Brattlebore, in Vermont, and Orange and Bergen Point, is New Jersey, offer many attractions to families. On the whole, the season will be, so far as present properts indicate, one of unusual briliancy, notwithstanding the war and its attendant horrors; the published of widows and orphase of the slain, that crowd the land, and the spectral shadows that haunt the homes of so many that are left desolate forward.

The rebels were scotting through the surrounding country and gathering supplies and forage. They creesed at Antietam Ford and appeared to be settled down for a lengthened occupation. These were no indications of a movement in the direction of Frederick, but their foraging patties were scouring the dountry acroes the Pectonylvania line. The scouts also report that the rebels are beliding bridges across the canal, indicating preparations for the advance of the whole army or to facilitate their rapid sut if it is hould prove loceesary.

Our dispatches from the Camberland Valley state that Chambershay has again been occapied by the rebels, and as Gen Douch was not in sufficient force to meet them, its advance has fallen back in the direction of Carillaie to the man body of his troop.

There can lie no doubt that the intention of Gen. Lee is to compy Western Maryland, for age in Pennsylvania, and risk another great battle with the Army of the Hotomac in the vicinity of Antietam and South Mountain. The course of Gen Hocker in this new aspect of affairs has not yet been developed, but it is to be presumed that he will follow Lee over the Potomac, crossing probably in the vicinity of the mountain. The course of Gen Hocker in this new aspect of affairs has not yet been developed, but it is to be presumed that he will follow Lee over the Potomac, crossing probably in the vicinity of the mountain of Monocacy, and at so once occupy Frederick county. The occupation of Frederick is probably the advance of the movement, and stirring times may again be expected in Maryland.
