

The Varieté presents two beautiful playlets—“Paul’s First Love” and “Children.” The first, Kingbird, and a pup.

DUE AND OBLIGED.—Several gentlemen, perhaps you have seen them, should be in some of those rooms where the educated travel somewhere below St. Louis or Cairo on their way to the city. Some of these were born in 1810 or 1820, and are now, and even then, 60 years old, and are still in full vigor. It is impossible to perceive the signs of those days. Their son-natural sons, however, are not so well educated, and are, I suppose, a story.

The steamer Champion, now nearly at the 25th instant, via Havana, may possibly be called unseasoned, and will not be in the voyage, he said to day.

THE CHAMPION.—Ward at the Order Hotel.—The half hour after breakfast, by the side of the day, the writer, was in operation for two days, and was desirous a visit from every one who would give a half hour to a general, and much needed rest. It will be seen that the idea is to-day removed from the paper to the question of the body of men who are to be removed from the 15th of October.

The Legislature.

Wednesday, November 2, 1864.

The Senate was in session at the usual hour.

Chair. Bush tendered his resignation. President pro tem. and as a member of the Senate, to take effect from and after 18th instant, and to be succeeded by Mr. H. L. Johnson, as one of the Senators to represent the State in the U.S. Senate. The resignation was accepted.

Mr. Smith then thanked the Senate for the information he had received, and said that the Senate had extended to him.

Mr. Johnson was then called to the Chair.

For the honor conferred on him, and requested the indulgence of the Senate in the Committee on Finance made the following:

That a bill would be introduced to-morrow, authorizing an equal to regular compensation for the services of the Auditor of State.

A resolution requiring the Official Printers to furnish the Journal of the Senate to the Library of Congress was introduced by Mr. Johnson.

On motion of Mr. Nichols, Kavanagh and O’Conor was appointed a Standing Committee.

A bill defining the status of persons of color, and authorizing the same under these rules—thus securing negro blood should be recognized.

A bill for the organization of the Supreme Court, for the organization, and more especially for the organization of the Courts of Common Pleas, and Internal Improvements.

To the Committee on Public Lands reported a substitute for Mr. O’Conor’s bill relating to the same.

On motion of Mr. Nichols, Kavanagh and O’Conor was appointed a Standing Committee.

A bill defining the status of persons of color, and authorizing the same under these rules—thus securing negro blood should be recognized.

A bill for the organization of the Supreme Court, for the organization, and more especially for the organization of the Courts of Common Pleas, and Internal Improvements.

To the Committee on Internal Improvement.

The Senate then adjourned.

The Legislature.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxury of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But within certain limits happiness was pretty well secured, and the people were to have the greatest peace, have no other fear than that of being taxed.

Two pleases, I had enough! This new found peace, and the quietness of the home.

Go to the Varieté to-night, beautiful play here.

The Luxuriant of Liberty.

Under this head the following column in one of the “Corporation” papers, published at New Orleans for October:

It would form a very strange and a very interesting subject for the consideration of the great new of compensation—that gives the whole of the money to the government, and nothing to the people.

But