ST CHARLES THEATRE—Benefit of Mr Eddy.—The Streets of New York will be given for the fourth time at the St Charles to night on the occasion of Mr. Eddy's benefit. No one who has witnessed the performance of this drama here can be unconscious of the distinguished feature in which Mr. Eddy's unmatched and judicious acting, in the character of Baldwin, has contributed to its merited success and popularity, and it may be remarked that his relation to the performance of the play is analogous to that which he usually bears to representations on the same boards. Ably supported by Mr. Chaplin, no play in which the two appear can well fail of a large proportion of happy results

VARIETIES THEATRE—The third representation of the Six Degrees of Crime will be given here to-night. Miss Irving to appear once more in her effective part of Louise. There will be the usual dance, and the occasion will conclude with a well selected farce in which Mr Wallace will be a prominent figure. This actor, by the way, is developing some noteworthy talents in the burlesque and farcical line. His humor sometimes and sketches last night in the New Lease of Life Victim could hardly have been more genial, droll and amusing.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC—The interest, popularity and vogue of the combined and various performances at the Academy show no sign of flagging and attest the activity and skill which are lavishly taken to sustain the spirit and novelty of the successive entertainments. An attractive programme with all the new stars and old favorites is offered for to night.

The officers of the steamer Macon have our thanks for the prompt delivery of Cairo packages of the latest Western dates

We are indebted to the officers of the steamer M S Mepham for esteemed papers.

NEW YORK PAPERS BY MAIL VIA THE EAST—We received yesterday by the Northern mail via the West, brought by the mail steamship Mepham, files of New York exchanges up to the 18th, the latest newspaper and mail dates which have come to hand. They contain nothing of importance not anticipated, more or less, by the Western press and the telegraph.

NEW YORK STEAMERS—In the New York Herald, of the 18th February, a general advertisement announces the 1st and 15th days for New Orleans, via Havana, on the 15th, P. M. Immediately following is a special notice dated the 17th, stating that no general announcements would present the Yazoo from sailing on the day appointed, and requesting shippers to send to the proper pier for their goods.

In the same paper the Morning Star is advertised to sail for New Orleans, direct, on the 18th, but her delay at the bar caused her detention, it is understood, to the 21st. If she sailed at that date she is now fully due.

MISSOURI RESOLUTIONS—Hon. Isaac the oldest delegate of Washington, the Missouri delegation at Washington, the Post-boat has agreed to refer to that State from the draft, and the St Louis papers express much joy at the fact. The concession was made on the condition that five State forces a number force of western cavalry regiments shall be considered and accepted as an equitable share of the general burden of the draft.

Portland, Feb. 25—The steamer Nova Scotian, from Liverpool via Queenstown 15th, arrived to-day, with five days later news.

AMERICAN AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

The steamer Moravian's news was regarded as expediting the peace rumors, and depressed the United States bonds about 2 per cent.

The Times observes, as a matter for reflection, it can hardly doubt that the bearing of both the British and Canadian Governments will be upon the American Government. It will be known that the Canadian militia are [illegible] and that a very slight decision will be an object of importance.

The arrival of Gen. McClellan in England is denied a number of times and immediately, himself, and he is said to be expected very speedily for any demonstration to be made in his honor.

The appointment of Earl of Shaftesbury to the Lord Lieutenancy of Dublin, caused a little sensation, as it removes from the post of Lord Derby, who is considered a conservative.

The Daily News says that a jury has seldom given such ample relief to plaintiffs. It says for the amendment of the foreign enlistment act.

The Times says the Fort Fisher affair certainly developed a new style in the art of war, and demonstrated the possibility of making turret ships sea-going.

In the House of Lords Earl Derby spoke on the American question. He said it would only result in repetition, if at the close of the session of the North, and the other side was recognized by every feeling of humanity that every one would rejoice if steps could be taken to avert it. He regretted that eventually that had been better received by the North, and asserted that the North was the gainer by a period of relaxation in the steps she had taken towards Canada.

The subject of the Alabama claims was studiously aggressive. He hoped the government would take measures to secure a preponderance of power on the lakes.

Earl Grey said there was still time for negotiation in these matters and Earl Russell said that Earl Derby had not done justice to the invitation given forth.

The Queen's address was agreed to.

In the House of Commons on the 8th, Mr. Edwin Hoose expressed regret at the absence in the Queen's speech of any reference to the state of the public service. He said our relations with America are bad in a material extent state, and in the event of a war Fox and was not in a position to afford adequate protection to commerce. He intended at an early day to call attention to the state of the navy.

On bringing up the report on the address Mr. Scully moved an amendment declaring that the state of Ireland is not satisfactory and that the large emigration from that country was a sad feature. A letter declaring the amendment was rejected.

LATEST VIA LIVERPOOL CITY.

London, Feb. 20—The dispatches of Lord Lyons relative to the St. Albans raiders have been published. Earl Russell's dispatch to Lord Lyons, dated the 29th November, leaves the hands-me terms in which Mr. Seward acknowledged the co-operation of the United in government, and adds Her Majesty's government trusts that such friendly interchanges in the performance of friendly offices may take continue on both sides.

Protection from Bad Ills.

(From the St. Louis Democrat.)

An important bill for the people of St. Louis has been introduced into the State Senate, by Mr. Howland, of this county, the object of which is to protect our people from the imposition and dangers to which they are exposed from the introduction and use of bad coals and burning fluids. The disasters which have occurred in other cities, and especially the late terrible conflagration in Philadelphia, resulting from like causes, by which in losses of dollars in property and a number of lives were lost, have induced the introduction of this bill, which we hope will be passed, by its provisions them from the exposure of dealers, who have been and are constantly palming off bad coal for good upon those unable to judge of the article.

The Oil Excitement.

(From the New York Sun.)

The excitement in regard to oil property in the counties of Pennsylvania, Western Virginia, and other States, has found itself been one of the greatest wonders of the times to which we have lived. That a new source of wealth, so vast and unlimited should have been suddenly developed in our country in the very midst of the gloom and despair that fell upon the world has been less surprising. Of course, we always knew that petroleum existed in immense quantities in our soil. Our mountains contained immense deposits of this, for wherever there are great developments of coal, oil is sure to be found in greater or less abundance. But the extraordinary development of wealth and exhilarating excitement within a very few months after the discovery of a single well, is one of the most remarkable facts in the history of the world. Whole armies of adventurers and speculators have rushed to the wealth to their salvation. Wealthy men and capitalists have left their homes and their business to engage in the search. Whole villages have been built up in a few months. Towns have been created. Fortunes have been made and lost in a day. Property has been transferred from hand to hand and constantly increased in value. Companies have been formed with fabulous capital, and the whole country has been excited to a degree of enthusiasm and speculation which has not been equalled since the days of the South Sea bubble. Even the most sober and conservative men have been carried away with the excitement, and have invested their money in oil lands and oil companies. Lawyers, doctors, merchants, bankers, and capitalists have left their business and their homes to engage in the search for oil. Like all excitements of the kind, it has been attended by many disappointments and failures. Many companies have been formed with large capital and have failed to find oil. Many individuals have spent their money in boring for oil, and have failed to find it
