EUROPEAN WAR INEVITABLE—PEACE!

The summer and the occasion that precede the meeting of a fourth annual Congress to be held in Europe, not merely in the form of imaginative suggestions engendered by over-wrought sentiments and sanguine temperaments, but as matters of present fact, a war of which the actual commencement is now only awaited by the Nations, the only question as to the precise time when the first cannon shall be fired. Such is the opinion of the London Times, which has spoken, and the same journal, in its most considered pulse, in its most precise periodicity in its reference to affairs, finding its statements still more confirmed from his absence. His speech at Auxerre, we understand it to say, is only calculated to spread dismay and to give the most sinister significance to Count Bismarck's previously doubtful utterances.

As the London Times knows the intentions, and is the organ of the Government, it is meant the war commonly accepted Western Europe, it stands about three powers, Prussia, Austria, Italy, confronted by each other in what may be described as the attitude of fisticuffs belligerency. It is true that each professes to stand on the defensive, but under the pretext of one or at least two of the powers are believed to be bent unscrupulously, and diplomatically inaugurate which look definitely and only to war, and which can not be turned aside except by the powerful and decisive intervention, such as the French Emperor might make brought it to bear in the two years of empire of this century.

The Equitable Life Assurance Company—Mutual Insurance Company—Home Office, 120 Broadway, New York, by the London Times, the companies represented instead of the native champion of the other one. Hands it is inferred that war is inevitable, since the only question of time and opportunity of the Union pleased to proceed. Double, [illegible] it is argued, while would have an additional spur to any [illegible] to this country, if or peace within or without, in the front of conscription for the [illegible] armies in Europe, a fabulous committee, [illegible] national and all other legitimate strength would be in augmenting demand, in proportion as European war should depress commerce, and [illegible] and absolute [illegible] of the ballot-box. But is to be to be [illegible] that violent commotion and obstructive and [illegible] policy on the part of the men who have pronounced themselves of the Congressional power will certainly weaken, if not wholly [illegible], the confidence on which a Government may be trusted to the [illegible] national and edge harmonies in the United States.
