Moving a Boat Without Oars.

When you have no oars nor any sort of substitute with which to propel a boat to shore, tie the rope to the after-twart and give a series of jerks in a direction parallel to the keel and the boat will begin to move forward, slowly, indeed, but surely.

SANGUINE OF SUCCESS.

Booth-Tucker Enthusiastic Over His Colonization Scheme. Declares It Is Not Socialistic or Co-operative, and Has the Indorsement of Many Business Men of the Country.

Commander Booth-Tucker has returned to America filled with enthusiasm over his plan to colonize poor people on small farms in the west. He submitted the plan to Gen. Booth, in London, and it was commended by the leader of the salvationists in every detail.

When a reporter asked him about the various criticisms that have been raised, he said: "I am prepared to meet every objection to this plan. I have made a practical study of it. I have submitted it not only to Gen. Booth, but to many prominent business men in this country, and to the editors of newspapers who are familiar with the sections where the colonies will be established, and I have yet to find one who does not give hearty approval."

"The Salvation Army will undertake the organization of an association, and will endeavor to secure sufficient funds for a fair trial, and to secure only such colonists as are desirable. We need $500,000 to start with. We will secure a tract of irrigable land in Colorado, Wyoming or Utah, which will be paid for in installments."

"For several years I was an officer of the British government in India, and I know the practical results of irrigation. There can be no question about good crops each year. We will divide the land into ten-acre farms. We will build a cabin or small house on each farm, have the land ready for cultivation, and each family that joins the colony will find work in readiness, and a bank account of $500 to its credit."

THE CAMPHOR TREE.

Facts Regarding Its Cultivation Furnished by Agricultural Department. The results of an investigation regarding the camphor tree are announced in a bulletin of the agricultural department just issued. It says that for most of the secondary purposes the camphor tree may well be cultivated wherever it can be made to live.

"There has been an increase in importations of refined camphor, due to improved methods of refining and packing in Japan, and to changes in the tariff. But this increase has been much more than counterbalanced by the decrease in importations of crude camphor. The decrease is due to a number of causes. As a result there has been an increase in the price of camphor, and this in turn has led to the introduction of substitutes. Menthol and other pepper-plant derivatives or compounds, carbolic acid and its derivatives, naphthalin and insect powder are now used for various purposes where camphor was formerly employed. Camphor has been manufactured artificially, at a cost leaving a margin of profit at present prices. It is therefore apparent that if the production of camphor from the trees is to be carried on with profit in this country and the industry increased to any considerable extent, the price of camphor must be reduced to compete with the prices of substitutes now taking its place."

Strange Indian Vengeance.

In the course of his investigations Dr. Calmette has discovered the nature of a mortal poison which some of the natives of India employ to kill the cattle of their enemies. The poison is applied to little pointed rods inserted in the end of a short stick, which can be concealed in the hand. Approaching the cattle, the poisoner slightly scratches them with the venom-charged points. The ends of the little rods break off and remain in the wounds, which are barely visible. Dr. Calmette found that the poison was extracted from a kind of bean, growing on a leguminous plant known botanically as Abrus precatorius. This poison is called abrin, and is almost as fatal in its effects as the most violent serpent venom.
